

Enrollment lower; still cramps budget

SF State has again enrolled more students than it can officially support.

Despite a curtailed enrollment this semester of 14,556 students, lowest since spring, 1963, Dean of Admissions Larry Foster has estimated the college will exceed its budgeted annual enrollment by 400 Full Time equivalents (FTE).

(FTE is compiled by dividing the total number of units being taken on campus by 15.)

This semester, Foster reported, enrollment was kept slightly below the FTE limit. However, last semester SF State went over the budgeted ceiling by 890 FTE.

On September 28, the college received an emergency grant of $52,000 to combat severe overcrowding in some courses caused by the unexpected enrollment increase.

Foster said the present enrollment "puts us in comparatively good shape." He added SF State will exceed its budget limits for this academic year by the smallest amount in five years.

The critical factor in SF State's chronic overcrowding has shifted from lack of facilities to lack of funds, Foster stated.

"With new buildings being completed, we should be in good shape for one to two years," Foster said.

Administration officials now worry about recent cuts in SF State's already-tight budget.

Yuen resigns post

By SHELLEY BURRELL

Jack Yuen, SF State coordinator of advising for the past three years has resigned his post to return to his first love—teaching.

In a letter sent yesterday to administrators, Yuen expressed the desire to devote more time to teaching, and especially to the elementary school typewriting-language arts project which he helped create almost five years ago.

Yuen's resignation will become effective August 31. In September he will return to the business department as an associate professor.

In discussing his work, the 33 year-old advising coordinator said he "hates to leave the job because I have tremendous contact with the students."

"It's also a good vantage point to see what makes the campus tick," he said.

As of yet, no replacement for Yuen has been named. He hinted, however, that whoever succeeds him "probably will be someone with student personnel, not teaching, experience."

Dean of Students Ferd D. Reddell, who has the task of finding a new coordinator of advising, said his office has "found no one as of yet."

Commenting on Yuen's resignation, Reddell said, "We're very sorry about it. He's done a fine job."

Yuen, who has been at SF State almost six years, received his bachelor degree from the University of California at Berkeley, his master's from SF State, and his doctor of education degree from Stanford.

Yuen expressed only slight criticism of his job. It stems from the refusal of certain departments to adhere to set policies, especially those dealing with registration.

"I'd rather see us all work as a team, instead of fragments of a team carrying off their own signals," he said.

When Yuen returns to teaching, his main effort will be to revitalize the typewriting-language arts project at Frederic Burk School.

The project is afforded students in grades four through six, and is concerned mainly with teaching children language and grammar skills through the use of the typewritten word.

Among those who wish Yuen weren't leaving his post is Leland Myers, assistant to the vice president, with whom Yuen works closely.

"His contributions have been very great in helping to coordinate the academic program and advising," Myers said.

Yuen's immediate boss, Dorothy E. Wells, associate dean of students, counseling-testing, had this to say about his resignation:

"I hate to lose him. His background in business has been very helpful. He's the kind of person who works very well with students and faculty alike."

"But teaching is his first love," she added.

A quiet picket

A lone picket paced back and forth in front of the new wing to the HLL building Tuesday smoking a stogey and carrying a red-lettered sign.

And he didn't want to say too much about what it was all about.

"Read the sign," he said, "we got to be careful, you see, we don't know who nobody is." He only pointed to a Labor Union Local No. 261 boss who was negotiating with a landscape contractor.

The sign the picket carried was that the Labor Union was protesting the use of non-union labor for the landscaping around the building.

"All contractors must pay union wages," said William Charleston, chief of plant operations, buildings and grounds, "but the State of California does not insist that the contractor hire union help."

The union negotiator, who refused to give his name, said that it is none of the students' business why the union is picketing West Bay Landscapers.

"This is between the contractor and me," he said.

Gov may restore Burk school funds

The storm over Frederic Burk elementary school may be over—for another year at least.

The proposed cut in funds, which would destroy the observation and research facilities of SF State's laboratory school is now being reconsidered by Gov. Pat Brown.

According to Principal Leonard Meshover, the state lawmakers have "rallied to the cause of Frederic Burk school" because of a letter from Hale Champion, Director of Finance, to Senator Eugene McAteer (Dem-SF), a leading opponent of the slash. The letter stated that announcement of Brown's decision will be made public within three weeks.

