

'Drunk' birds at it again

SF State's blackbirds can't hold their berries. Every spring the feisty fellows take to nibbling on fermented berries and attacking students. Friday, one student encountered an inebriated bird (left photo) in front of the education building, and not wishing to engage in a losing battle the student hung tight (center), hoping the bird would simply choose another target. Not so lucky (right). The winged aggressor nipped the student's ear and made a quick get-away.

And back again. Obviously the ear-pecking bird didn't get enough the first time around. Grimacing, the injured student ducked, escaping a second blow.

Final showdown on prof salaries looms tomorrow

The quality of State College teachers in California hinges on the pending salary decision of the State Legislature. That body must decide whether to increase the salaries of these teachers by 6.7 per cent or 11.2 per cent when it considers the new state budget tomorrow.

At the present time the Legislature is divided with the Assembly endorsing the 11.2 per cent increase while the Senate had sided with Governor Brown in recommending a 6.7 per cent increase.

Chancellor Glenn Dumke and the State College Board of Trustees have said that the State Colleges needed a "basic" 11.2 per cent increase to keep the present faculty and hire new teachers.

Ross Koen, executive secretary of the Association of California State College Professors (ACSCP), has informed the association's local president, Leo Young, head of the Journalism Department, that the "salary battle has reached the crucial stage."

Young said that the State Colleges are "desperately short of new faculty because teachers are forced elsewhere by bigger salaries."

While assistant professors get a beginning salary of $7,700 in the State College system most assistant professors are commanding $8,500 elsewhere.

To help persuade the Senate to change their stand and vote for an 11.2 per cent increase, Young has urged that the members of the SF State faculty send telegrams to the Senators and Governor stressing the necessity of raising wages to alleviate teaching shortages.

African freedom--topic for the week

Three SF State student groups are sponsoring African Freedom Week beginning today.

The African Students Union, Black Students Union, and Arab - American Association are sponsors of the week's activities which run through Saturday.

Zambian Ambassador to the US, J. J. Soto, Algerian Ambassador to the United Nations Tawfiq Bo Otor, and United Arab Republic Consul-General in San Francisco Kallal A. Ibrahim will be special guests during the celebration.

Ambassador Tawfiq Bo Otor will also be visiting other Bay Area colleges and universities during the week in connection with the Palestine question and his country's position on it.

Today, the program begins with a slide discussion on "Contemporary and Traditional Arts and Crafts in Ghana" in Education 117 at 12:15 p.m.

The discussion will be led by Hal Babbitt, administrative assistant to Edgar Kaiser of Kaiser Industries. Babbitt has spent long periods of time in Ghana where Kaiser Industries is building the largest aluminum smelter in Africa near the recently completed Volta Dam. He is also a member of the Board of Directors of the Oakland Museum Association.

Tomorrow, the Speaker's Platform will become a stage for African performing arts. At 12:30 p.m., a variety show is planned which includes music, dance and song from Africa and the Middle East.

Ambassadors Soko and Tawfiq Bo Otor will speak Thursday and Friday respectively. Films from South Africa, Egypt, Zambia, and the Malagasy Republic will be shown. Other films honoring African Freedom Week include "The History of the Negro People" and a series on "African Writers Today."

Also on Friday, a reception is set for the Gallery Lounge. African foods and coffee will be offered from 12 to 3 p.m.

On Saturday, a panel discussion on "Africa—Examination and Evaluation" will be held in the Little Theatre from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Art and crafts exhibits from Africa will be on display in the Gallery Lounge, BSS building and Library throughout the week.

Mad rush on again--Fall advising

The mad rush to see department advisors is on again, today through May 20. Students who do not know the name of their advisors can check with the department office; undeclared majors check with the Advising Office, AD 168.

Students must take the advising record envelope, containing a program planning card, semester grade reports, advanced standing evaluation, and other documents pertaining to their academic program, to the advisor.

Prof granted US patent for her 'gamesmanship'

It's not a bird or a plane, but a game.

What's it named? That's still a secret.

But, Joan Reynertson, Assistant Professor of the R-TV-Film and Creative Arts Department, received a United States Patent Grant for it.

It is a game of strategy in which two players compete with values in the form of game pieces.

Sound confusing?

Joan confessed, the game is not relaxing to play, "it's calculated to drive people out of their minds."

The two players make strategic moves by working with four factors. The factors are known, unknown, fixed and flexible.

Wow!

With the "game device," as Joan calls it, the two players can make up a thousand games.

Oh well, the game is not intended for the general consumer, Joan revealed. It's for people who want "to learn to play war."

Psychologists may find it interesting, she added, because the game also deals with various games of life. That of course, depends on the assigned values of the game pieces.

Even though it may sound confusing, Joan plans to market the game this summer. After all, it took four years to get the patent.

At SF State four years, she received her B.A. and her M.A. at UCLA and her Ph.D. at Stanford. —Steve Mallory

Track team defends coach

By JIM VASZKO

Rallying to the support of coach Arner Gustafson, the SF State track team has categorically denied charges appearing in last Wednesday's Gator to the effect that Gustafson is an incompetent coach.

