FALL STAFF CONFERENCE 1966

CLIMATE FOR LEARNING

WELCOME - - -

This week finds us gathered on campus after a summer of widely-varied activity. For many of you, it has been a time of relaxation, and for others, it has been one of study and personal enrichment. For yet others of us it was a period of preparation for the new academic year.

Regardless of how we spent the summer months, the new year represents a challenge of giant proportion for all of us. An era in Cal Poly's history has passed and it remains up to us — the faculty and staff — with the help of the college's students and alumni, to build upon this history and continue to move forward. At the same time, we must continue toward our goal of excellence in all of our programs.

All of us, including those of you who are meeting with us for the first time as members of the Cal Poly family, have a vital role to play as we face this challenge. I urge each one of you to join with me in the varied activities, tasks, and deliberations of the college community during the coming months. If we all join in and do our part, I'm sure next spring will find us reviewing the year proud of the successful manner in which we met our challenge.

In conclusion, let me be among the first to welcome you. To you "old timers," I say welcome back. To those of you who are with us for the first time, I wish you a warm welcome and am looking forward to meeting each of you personally in the days ahead.
