The meeting was called to order by Chair Constable at 3:38 p.m. in Thomas 117.

2. Agenda. MSC to approve the Agenda as distributed.
3. Discussion of the budget framework of Continuing and Global Education

L. Zelezny, S. Moore and R. Statham presented the basic operation of Continuing and Global Education (CGE) followed by information on its financial structure.

CGE operates by funding all activities internally and receives no state support. Financially, CGE provides funds in excess of operational needs back to Schools and Colleges, the Provost and the State. CGE is only permitted to retain funds for six months of operation, accounting for ~ $1.8 M.

CGE operates ~ 50 different programs each with unique characteristics, however, they can be broadly classified into (i) Self-Support terms; (ii) Special Sessions; (iii) Extension classes; and (iv) Open University. These categories differ in the details of the mechanism of revenue generation and the salary schedule used to determine faculty pay. The greatest source of income to CGE is generally Special Sessions (e.g., MA in Public Admin; RN to BSN program) that accounts for ~66% of revenue.

The greatest expense for CGE are salaries and benefits for instructors followed by funds returned to the Schools/Colleges and the State through various mechanisms depending on the details of the exact program. Key recipients of returned funds reported under operating expenses are:

The Dean of the School/College through which the program is being offered (via the Continuing Education Revenue Fund; ~$500 to $800 K per year).

The State General Fund and State Controller's Office (~$200 to $400 K per year).

The Chancellor's Office (~$50-100 K per year).

Funds remaining following operating expenses and return of funds to the entities above are deemed surplus and returned to the Office of the Provost through the Academic Development and Planning Fund and totals ~ $1 to $1.5 M per year.
