

McGovern on Vietnam:

No more deaths.
No more prisoners.
No more war.

More than three years and one secret plan ago, this country was supposed to end the war in Vietnam. Since Richard Nixon took office, 20,000 Americans and hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians have died. And we are still fighting.

Vietnam smoke screen

Our troops are gradually leaving Vietnam, but are we really withdrawing?

Laser-guided bombs now rain from the skies and strike with devastating accuracy. Harbors are mined. And every three days another American is led into a North Vietnamese prison cell.

Numbers do not tell the story of human life. Ten thousand troops withdrawn can never atone for one more American's death. A child on fire, running from a napalm-bombed school in the South, does not have the pain relieved by a low American casualty list.

There is no more time.

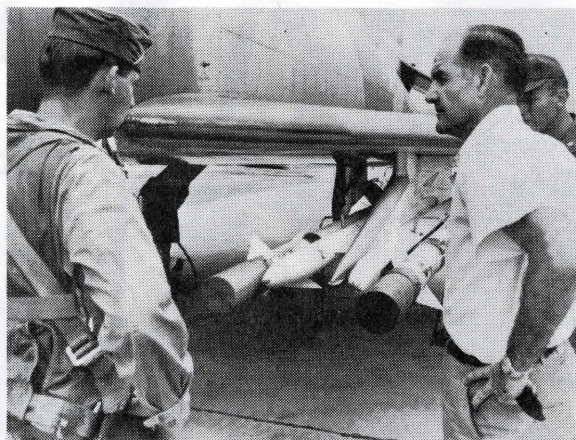

Come home America

On Inauguration day, a McGovern Administration will announce the total withdrawal of all land, air and sea forces from Indochina to be accomplished within ninety days. Definite measures will be taken to assure the safe release of our prisoners of war. Our embrace of the Thieu regime will end.

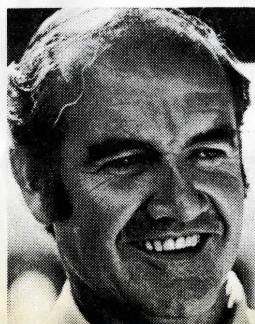

The United States has no national interest in Vietnam. We had no reason for fighting there in the first place. Our continued involvement in this conflict is ruining our economy, killing our young men, and tearing our people apart.

What we do from this moment on will be the true measure of our greatness as a nation.
