Committee of 37 seeks lower food prices in Commons

A new campus organization with the mysterious name of the Committee of XXXVII has been formed "to obtain better service and fair prices in the Commons," according to chairman Rock Scully.

An official on-campus organization as of Thursday, Scully calls his group 37 because that is a prime number (a number divisible by no number except itself and one.)

Scully, a graduate student in German, is calling for "a democratic vote" to determine how the price situation in the Commons should be handled.

He does not advocate a boycott. He believes lower prices can be obtained by negotiating with the SF State Foundation which operates the Commons.

"What we do depends on the reaction of the students," Scully said.

Suggestion boxes will be placed around the campus this week for students to submit their ideas about the Commons.

Scully said he had several people getting menus from local restaurants, cafeterias and Bay Area institutions.

"I expect to find that the Commons is as high or higher than commercial restaurants," Scully said.

SF State Ed professor dies at 49

Leighton H. Johnson, professor of education at SF State for the past eight years, died last week at Mills Memorial Hospital in San Mateo.

He was 49 years old.

Regarded as an authority on California's junior college system and British education, Johnson was graduated from the University of California with honors in 1936.

He received his Doctor of Philosophy degree in education in 1951 and taught in Oakland's public schools from 1946 to 1949. Before coming to SF State he taught at the University of New Mexico and Michigan State College.

He is survived by his wife and two children. The family live in Burlingame.

Marijuana -- 'it is good for you'

LeMar group here?

LeMar (Legalized Marijuana), a group of pickets who advocate the abolishment of the current marijuana laws, wants to establish a campus club.

According to Terry Kelly, an SF State English major and member of LeMar, the group has asked the administration for permission to bring the club on campus.

Kelly's group wants to overthrow the "unconstitutional" laws that bar the use of marijuana. "It's kind of an obscene word so we want to wash it off and see what is underneath," said Kelly.

The purpose of the proposed club will be to "try and make sure everybody knows what marijuana is," he added.

According to Kelly, although marijuana is considered a narcotic, it is not addictive or harmful.

Kelly, a former marijuana smoker, maintains "as a matter of fact, it is good for you."

"You feel more of what is going on, like the grass. It sharpens your attention to anything you don't normally notice."

Florence Schwartz, activities counselor, said Kelly had the right to oppose marijuana laws, but he could not advocate that students use marijuana.

LeMar came into the local spotlight recently by picketing in Union Square with signs urging the support of marijuana. The pickets drew the wrath of a female evangelist and irate teen-agers.

Later, one of the advocates marched into City Hall, lit a reefer and blew smoke into a police inspector's face and demanding, "If I have committed a crime, arrest me." He is now awaiting trial.

Kelly freely admits there are marijuana smokers on the SF State campus, but insists, "It's the people who don't know about marijuana who have to be informed."

Students form to fight Prop 14

An ephemeral organization was formed on campus Friday which has only six weeks to coordinate, promote their cause and finally disband after the November 3 elections—the Students Against Proposition 14.

Proposition 14 is the proposed state constitutional amendment that would nullify present laws combating housing discrimination and would prohibit state, county and local governments from enacting future fair housing legislation.

The first meeting of the group was called to "provide autonomy and organize students to help defeat Proposition 14," according to acting chairman Iris Hart.

A proposed constitution, which specified membership eligibility for all SF State students, faculty and staff was approved.

Attendance at the initial meeting numbered 25 students, including a student from Hastings Law School who had heard about the planned meeting and wanted to "volunteer his services."

Primarily organized as a campus movement, the group anticipates eventual community involvement projects.

California chairman of the Youth Against Prop. 14, student John Moulds, cited the need for publicity in Southern California. He explained it as a "Peace Corps-type movement to provide aid below Santa Barbara."

Proposed activities include fund-raising projects to enable further organization and publicity; sale of bumper stickers on campus; debates, speakers and a workshop.

The workshop, sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, is planned to "encourage students to be informed about the issues and to eradicate misinformation in the community."

