

push back with your feet to keep from sliding forward and off the chair. The immense crowd of people are ~~st~~. orderly and quiet and almost motionless. A veritable sea of dark eyed, oval faces are intently listening to word the manager has to say and every eye seems to be upon him as he speaks. Now and then you notice one of the older Japanese men listening to some one beside them.
There must be first generation (jissei) Japanese who do not speak or understand English, listening to a younger 2nd generation (nisei) translate in the Japanese language what the manager is saying. This is being done so quietly that