

The

BROADWAY AT ELEVENTH ST., LOS ANGELES

April 25, 1931

Dear Miss Morgan:

We have had difficulty with this picture of Marion's, it being a very large and difficult one, but I am assured now that the last takes will be on Thursday and if so we will surely leave Friday night for the ranch, arriving there Saturday, May 2nd.

I imagine the studies and reports on Mount Olive will wait until then.

I am getting ready with difficulty to scrape up another $25,000 for Mr. Byne in May. I suppose he will want it about the 15th.

I sent you an extra $5,000 this month to be devoted to the warehouse. It seems to me that it is good business to build that warehouse and relieve ourselves of warehouse expenses elsewhere.

In other respects we will have to go on about as we have been going, on account of general conditions, which are punk. The stock market appears to be going entirely out of sight and this may precipitate something in the nature of a panic. Our business is not so terribly bad, but it is not good either and we are fearful of the summer months.

I hope things will begin to improve shortly. They should.

Very sincerely,

e millions. Its area is 124,000 square m

California's topography and climate are similar to that of ly. Its present population of 5,000,000 resembles that of the milders of Britain in pioneering energy and determination to push

One California city alone—Los Angeles—is planning accom-modutions for a city larger than London, with its seven and a half millions.

It will locate these millions between a range of picturesque mountains and the open beaches of the Pacific Ocean, where its climate is unsurpassed during any season of the year.