The drop in funds would have removed seven classroom teachers, one assistant principal, an intermediate stenographer, a half-time nurse and two nursery school positions. Classes would be increased from 23 to 33 students and the nursery school project would be dropped entirely. (The new plan would keep the nursery school under another bill.) The large classes would have made observation and research of the school impossible, according to Meshover.

Debators head east

The Associated Students will give its blessings to the SF State debate team which will leave at 12:30 a.m. tomorrow for Annapolis, Maryland, to compete in a national debate tournament.

AS funds amounting to $900 goes for the expenses of Terry McGann, psychology major, Gordon Johnson, economics major and Lloyd Crisp, associate professor of speech, who will represent SF State from the Forensics Union.

Colleges such as Duke, Notre Dame, Queens and University of Chicago will be among the 66 competing for a top award. The two day contest, February 25 and 26, will involve each college in a series of eight debates.

The topic, "Resolved: That the federal government should establish a national program of public works for the unemployed, was chosen by the National Forensics Union last year.

McGann and Johnson will debate the affirmative four times and the negative four times, each debate lasting one hour. Crisp is attending the national event as an advisor to the SF State team.

Qualities of presentation, evidence, clarity, and organization will be judged and only one winner will be chosen. McGann and Johnson were selected from among 50 members of the Forensics Union. They have been working on the topic more than a semester.

The debaters competed with Sacramento State, Idaho State University, and University of San Francisco last semester on the same topic used for the national debate. They boast a 12 wins, four losses record in these events.

After the contest ends at the Annapolis Naval Academy campus, McGann, Johnson and Crisp will take a two day tour of Washington.

Cartoons in art movies

Animated subjects from five countries will be shown at the SF State Art Movies program today in the Main Auditorium.

The showing is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. free admission. It is being presented by the Associated Students.

The program will include cartoons ranging from Walt Disney's prizewinning "Three Little Pigs," to the Polish film "Dom," a depiction of the subconscious.

Three meets in five days

Gator swimmers lose to Davis; last in Pac AAU

By ROBERT NEUBERT

There is a very tired group of swimmers at SF State this week.

Competing in three meets within five days, the Gator swimming team lost, 52-42, at UC Davis last Friday afternoon, and returned home to participate in the Pacific AAU championships that evening.

After swimming heats at the AAU meet through Sunday, the Gator mermen gasped for breath Monday, and yesterday faced Sacramento State here in a Far Western Conference meet.

SF State, now 2-3 in FWC competition, was edged by the Aggies despite three first places by blond-haired Dirk Van Gelder who won the 200-yard breast stroke, the 200-yard individual medley, and was one of the winning 400-yard medley quartet.

Rich Bowden, Rick Goode

and Don Davis shared in the 400-yard medley victory.

Other firsts were registered by Goode in the 200-yard butterfly stroke and Al Stanbridge in the 200-yard backstroke.

The tired Gators did not make the finals of any events during the three-day AAU championships.

FOOTHILL WINS

Foothill College won the men's division with 133 points to 70 for second-place Santa Clara. Santa Clara won the women's title with 180 points, and Arden Hills was second with 51 points.

Several hundred young swimmers from other colleges and swim clubs crowded the Gator pool. Scores of sleeping bags cluttered the halls in the Men's Gym, and wet competitors flip-flapped through the corridors in wet swim suits.

Van Gelder explained the Gators' lack of success in the AAU meet:

"We were competing against 12-month-a-year swimmers, most of them younger than us. We were emotionally drained after the Davis meet."

SF State meets Arden Hills Swim Club of Sacramento 4 p.m. Friday at the Gator pool.

Hoopsters lead by one in FWC race

Six long weeks after the madness all started the Golden Gator basketball squad finally made it to the top of the Far Western Conference.

The Gators opened the season six weeks ago with an overtime loss to the Cal Aggies. Week by week they struggled up through the ranks until a pair of wins this past weekend pulled them up clear of the other FWC teams.

They did it the hard way—on the road. In Humboldt last Friday the Gators beat the cellar-dwelling Lumberjacks, 78-57, and then Saturday night downed the league-leading Wildcats from Chico State, 94-78.

Last night the Staters entertained the Cal Aggies in the Gator gym.

