Jerusalem 1987 program

Plans have been finalized for Jerusalem 1987, a program of intensive study and travel in the Holy Lands, co-sponsored by the California State University, Fresno Armenian Studies Program, the CSUF Armenian Students Organization, and the Armenian Patriarchate of Jerusalem.

The three week program will be held July 13 through August 3. The group will be headquartered in the Armenian quarter of the Old City of Jerusalem. The course of studies will include a history of the Armenians in the Holy Lands, and classes on Armenian language, art, history, architecture, and the Armenian Church.

Participants will have the opportunity to acquaint themselves with an Armenian community whose presence dates from the first century. In addition, the cultural life of various groups will be examined. Field trips will be conducted to the holiest sites in Christianity, Judaism, and Islam. The extensive archaeological remains from the centuries of invaders and conquerors will also be studied.

The Banquet: A Distinguished and Festive Event to Honor Prof. Sanjian

The community has been aware, in the past few weeks, that the graduate students in Armenian studies at UCLA are planning to celebrate the 30-year contribution to Armenian studies of Professor Avedis K. Sanjian, who first served at Harvard (1957-65) and has been at UCLA since 1965. The celebration will be in the form of a banquet on March 7th at the Sheraton-Universal Hotel.

Who are these students? How did the plan evolve? What kind of program is anticipated on March 7th? Certainly these are some of the questions that have arisen in the minds of our readers.

It began early last year with informal discussions amongst ourselves about such things as how far the Armenian Studies Program at UCLA had come since the 1960s, how large our numbers were at the graduate level, how much we owed our professors, and how proud we were that the Narekatsi Chair of Armenian Studies was the first endowed chair to be established at UCLA. That was one step away from the recognition that Prof. Sanjian had been at UCLA more than twenty years and, if we added the years he had served at Harvard, it would make thirty years of committed teaching and distinguished scholarship, by spring of 1987. Furthermore, we were aware that Prof. Sanjian was the first man to put Armenian studies on a regulated, professional, academic level in the United States.

In this thirty-year period, he had touched the minds of hundreds of students who had knocked on the master's door asking to learn Grabar, to become more fluent in modern Armenian, to learn about Armenian history, literature, and other aspects of the culture. Furthermore, a handful of us, more daring and ambitious than others, had chosen to make Armenian studies our life's work—a choice that meant more grueling work and closer contact with the professor—and we came to know him better than others. He was not only a respected teacher, but also a benevolent and beloved guide and mentor, a willing helper in moments of need and stress, a friend and a warm, caring human being.

We suddenly felt that on the 30th anniversary of Prof. Sanjian's distinguished career in Armenian studies, we could make a gesture, on behalf of all the students whose lives he has touched, to show him how much we appreciated him and his work and how proud we were to be his students. And we felt that by honoring this one man, this shining example of academic and scholarly achievement, we would also be honoring all those involved in the all-important world of Armenian studies; we would be honoring Armenian studies.

It was in July 1986 that the "Committee for the Commemoration of Prof. Avedis K. Sanjian's 30-year Contribution to Armenian Studies" was formed with the complete assent of every graduate student in Armenian studies on campus, whether they were majoring in literature or history, and with the encouragement of all the former students, including those who were geographically far from the UCLA campus.

The Committee is composed of the following graduate students: Gia Aivazian (Literature—Chair), Apo Boghigian (Literature—Vice-Chair, Jubilee Booklet), Rita Vorperian (Literature—Recording Secretary), Garine Zetlian (History—Corresponding Secretary), Aram Arkun (History—Treasurer), Rouben Adalian (History—Publicity), Rubina Peroomian (Literature—Publicity), Isgouhi Kassahian (History—Banquet and Tickets), Hasmig Tashjian (Literature—Banquet), Stephan Astourian (History—Member), Barlow Der-Mugrdechian (Literature—Member), Levon Marashlian (History—Member), and Vahram Shemmassian (History—Member).

Once the Committee had been organized, plans were set into motion with the encouraging support of the University administration, the UCLA Department of Near Eastern Languages and Cultures and the Von Grunebaum Center for Near Eastern Studies, all of which were thrilled by the idea that Prof. Sanjian, a highly respected member of the UCLA faculty, was being honored by his students.

One of the early steps the Committee took was to approach about a dozen leading Armenian organizations in the Los Angeles community (their names already cited in an earlier article) to act as a support group since the intent of the Committee was to make the event a community-wide happening. All the organizations, without exception, were delighted with our plans and expressed goodwill and willingness to help. Therefore, we now publicly thank them for all the support and help they have extended to us.

Quite a few notable figures from the academic world and the community will grace the Banquet of March 7th. We are thrilled that former UCLA Chancellor and until recently Chairman of the Executive Committee of Times Mirror Corp., Franklin D. Murphy, who was a major figure in the establishment of the Armenian Studies Program at UCLA in the 1960s, will be present and will participate in the formal portion of the program. The featured speakers will be Speros Vryonis, Jr., Professor of Byzantine and early Turkish History at UCLA and a friend of Professor Sanjian since their Harvard days, and Peter Cowe, Assistant Professor of Armenian at Columbia University.

Several members of the University administration will be present, including Vice-Chancellor for Institutional Relations, Elwin Svenson, Dean of the Humanities Division of the School of Letters and Science, Prof. Herbert Morris, and Vice-Chancellor

Prof. Avedis Sanjian's Jubilee

By GIA AIVAZIAN

Your Grace, Abp. Vatche Hovsepian
Honoree, Professor Avedis Sanjian
Ladies and Gentlemen

It is with a heart filled with joy and pride that I, on behalf of the UCLA graduate students in Armenian Studies, welcome you to this very special and unprecedented "happening" — this marking of the 30th anniversary of a life filled with giving, with the shaping of minds; this very special occasion to honor a distinguished scholar in Armenian studies, a highly respected member of the UCLA faculty, and our own beloved teacher and mentor, Professor Avedis K. Sanjian.

