Dear Mr. Tappan,

I cannot do better than to hand you a note of Prof. Child as to subject of your note of May 22.

This being understood he said to become a subscriber to the proposed translation.

Yours truly

Dear Mr. Winsor.

No one who is engaged with the History of Fiction - and the number of those so engaged was never so great as now - can fail to regard the proposal that Captain Barton's translation of The Thousand and One Nights should be printed for libraries and schools, with very great interest. We of course should very much desire to have

MS. A. 9. 2. 10. 11. 12.

Dear Mr. Weston

As one who is engaged with the history of Freetown - and the number of those to express an interest in great as now - can find no person the proposal that Captain Clinton translation of the Freetown and the right should be printed for library and the rest, with very great interest. The of course should be printed down below a copy, and many libraries in America could be eager for one.

I do not want the printing delayed for any editing. but if Capt. Clinton could attend to his translation the copy found in other places than the one he adds, the utility of the work would be enhanced.
These might make another volume.

Yours,

J. J. Child