Over the weekend the two wins were attributed to "complete team efforts" by Gator coach Paul Rundell. The statistics bear out that statement.

Everett (Goose) Adams popped in 44 points in the two games, 29 of them against the Wildcats. Soph forward Joe Galbo scored 40 more himself in the two games while center Jon Crawford controlled the boards.

The two playmakers of the team, guard Denny Lewis and forward Terry Stogner, also contributed heavily to the double-barrelled league wins.

The defending champion University of Nevada will sit by expectantly this week as the Gators did battle last night with the Aggies and will face the Sacramento Hornets this Friday night.

There is only one game left for the Nevadans this season, a Saturday night encounter with the Golden Gators. As the Gators lead the Nevadans by one game at this writing it will be all or nothing for the Reno quintet.

Seasonal statistics reveal that the Gators have four men averaging in double figures—Adams, 15.5 for the team leadership; Galbo 13.0; Lewis 13.0 and Stogner, 10.0.

SF diamondmen buried twice by Stanford nine

A tribe of Indians whooped it up on their reservation last weekend, and the Gator baseball team was scalped 12-0 and 12-4.

Playing its first game of the season Friday at Stanford, SF State managed eight hits, but three Gator pitchers issued 11 walks and several untimely fat pitches.

The Gator bats were colder Saturday, as Stanford hurlers allowed only three hits. Meanwhile, the Indians banged 13 hits off SF's three pitchers.

Stanford bunched seven runs in the third inning Friday to erase a 4-2 SF State lead. Thirteen men went to the plate for the Indians, and seven of them wangled walks.

Saturday Stanford scored four runs in the fifth inning and six in the seventh. The six run frame featured three singles, three walks and two errors.

Despite the losses, there were several bright spots for the Gators.

Coach Bob Rodrigo praised sophomore hurler Ron Fell for his five-inning stint Saturday, and third baseman Dick Schultze for his hitting and fielding both days.

"Fell has an awkward delivery which makes him effective," Rodrigo said. "He's good when he keeps the ball low, and he mixes his fast ball with a change-of-pace curve."

The sophomore thrower has a strong arm, an important asset to the presently shallow Gator pitching staff.

John DeVos, a letterman who alternated between third base and outfield last year, pitched one inning of relief Saturday, and Rodrigo hopes for more mound work for the right-hander.

The Indians presented a well-balanced attack led by junior catcher Jake Hibbs, the second-leading hitter in the CIBA last year and a nominee for All-America honors.

First sacker Greg Middlecoff, second baseman Norm Thatcher and outfielder Larry Cox added nine safeties to the Stanford cause.

The Gators played USF yesterday at the Dons' diamond. They face Santa Clara at 1 p.m. Saturday for the Gators' first home game.

Gator gymnasts romp over Nevada but lose 3 others

Evils continued to fly out of coach Jerry Wright's miniature Pandora's box of gymnastics last weekend as the Gators suffered three losses against one win.

Last Friday the Gators, now 2-3 for the season, rolled over Nevada, 73-29, but were walloped by Sacramento State 96½-22½.

Sacramento won the Far Western Conference championship with the triangular meet victory, and SF State insured itself of second place, although it has one FWC meet left.

Bob Sakai earned five firsts against Nevada to lead the Gators. He won the floor exercise, side horse, side bar, parallel bar and all-around competition. Don Hughes had a first on the still rings.

The best the Gators could do against Sacramento was a tie for third on the long horse by Sakai.

Tom Fester, one of the team's leading gymnasts, was injured in the floor exercise competition, and was unable to compete in the triangular meet the next day. Despite a bruised knee, Fester still managed a second on the parallel bar and high bar before he was forced to the sidelines.

Saturday the Gators lost to San Jose, 75½-43½, and to the Sacramento Turners, 69-54.

Against San Jose, Hughes won the still rings and Larry Booth had a second in floor exercise. Sakai led SF scorers with 19 points.

Sakai won the high bar and Sam Cobb the trampoline against the Turners. Gary Fry was second on the long horse and Hughes second on the still rings. Fry and Hughes had their highest scores of the season against the Turners.

The gymnastics squad was bolstered Saturday by Al Harmon, who placed third on the trampoline. He started training for the first time ever several months ago. —Neubert