It is an unprecedented and special event because in the 30-year history of Armenian Studies in the United States, this is the first instance of recognition of a professor's overall contribution to the field as teacher and scholar by his own students — an act enthusiastically supported by scholars, friends, organizations and institutions nationally and internationally.

It began early last year with informal discussions among ourselves. As we talked "of shoes — and ships — and sealing wax — of cabbages — and kings", we were taking stock of ourselves, of our professors, of the achievements of the Armenian Studies Program at UCLA. We talked of the directions our lives were taking and how all this was closely connected with the existence of the Program and the professors without whom all this would not have been possible. We considered our role in the community's present and future reality, and we certainly discussed Armenian studies yesterday and today.

All this was not far from the recognition that our own Professor Sanjian was intimately connected with the past, present and future of Armenian Studies in the United States; indeed, that Spring 1987 would mark the 30th anniversary of his career in serving the educational and intellectual needs of his people, in preparing future scholars. The most wonderful thought of all was the realization that this man was the first, the pioneer, in launching Armenian studies in the United States on a full-time, professional basis in an academic environment. Would it not be marvelous if we could celebrate the 30th anniversary of Prof. Sanjian's distinguished career and by so doing also celebrate the 30th birthday of Armenian studies in the U.S. — a birth which began at Harvard in the spring of 1957.

How splendid it would be, we said, if we could make a gesture, on behalf of all the students whose lives he had touched at some point during these thirty years, to show our gratitude for all he had given and our pride in being his students. And we knew, that by honoring this one man, this exemplar of academic and scholarly achievement, we would be honoring all those dedicated to Armenian studies, indeed, we would be honoring Armenian studies.

We also knew that our tribute should embrace the whole community and the academic world at large since we felt that Prof. Sanjian did not belong only to us.

Our action, symbolizing the love we felt for him and the esteem we held him in, took the form of this banquet and the beautiful Jubilee booklet marking the occasion. These two activities are the product of the enthusiastic cooperation of the 16 organizations and institutions that were asked to act as support groups and which are listed in the booklet, — of the Armenian press, radio and TV nationwide; of the UCLA Administrative Offices; the Von Grunebaum Center for Near Eastern Studies; the Dept. for Near Eastern Languages and Cultures; the Public Affairs Dept.; the Technical Services Dept. of the Univ. Research Library. And we thank them all from the bottom of our hearts.

We are grateful for the financial support rendered us by members of the Armenian community nationwide.

What a joy it was to receive the congratulatory letters and messages coming from across the nation, from Europe, the Near East and from far away Armenia — all of them vibrant with love and esteem for the professor and full of joy, in the event marking the celebration of his achievements, full of praise for us, the students; for being the initiators of this endeavor.

And what of you, our guests of tonight, and co-celebrants who, by your very presence are participating in this expression of appreciation of Prof. Sanjian's dedicated devotion to the intellectual needs of his people.

Here, I would like to present the members of the Commemorative Committee composed of graduate students specializing either in Armenian literature — under the direction of Prof. Sanjian, or in Armenian history — under the direction of Prof. Hovannian, and one member specializing in Linguistics:

Vice-Chairman, Mr. Apo Boghigian; Treasurer, Mr. Aram Arkun; Recording Secretary, Ms. Rita Vorperian; Corresponding Secretary, Ms. Garine Zetlian; Publicity co-Chairman, (English) as of this month Dr. Ruben Adalian; (Armenian) Mrs. Rubina Peroomian; Banquet and Tickets Chair, Ms. Igouhi Kassakian; Banquet co-Chair, Ms. Hasmig Tashjian; Members: Mr. Stephan Astourian, Mr. Barlow Der Mugrdechian, Mr. Levon Marashian, Mr. Galoust Mardiressian and Mr. Vahram Shemmassian.

All these members of the committee have been enthusiastically involved in this endeavor since July of 1986, and the members of the core group have done yeoman work throughout.

Mass. Poetess Appears in Fresno, CA

FRESNO, CA - "Diana Der Hovanessian, a brilliant poet, has opened up the book of her people to the English speaking world." D.M. Thomas in the (London) Times Literary Supplement.

"I have read her translations with true pleasure. How can we fail to be grateful to Diana Der Hovanessian for this memorable gift?" Robert Penn Warren.

"A striking and original artist who is also the foremost translator of Armenian poetry." Hervert A. Kenny, book editor, Boston Globe.

These are only a few of the many comments about poet Diana Der Hovanessian of Cambridge, Massachusetts who will be in Fresno this week to present some of her most recent works. Der Hovanessian will read on Thursday, April 2, 1987 at 12:30 p.m. on the California State University, Fresno campus. On Friday, April 3, 1987 at 8:00 p.m. she will be the guest of honor at a program/reception sponsored by the Hamazkayin Armenian Cultural Association, the CSU Fresno Armenian Studies Program, and the Armenian Students Organization, which will take place in the Social Hall of the Pilgrim Armenian Congregational Church of Fresno.

D.M. Thomas, in a extensive review of Diana Der Hovanessian and Marzbed Margossian's Anthology of Armenian Poetry, said, "A few, very few, books open up a new world, and this for me is one of them. By some miracle, an American-Armenian poet has shown us 'the book of her people,' from the fourth century to the present, transmuting the originals into an English that is supple and strong, timeless and contemporary. The miracle clearly has an explanation: Diana Der Hovanessian is a brilliant poet (and I say that without having yet read any of her poems); and also, like all the best translation, her anthology is an act of love."
