

Housing procedure outlined

"We cannot change the thinking of San Francisco residents, but we do try to protect SF State students against discrimination by landlords."

This statement, by Dr. Edmund C. Hallberg, associate dean of students (activities), was made in reply to a Gater inquiry regarding an incident involving a Kenya student attending SF State.

In explaining procedures followed when a complaint is registered, Dr. Hallberg and Housing Coordinator George D. Changaris stated that the listing is immediately removed. A letter is then sent to the landlord informing him of the nature of the complaint.

Changaris stated that the landlord is not given a few days to "think it over." He went on to say that the burden of proof lies with the landlord, who must appear in person at the housing office to defend himself. Until a particular case is resolved the listing stays off the board.

Arthur Sheridan, co-chairman of the Human Relations commission, said the commission is investigating the housing discrimination case, involving an African student.

Sheridan requested that other students who feel they have been discriminated against contact him in Annex D.

In regard to the incident reported in the Gater last Thursday, Dr. Hallberg said that the students involved came to his office while he was in a staff meeting and demanded immediate action. "I told them that I was busy with a meeting and wouldn't be able to take any action at that moment. As soon as the meeting was over I met with the students." Dr. Hallberg said that after talking to the students he went out to the board and removed the listing. He stated that he called the landlady and informed her of the complaint.

Changaris said that a letter had also been sent. "As of yet we have received no reply. Our policy is that the landlord involved is guilty until he proves himself otherwise. Therefore the listing is still off the board."

Changaris stated that because SF State is located in a residential area, virtually all of the listings are for no more than four students. He said that he doubted that the Housing Office could ever afford a staff to investigate and approve housing before it is listed. Over 3,000 listings are filed with the office each year.

Dr. Hallberg stated that the Housing Office will conduct an investigation to determine how widespread discrimination is. "We will endeavor to adapt our procedures to insure that such incidents don't occur."

Cultural Affairs Senator speaks

Continued access to West Berlin vital

By BRIAN FARLEY

The importance of keeping access to West Berlin open to maintain its economic and cultural life against the "Brutal forces that surround us," was related by Dr. Joachim Tibertius, Senator for Cultural Affairs, West Berlin.

Dr. Tibertius spoke for the AS College Lecture Series Friday on the topic, "West Berlin: A Political and Economic Analysis." Originally scheduled to speak in the Main Auditorium, his talk was moved to the Little Theater because of a smaller than expected audience.

He explained that West Berlin lacking in natural resources, is dependent upon those raw materials transported to it. Sealing off the 110 mile access route through Communist Germany would be a death blow to its economy.

He stressed that West Berlin is a cultural as well as an industrial center of Germany. He added that a greater exchange of people and ideas between West Berlin and the US would help us to understand the people of Berlin and their problem, as well as expanding the German culture.

Previously, Berlin was a unifying force of life in all German matters, but today "One can hardly say there is not one family in West Berlin that is not affected by the wall," he pointed out.

"Those who know Berlin, know it is a beautiful city of arts, theater, music and a versatile way of life, and that we must work to keep it free and alive," he said.

Dr. Tibertius stated that the people of West Berlin have to live with the cold war and a dividing wall "which cannot be accepted as permanent."

"We must try together to be open to the absolute spirit of science and art," he concluded.

The Berlin Wall consists not only of a wall in the conventional sense, but whole buildings were bricked up to form part of the barrier. The wreath and cross in the foreground of the picture marks the grave of an East Berliner who died on that spot trying to escape.

Proposal for student majority on Foundation Board tabled

AS President Jay Folberg's hopes for establishing a student majority on the SF Foundation Board of Governors by adding two voting students to the nine-man board were hit hard Thursday afternoon when the proposal was tabled.

AS Treasurer Tom Ramsey delivered a crippling blow when he said that he knew what side his feelings were on, but that he wasn't convinced that a student majority would be a wise thing.

Ramsey admitted that a student majority during the present AS administration would probably function well, but asked what would happen three or four years from now if a "Calvin Coolidge" type is AS president.

Folberg defended his proposal on two grounds. In the first place, he said, seeing that the 14,000 students on campus are the Foundation's primary patrons, it only stands to reason that they should possess a majority on the Board.

Secondly, Folberg reasoned, a student majority would create a "psychological lift" for the students and make them feel more a part of the Foundation's operation. He added that it would put the Foundation in a more favorable position with the student body.

Folberg's proposal stipulated that the two additional student members be chosen from the residence halls.

A 30 minute discussion followed. A motion was made to table the discussion until the next meeting. Ramsey seconded it.

