

MASS COMMUNICATION

The School of Graduate Studies provides administrative coordination for graduate interdisciplinary programs and courses.

The interdisciplinary master of arts degree in mass communication is based on the equivalent of an undergraduate major in journalism or radio-television broadcasting. Supervised by a joint committee of representatives from the Departments of Journalism and Radio-Television, the program has options in print media and electronic media administered by the two respective departments. Fifteen of the 30 required units for the degree must be in graduate mass communication courses; 12 units must be core courses. For specific requirements, consult the departmental graduate advisers or see the Graduate Bulletin.

MOSS LANDING MARINE LABORATORIES

The California State University and Colleges began operation of the Moss Landing Marine Laboratories, Moss Landing, California, in the fall semester 1966. This facility functions as a seaside extension of the campuses of six cooperating state universities (Fresno, Hayward, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Jose, and Stanislaus). It offers full-time course work in marine biology, oceanography, and other marine sciences for majors in either the biological (botany, biology, zoology) or physical sciences whose objectives include further graduate study, teaching the sciences, or research in the marine sciences. Properly qualified upper division and graduate students may enroll on the CSU, Fresno campus for a term of instruction at Moss Landing and earn resident credit for such course work. See Geology Department for on-campus course work in general oceanography and geology courses related to marine science.

Space reservation is required for attending Moss Landing Marine Laboratories. Forms for