The accusations had been made by one member of the team.

At a special team meeting last Thursday, attended by 17 of the 25-man traveling squad, vehement denials of any wrong-doing on the part of the coach were reenforced with endorsements of his coaching ability and technique.

Questioning the validity of the charge that Gustafson "expects the team to work out alone," an assistant coach said:

"In previous years Gustafson had only one assistant coach. This year he has four assistants, which means he can delegate a little more of the responsibility to others. But he still supervises the track team and with four assistants the team is certainly not left alone."

Members rally in support of coach Arner Gustafson

Quarter-miler Terry Ward agreed:

"There are so many new freshmen and transfer students on the track team each year, and the coach has got to know each particular style in order to help them improve. And since everyone has improved since the first days of practice, I think it speaks well for the coach."

Distance man Mike Conroy and broad jumper Larry Kruczynski cited times when advice from Gustafson at practice sessions had helped them improve considerably.

Denying that all Gustafson does at practice is pole vault, vaulter John Hall said:

"Gustafson is a well-rounded coach and a great athlete. In practice he runs with the distance men, and the intermediate runners, pole vaults, and throws the discus. There aren't many coaches anywhere who can do this. Our coach is involved with the entire team."

The trackmen ripped the charge that Gustafson is responsible for low team morale. Intermediate hurdler Ed Raymond said:

"In the first place, track is not a team sport like football. It is a group of individual concentrating on their own specialties, so team morale as such does not exist.

"What Gustafson has done is gear the practices in such a way that the team is ready physically and mentally for the conference meet—the only meet that counts in league standings. So if you think of it that way, morale is getting better with each practice."

The only discouraging thing to the team is the necessity of using Lowell High's field for practice sessions. But this is being done because SF State's facilities are being revamped. The discouragement is not a reflection of Gustafson's coaching.

Defending the coach against the charge that he chews out runners for losing races by a few inches, Raymond said:

"If a man runs an intelligent race and loses by a big margin, the coach will often praise him for his hustle. But if a man runs a stupid race and loses by a few inches, then the coach will chew him out."

Half-miler Mike Alter, said that Gustafson has established a feeling of camaraderie with the members of the team. He has even had the cross country team over to his house for dinner."

The only member of the team at the meeting who disagreed with the views of the majority was the distance runner who made the charges in last Wednesday's Gator. But he said his differences with Gustafson were personal feelings and he had no idea that his statements would appear in print because "the reporters didn't take any notes on what I said. I would have never said what I did, if I knew it was going into the paper."

The team did agree with the critic when he said half its members won't be back next season.

The reason? They'll be graduating.

Gustafson replies

Track coach Arner Gustafson said he was "hurt and surprised" by last week's story questioning his coaching ability.

"What really bothered me was not the personal affront, but the fact that the story broke just two days before the conference finals. It could have a damaging effect on the team's performance," Gustafson said.

"It was the type of story that I should have had a chance to defend against. At the very least it should have been taken to team captain George Smith for verification.

When contacted, Smith said the story was not representative of the majority of team members.

Baseabllers rack up sixth consecutive win

By RICHARD R. EMBICK

The SF State baseball team chalked up its sixth straight win last Thursday with a drawn-out 11-3 romp over USF on the Gator diamond.

Nine hits, eight walks, and nine innings gave the Gators their third win in four attempts against the cross-town rivals this year. Last season, SF State had a no-hitter until two this year. Last season, SF State dropped all four contests.

Bob (no-hit) Cavalli had a no-hitter until two were out in the second, when Don shortstop Skip Schaffer lofted a single over short. Cavalli lost his shutout in the sixth when the Dons scored two of its runs off the Gator right hander. Bob O'Gorman came on to pitch the last three frames, and he held the Dons to one run and three hits. Cavalli notched his sixth win in 11 decisions.

The Gators sent 10 men to the plate in the fourth and scored six runs on only four hits. Two walks, two errors, a wild pitch and a stolen base by Jim Barnett, all contributed to the big inning.

Big stickers for the Gators were Bill Pollack with three hits and three runs batted in, and Tom Martinez with two hits and three runs scored. Wayne Morgan drove home two runs and Lon McCasland scored two runs.

USF must have sensed a bad day as they sent home for a new supply of bats before the game began. The bat man didn't arrive until the fourth inning, and by then it was all but over.

The Gators will try to make it seven in a row tomorrow when they play the Santa Clara Broncos at Santa Clara. The game will be under the lights at 7:30 p.m.

If you've never used an electric shaver before, the Norelco 'Flip-Top' Speedshaver® is a great way to find out the easier side of shaving. Its rotary blades stroke whiskers off. Never cut or nick. They won't hurt you. Neither will the price, which is about the same as a year's supply of razor blades and shave cream.

P.S. If you want to spend a little more, get the Norelco Speedshaver 30 (at right). 35% closer shaves. 'Floating heads,' too. And a pop-up trimmer for sideburns. All the trimmings. From shave to price, it's clear about any Norelco—you can't get stung!
