

My Covid-19 Shelter in Place Experience

Covid-19 and shelter in place has impacted me greatly as a student at San Jose State University. When choosing classes I made sure to sign up for classes that are in person and not online as I learn better from in person classes. The sudden switch from in person to online classes through zoom has impacted my academic performance and has resulted in me struggling. I feel as if that I could have gotten a higher grade in my classes if classes were not online but the circumstances made that impossible. I am also a graduating senior and the news that our graduation will be online instead of in person had made me very upset. My friends, family, and relatives will not be able to celebrate the success of my hard work finishing college. I feel as if I spent 5 years at San Jose State for nothing as I will never get the full fledged experience of graduating. Also we are paying full price tuition this semester when we were not getting the full college experience was unfair from SJSU since we were not using the facilities at school. I am also an intern for the City of San Jose and due to the shelter in place I am not getting the internship experience I need since I will be graduating and need this internship to gain experience for my future job. Overall my experience with Covid-19 and shelter in place was terrible but there are people out there going through worse conditions than I am.
