

Here in the midst of the lifeless bones of what once was a living breathing functioning city the only sounds to be heard are the same as one could hear in an uninhabited

Here in the midst of the lifeless bones of what was once a living breathing functioning city of more than 5,000 people, the only sounds that break the utter silence are those caused by the the gentle October breeze flapping an abandoned