The next meeting of the Board of Governors is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 1.

State, Cal to debate Stanford and USF

Two SF State International Relations students will take part in a four college debate Tuesday night in the Main Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Denis Norrington and Samuel Wiah of SF State will join two Cal students in taking the negative side of the question, "Resolved that the voting system of the UN General Assembly should be changed to reflect differences in the size and contributions of members."

Taking the positive viewpoint will be students from Stanford and University of San Francisco.

The debate is being presented by the Foreign Student Committee of the American Association for the United Nations, as part of the United Nations Week observance.

The debate will be the first of an annual series among the four schools, according to Dr. Urban Whitaker, associate professor of International Relations.

Judges for the affair will be William Winter, noted radio commentator, Paul Jacobs, national magazine writer, and William Brinton, Republican party leader in San Francisco.

Tickets, costing 50 cents for students and $1 for adults, are on sale in Hut T-1, and will also be sold at the door.

Donations will go to the Foreign Student Committees to help foreign students.

Algren to speak of Hemingway

Noted novelist and short story writer, Nelson Algren will speak today at 1 p.m. in the Main Auditorium.

Algren will expand upon his opinions of Ernest Hemingway which recently appeared in the magazine, "The Nation."

His impressionistic poem about the city he grew up in "Chicago: City on the Make," first published in 1951, was printed last year by the Contact Publishing Company in Sausalito.

Algren's literary career began in 1933, with a story "So Help Me," which he sold to Story Magazine for $25.

Algren's better-known works since that date "Walk on the Wild Side," and "The Man With the Golden Arm," which won the National Book Award in 1949, have both been made into movies.

Teachers shouldn't have to answer twice

WHEN ATTORNEY - GENERAL Stanley Mosk spoke here last Thursday, he said he agreed with the present ruling whereby a teacher who is called before a legislative investigating committee and takes the Fifth Amendment may be called before his school board and asked to explain his reasons.

This we think, is more or less absurd. Mostly more. Why should a school board want to know why anyone exercised their constitutional right? It's rather like asking someone why they voted.

MOSK HIMSELF SAID that the teacher must give his "reason for asserting his constitutional rights." Somehow this sounds like a lot of double-talk. It sounds as if the teacher must undergo the ordeal twice, once before the legislative committee and once before the local school board. If these bodies were courts, this might be termed double jeopardy.

The legislative committees have been under attack for some time; there are some people who question whether they serve any real function and whether that function is a legitimate one.

FOR A LOCAL school board to begin pursuing the question of subversion seems to us to be doubling the dangers to academic freedom which these questions raise. If a person cannot be brought to trial for breaking a law, then we do not see how he can be a danger to other law-abiding citizens.

This country has an abundance of legal machinery to prosecute treason. The Bill of Rights is intended to balance the scale with personal liberty. If a legislative committee actually discovered evidence of traitorous action, and the person engaged in it was not prosecuted, then it would be far more important to the welfare of the country that the committee be investigated, than the individual questioned by a local school board.

Letters to the Editor

Kotsuji's lecture

Editor:

I attended Dr. Abraham Kotsuji's lecture on "Judaism a Unique Religion in a Modern World." I was erroneously led to believe, through the Gater, that he was going to talk on Shintoism, Christianity, and Judaism. Instead Dr. Kotsuji, because of his ethnocentrism, spent part of his lecture making broad generalizations about Buddhism.

He made the irrational statement, "Buddhism is queer." He attempted to qualify this rationalization by stating, "Buddhists have no God." He neglected to mention that Amida Buddha is somewhat analogous to the orthodox idea of God in that Amida is the symbol of Love and Compassion.

He said, "Buddhism is negative," and tried to justify this statement by referring to only a small segment, the Zen Buddhists, who believe in self-denial. The Shinshu (American) Buddhists, meant for the common man, do not practice self-denial.

The highest goal of all Buddhists is Awakening, Enlightenment, Self-Realization, which is a state of being (present), an understanding of one's true nature in relationship to Reality, Truth, Amida. He also stated that death ends all problems for Buddhists and that when we resolve the problem of death, we can live. This is false. The present, not the past or the future, is the important factor. The ideal is to live day to its fullest extent, in kind act, a simple act of civility, a soft word.

I may have confused with my statements, but I feel justified that I at least made an attempt to correct any false impressions of a speaker.

