Dear Al, Blinn and Jane: -- (In alphabetical order)

Heartiest congratulations on your success in the recent election. I am so very pleased that each of you won. I've even thought of congratulating myself, as I just can't remember when an election went 100% the way I voted.

AL: You have devoted much of your life to this city, and you richly deserve the honor of being our first elected Mayor. I am sure you will bring the same capability and integrity to this office that has characterized your entire career.

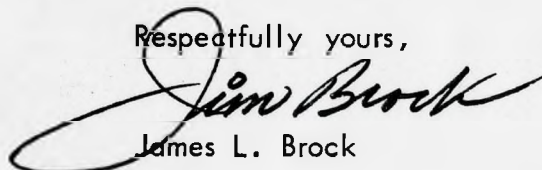

BLINN: Your fine showing in this race proves your popularity, and the fact that a large portion of Oxnard's voters have confidence in your ability and your own good judgement. You are a valuable addition to the council.

JANE: Your dedication and hard work for what you believe to be best for our city deserved the approval that was reflected in your decisive reelection. Your strong support for an Oxnard College Campus is especially commendable. Although you know that four years ago I did not vote for you, this time I was pleased and proud to cast my vote for your reelection.

I firmly believe that Oxnard is fortunate to have each of you in City Government, and feel that you will individually and collectively do much to improve our town. Hopefully, much of the bickering of previous councils may become history.

Best regards, and best of luck.

Respectfully yours,

James L. Brock