The workshop is scheduled for Saturday, September 26 at 10 a.m. in the Gallery Lounge. According to the acting chairman refreshments will be served, but it is essentially a bring-your-own-lunch meeting.

Further activities proposed are movies, including "Race and Property Values," "Segregation Western Style," and coordination with other anti-Prop. 14 groups in the area to prevent "overlap."

"If too many people ring the same doorbells, we may lose more votes than we'll get," Iris Hart commented.

The state organization of Youth Against Prop. 14 was formed last April. It has 18 chapters in the Bay Area and 17 in Southern California.

The SF State chapter is under the sponsorship of Mark Linenthal, assistant director of the Poetry Center.

Registration: 'It's not very good'

Ever since there have been enough students at SF State to make a good-sized crowd, lines have formed every Fall and Spring by students waiting to register for classes.

And despite constant modifications of the registration process, it doesn't appear that the situation will change for some time.

Ray Sparks, chairman of traffic, admits the present system "is not very good" but said, "it is the best we've come up with so far, and I know of no immediate plans to change it."

But many students who get sore feet from standing, wonder why the procedure can't be simplified. They suggest UC Berkeley's method of registering by mail as an alternative.

By this system, 11,000 continuing Cal students mailed in their registration fees for this semester. They still had to go from class to class to get instructors' signatures on their study lists (similar to program planning sheets.)

The other 17,000 students had to stand in line.

Nancy Camozzi, SF State director of Orientation-Registration (O-R), said the O-R Board considered the UC method, but rejected it when the Berkeley registrar explained it was not much better than SF State's.

For the past year and a half, registration lines have been moving more smoothly and quickly. But some registration workers think it will be pre-enrolling which will eventually make the traditional all-night vigils obsolete.

By this method, which has become widespread throughout most departments, hundreds of students—including freshmen—were able to reserve the classes they most needed.

But there were hundreds more who knew nothing of pre-enrollment procedures. For them, registration did not improve.

And until all classes are pre-enrolled, it is likely the long, long lines will remain.

Birth control advice legal or illegal--court battle rages

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court was asked last week to declare unconstitutional Connecticut's 85-year-old birth control law.

The law prohibits the use of contraceptives and makes it illegal to give advice about their use.

The statute was attacked in an appeal by Dr. C. Lee Buxton, medical director of the Planned Parenthood League of Connecticut, and Mrs. Richard W. Griswold, executive director of the league after their conviction on charges of giving advice on the use of contraceptives.

The appeal said the case raised fundamental questions of personal liberty and property rights. The state law, the appeal papers said, regulates the practice of medicine in an arbitrary, unreasonable and unscientific manner.

"Of course," the appeal said, "the state may impose reasonable regulations on the practice of medicine, but a law which permits a doctor to abort his patient to save her life but prohibits advice for the use of the most effective means of preventing pregnancy and death has a negligible claim to reasonableness."

Master's degree

Students who have a baccalaureate degree and who wish to begin study toward a master's degree or advanced credential must apply for admission to classified graduate status in a specified program. Information and application forms are available at the Office of Admissions (Administration Building, Room 160) and the Graduate Division Office (Administration Building, Room 171).

Not more than 12 units of work completed in unclassified graduate status may be accepted for credit toward a master's degree or advanced credential.

Organization cards

All organizations must file three (3) organization cards listing officers for the Fall 1964 Semester in the Activities Office, Room 166, Administration Building.

The deadline for filing cards is Thursday, October 8. If officers for the Fall Semester

Registration for the Graduate Record Examinations scheduled to be given on Saturday, October 17, closes on September 25. Registration forms are available in the Graduate Division Office, Administration Building, Rm. 171. The Aptitude Test is one of the requirements for admission to classified graduate status in programs leading to a master's degree or an advanced credential. The Area Tests or the Advanced Tests are required for advancement to candidacy in a number of fields. Students should consult the Graduate Division Bulletin to determine the requirements in their graduate major. Students signing up for these examinations must be currently enrolled, must have been enrolled in the college within the last year, or must have received a permit to register for the subsequent semester.