Irving, Blau create Actor's Workshop

The Actor's Workshop was formed 10 years ago in a loft above a judo academy. It was the beginning of a theater created by Jules Irving and Herbert Blau. At the time, the two men had not yet reached the full professorships that they now hold at SF

State; they were two New Yorkers who thought that the destiny of American theater lay off-Broadway, in professional resident theaters. Now their professional company has been strengthened by the announcement of a $197,000 Ford Foundation grant. The award will defray approximately one-third of the company's budget, the rest must come from the box office. "Subscriptions are the most positive way that the Bay Area as a community can take full advantage of the opportunity offered by Ford Foundation," the two directors said.

The grant will allow for 20 staff members and 13 resident actors to be employed during the forthcoming year by the Actor's Workshop. Another objective of the grant was for the two professors from State to concentrate on the establishment of a permanent theater building, since their lease on the Marine's Memorial runs out next year.

When the establishment of such a theater evolves, the Workshop will have moved forward from their humble beginnings with the continuance of those same ideals that prompted them to begin their company.

This year a portion of the Workshop offer productions to the high schools in the Bay Area. The company will present at no charge, to those requesting it, a 25 minute program of theater classics performed by members of the Workshop. Included will be scenes from their current production, "Twelfth Night," and the forthcoming "Volpone" by Ben Jonson.

The company will also offer college and high school students and their instructors student-discount group rates ranging from $1.-$1.75 per admission to their performances during the coming year.

Herbert Blau, professor of English here, is now on a leave in order to complete a book on the theater. He has taught playwriting classes, and will have his new play produced this year by the Workshop.

The Actor's Workshop has been well received on an international level, when their successful production of "Waiting for Godot" was presented at the Brussels World's Fair, and again in Seattle.

Since then the company has been invited by S. Hurak for a national tour during the forthcoming summer; also by the Theater des Nations to the 1962 Paris International Theater Festival.

As with ties, cigarettes, religion, and the colour of hair, selecting a bookstore is a personal matter.

You may have hit upon the school, and be restricted in picking one or another instructor, but the choice of a bookstore is (since we freely acknowledge the assortment — for better or worse—of stores in the area) high unlimited. And what habit, ritual, institution is potentially of such quintessential concern to the student? — We ask you.

After this, one may anticipate some propaganda, replete with extraordinary claims, superlatives, and the like. But we recognize that The Library (and this is, indeed, a bookstore—an extraordinary, superlative one) is not the common choice among competitors. Indeed, we do no carry contraceptives; and certainly you have acquaintances (for rhetorical purposes, we assume that you personally know better) who flit from one to another place, finding each partially satisfying, or who tolerate (with much complaint) the store which handles most of their business. Furthermore, we have a fairly healthy disdain for the common man which rules this out a priori.

Nonetheless, certain scholars and other financially repressed persons find that The Library (which for years has offered a discount to students and teachers who so identify themselves) satisfies the first requirement of their "personal" store—that is, a maximized purchasing power. For us, it is a moral obligation to attempt to have on display, with the rest, the least costly edition of any mend for your browsing. In

This, in itself, is not enough for persons of discretion. More positively, and pervasively, the entire stock is geared to the textual and supplementary reading needs of the student. Insofar as we cut aside ninety percent of the average bookshop's merchandise (cards, stationery supplies, best-sellers, children's books, "how-to . . ." books, and so forth), what remains is an integrated, selective nucleus of books which can become the core of one's education — in the fullest sense of that term. Hence, many of the books which you might care to see and fondle before buying are permanently on display.

Admittedly, there are still drawbacks in our operation. For one thing, we do not carry used books. This function is more than sufficiently fulfilled by stores surrounding us, all of which we recommend for your browsing. In addition, The Library emphasizes the humanities, philosophy, literature and poetry, criticism, and the like, to the exclusion of many titles which you might require. However, we are happy to order any book for you (and generally we can cut a few days off the waiting time), in which case the student discount still applies.

What all this is leading to is simply an invitation to come in, browse, and decide whether we can be of service to you. We are open afternoons and evenings six days a week, and during the day on Sunday.

Thank you for your attention.

Gators rally, tie Nevada 14-14

Hurd makes tying points, misses FG

By JERRY KARP

Reno—A never-say-die band of Gators came from a long way behind against the University of Nevada, but not quite far enough.

Vic Rowen's footballers bounced back from a 14-0 halftime deficit against Nevada here to tie the Wolfpack at 14-14 Saturday.

The inspired SF Staters almost pulled the game out of the bag with the clock ticking away into nothingness as they have done often in the past—witness Santa Barbara.

End D. L. Hurd tried a 35-yard field goal with five seconds left, but fate did not grant a virtual carbon copy of the Gators' UCSB game — in which Bob Baird's kick brought a 16-14 win with ten seconds left.

