

leadership, and individual responsibility are among basic factors considered in developing the Honors Program. Interdepartmental and school offerings provide opportunity for enrichment and personal development. Permission to enroll in individual courses is normally given by the instructors.

Students who complete 15 units of upper-division honors courses will have "With University Honors" recorded on their diplomas and also on their transcripts. Students who take a minimum of 15 units of honors courses in one department may have that information recorded, e.g., "With Honors in History." Such notations are not dependent upon grade-point averages. See the Bulletin of the Honors Program for further information regarding graduation with honors. In all cases, whether a student takes one or many honors courses, such courses will be so designated, along with an appropriate explanation, on the transcript. Three units of any 170HU course may apply toward the General Education Area V requirement.

The subject matter and course titles of departmental honors courses and general university honors colloquia vary from semester to semester. Typical courses are "Arts of the Baroque Era," "World Population and Food Production," "Perspectives in Asian Civilization," "Shakespeare and the Renaissance," and "Colonial Mexico and the Southwest." For the offering of any particular semester, see the Schedule of Courses; for specific information about admission to the program and course prerequisites, see the Bulletin of the Honors Program. As School and Departmental honors requirements vary from department to department, consult the Bulletin for further information. Honors courses are designated by HU or HD preceding the course number. HU indicates a general university honors colloquium; HD indicates a departmental honors course. Most honors courses are indicated by a 170 number. The Coordinator of the Honors Program is available for advising at any time.

The following departments and study areas will participate in the Program:

Accounting and Quantitative Studies	Linguistics
Agricultural Industry and Education	Management and Marketing
Anthropology	Mathematics
Art	Music
Biology	Nursing
Chemistry	Philosophy
Criminology	Physical Education
Economics	Physics
English	Plant Science
Experimental College	Political Science
Finance	Psychology
Foreign Language	Radio-Television
Geography	Sociology
History	Speech Communication
Home Economics	Theatre Arts
La Raza Studies	Women's Studies

INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

The university offers two programs under this heading, a campus program, and an overseas program. The campus program of International Studies Courses (ISC) is designed for students whose native language is not English and for those whose education has been in a language other than English. All such students are required to participate in post-admission English language testing. As a result of such testing, any student may be required to register for certain International Studies Courses.

CAMPUS PROGRAM

The International Program (Campus) provides courses intended to help the foreign student gain adequate skill in the use of the English language and sufficient familiarity with American customs and tradition to obtain maximum benefit from his experience at an American college. The following program is required of all entering foreign students, unless excused from part or all of it by the Admissions Committee on the advice of the persons concerned with the instruction and administration of the program. This decision will be based on a consideration of test scores and other data supplied by the student with his