Master program

Students who expect to earn their master's degree at the end of this semester must submit contract programs to the Office of the Dean of the Graduate Division, Administration Building, Rm. 171 on or before October 2. Before being filed at the office, the contract programs must be approved by the candidate's graduate major and related field advisors, and by the graduate committee of the candidate's major field. A candidate is required to complete at least six units of his contract program after submitting it to the Dean of the Graduate Division.

SF State coed wins beauty title

A pretty SF State coed, Marcie Hinton, was picked as Miss San Francisco Flower Show which took place at the Hall of Flowers in Golden Gate Park in August.

Miss Hinton, a senior education major, and four princesses were crowned by Mayor Shelley on August 24.

NOTICE To Patrons of the Bookstore

As part of its objective to render additional services to the College Community, the San Francisco State College Foundation is pleased to announce that effective September 1, 1964 patrons of THE BOOKSTORE will be receiving a 3 per cent reduction on all merchandise purchased.

This reduction will be accomplished by THE BOOKSTORE absorbing the State Sales Tax of 3 per cent levied on all merchandise and passing the savings on to patrons in the form of reduced prices. (A 1 per cent County Sales Tax will still be charged.)

This reduction has been implemented by the Board of Governors of the San Francisco State College Foundation after extensive study of inquiries on the feasibility of achieving lower prices. The Board of Governors hopes that patrons of THE BOOKSTORE find this reduction beneficial and satisfactory.

Pilferers picked a purse or two

Last week, thieves in this realm of higher learning did not indulge in the intricate practice of picking a pocket or two. Indeed, they concentrated on robbing women's unguarded pocketbooks:

• Wednesday, a slightly-built young man entered HLL 207, walked straight to a lady's purse, removed the wallet containing $130, and promptly left the premises.

• Tuesday, while orientation counselors were giving instruction on stage in the Main Auditorium, a thief removed seven wallets from pocketbooks placed in the last row seats in the rear of the Auditorium.

• Tuesday, a woman instructor in the Music Department had her wallet stolen from her purse when she was out of the room.

According to Harold Harroun, AS Business Manager in charge of lost and found, there seemed to be a rise in the number of money thefts compared with former registrations.

Wayne M. Beery, Campus security officer whose policemen were assigned to the fees section of the Gym during registration, said there were no reported thefts in the Gym during pre-registration or Thursday's registration.

In reference to thefts away from the Gym, Beery said if there is any honor among thieves, they should be considerate enough to discard pilfered wallets in a mailbox instead of garbage cans or bushes.

If money or articles have been lost or found they should be turned into Hut T-1. Money and valuables unclaimed after one year will be turned over to the finders.

First man in comes out sore

By ED BASCOMB

Frank Brown, sore and slightly disgruntled from a 10-hour wait, entered the gym at 7:30 a.m. Thursday expecting to be registered in 30 minutes.

He walked out two and a half hours later with 18 units—but disappointed because he didn't get the schedule he wanted despite his lengthy vigil on the gym's cement steps.

Brown, a sophomore chemistry major, was the first one inside the gym Thursday but found that the anthropology and humanities courses he wanted were already closed.

Brown believes the new widespread pre-enrollment procedure caused the classes he wanted to be closed. (Most campus departments reserved class cards for students taking upper division courses. Incoming freshmen were allocated three general education courses.)

Brown did not know about the pre-enrollment system. He said many of his fellow campers were also unaware of pre-enrollment.

stay in great shape through lots of hard wear. And easy care will keep them in great shape.

All the big styles come with the extras of Du Pont fibers. Just make sure the label says "Dacron", "Orlon", "Lycra", "Antron" nylon, Du Pont nylon . . . and, in shoes, new "Corfam". Stop and see your favorites at SMITH'S, Oakland.