... 1 TD, 1 PAT

The entire right side of the Wolfpack line blocked Hurd's FG attempt, and SF State's comeback kids content themselves with a 14-14 final deadlock.

Before the game, Rowen told his squad that they would have to "box in the ends" to beat Nevada.

SF State failed in this assignment, for a fine-clicking pair of halfbacks—Calvin Campbell and Ray Del Turco—repeatedly scooted around the sidelines.

Del Turco, a 5-5, 150 pound griddler, runs like a bull, albeit a miniature one.

Trailing 14-0 in the third quarter, the Gators reached the scoreboard when fullback Greg Baines plunged over from Nevada's 4. Bob Baird's PAT conversion failed, and Dick Trachok's Wolfpack led, 14-6.

Linebacker Don Briemle's recovery of a Wolfpack fumble on the Nevada 35 led to the tying TD. Two plays later, quarterback Dick Valois passed to Hurd, who made a leaping end-zone catch amidst three Nevada defenders.

Valois connected with Hurd again for the crucial PAT, which came with expected certainty for Gator fans.

SF State fans also were certain that the Gators would go on from there to beat the Nevadans, and they were ALMOST right.

With but minutes left, Valois passed from the Gator 21 to Don Richardson, who lateralled to Baines for 22 yards.

Rifle-armed Valois then hit Hurd with an aerial — and again came a lateral, this time to Benny Enea, who was downed on the Nevada 35.

Hurd's field goal try then failed as the clock expired—which more or less proves that there really isn't a fairy godmother hovering over Vic Rowen's gridders.

Nevada's first - half TDs were both scored by Campbell on plunges of 9 and 1 yards. Jack Renswick's 2-point PAT toss to Rick Miles followed the second 'Pack TD.

Unsteady offensive line play hampered the Gators and, in particular, Valois. Though the rush was always on the Gator QB, he still completed 12 of 25 passes for an astounding 229 yards.

Penalties also hurt SF State, as the officials dropped their linen 11 times on Rowen's crew.

Nevada	6	8	0	0	—14
SF State	0	0	6	8	—14

Stanford's water poloists outsplash SF State, 17-0

By DICK HINTON

The Stanford water poloists thumped the Gators 17-0 in Wednesday's water polo action at the Farm.

Coach Walt Hanson's Gators gave up seven tallies in the first period although Gator goalie Leroy Farwell turned in a good defensive performance.

The second quarter saw the Stanford defense still handcuffing the Gators with a tight pressing job while the Indians tacked on three more goals for a 10-0 half-time lead.

After a 14-0 third quarter

Indian lead, the Gators seemed to enter the fourth quarter with a renewed spirit, but they fell 17-0.

Gator guard Larry Decker tied up the Stanford scoring ace, Marty Hull, well in the first period, allowing the southpaw forward only two points. Hanson said Decker made some good moves on Hull.

Hanson commented that Harlan Harkness looked good on defense in the game.

The SF State reserves dropped a 25-8 game to Menlo-Atherton High Tuesday.

field coach Tom Morgan, also mentors baseball in spring; head coach Vic Rowen, veteran of two years as Gator grid leader and before the assistant coach here; and coach Bob Rodrigo.

Fate blesses coach Rundell with plethora of cage aces

By DICK KRECK

"At this point I wouldn't even hazard a guess as to our starting five."

After a dismal 1961-62 season in which he had trouble finding a starting lineup, SF State basketball coach Paul Rundell is blessed with about 100 per cent improved depth this year.

For example, where he was forced to convert forwards to fill in at center last year, Rundell now has three players battling for the top spot, including Tom Cleary, one of the team's few returning lettermen.

Pushing the 6-7 Cleary are Mahlon Harmon, who played at State two years ago, and John Watson, a lanky sophomore up from the freshman team.

"We definitely have more depth," said Rundell, "and since you can't play this game with only five men, it will help us a lot."

After one week of practice Rundell is pleased with the progress his 21 players are making.

"We're moving ahead a little faster than we expected, but we're a little slow offensively because we're more interested in execution of patterns right now," he said.

The first full-scale scrimmage will not be held for at least two weeks, to give Rundell time to pare down the extra summer poundage that some of the players have accumulated.

One of the players who is never out of shape is Brown, whom Rundell expects to turn out about November 1.

"He knows what we want to do," reasoned Rundell, "he works out alone every day so we aren't worried about him. He won't be out until we can set up a job for him."

The Gators will have personnel to return to the fast-break game which they used effectively two years back.

Rundell has a host of spare guards, headed by '59-'60 termian Mike Carson.
