

HEAD NAZI GETS SILENCE, LAUGHS

By TOM CARTER

George Lincoln Rockwell delivered his Nazi "Truth" to a capacity crowd determined to remain in self-imposed silence yesterday in the Main Auditorium.

The mass silent treatment of contempt, designed to frustrate the sometimes incendiary speaker, occasionally broke with ripples of laughter.

In the beginning the 800-student-faculty audience received his comments in silence.

"I am here to present you some of the thousands of facts you have been denied," the self-styled leader of the American Nazi Party said.

"Though I have used agitating tactics before, I will not agitate."

Dressed in a brown suit and maroon tie, a lock of black hair hanging over his forehead, he continued:

"If I am lying in my facts I'll go to work for nothing for Martin Luther Coon and B'nai B'rith."

One or two persons snickered.

In laying the groundwork for his Nazi anti-Semitism philosophy he quoted from an article allegedly written by Winston Churchill which appeared in the London Illustrated Sunday Herald, February 8, 1920.

According to Rockwell, it said, "atheistic, Bolshevik Jews took over Russia during the revolution."

The former Navy Commander went on to say that his book, "This Time the World," cannot be bought. He read from a document he said was printed by the American Jewish Committee, but was not for publication.

"This (the document) urges publishers to refuse to print my book," he stated. "They say it stinks."

The audience laughed.

Rockwell paid to have his book published he later said.

"You can read Marx, but you can't read Mein Kampf," Rockwell said.

(SF State Library has several copies of Mein Kampf.)

"I try to get to the people to give them the facts. I need the publicity to get to them.

"But in Washington I can run naked across the White House lawn and be ignored."

More sparse laughter followed by warning hushes.

"The universities, like this one, are the only places left for me to go where people will listen.

Rockwell turned his attention to explain how National Socialism can and will take over by 1972.

"America is moving to the left. And anarchy will result with a tyrant rising later to control all liberties.

"Moderates are now somewhere near Gus Hall (the leader of the American Communist Party), he said.

"I am a radical rightist. And we (the Nazi Party) are a counter-revolutionary organization. We will win over the mobs with discipline and a return to law and order."

In other comments which were met with some nervous laughter, Rockwell said:

- Goldwater is a fink. Gold-fink, I call him. They (European Jews) sent him over here. If he gets elected, he will betray us in four years.

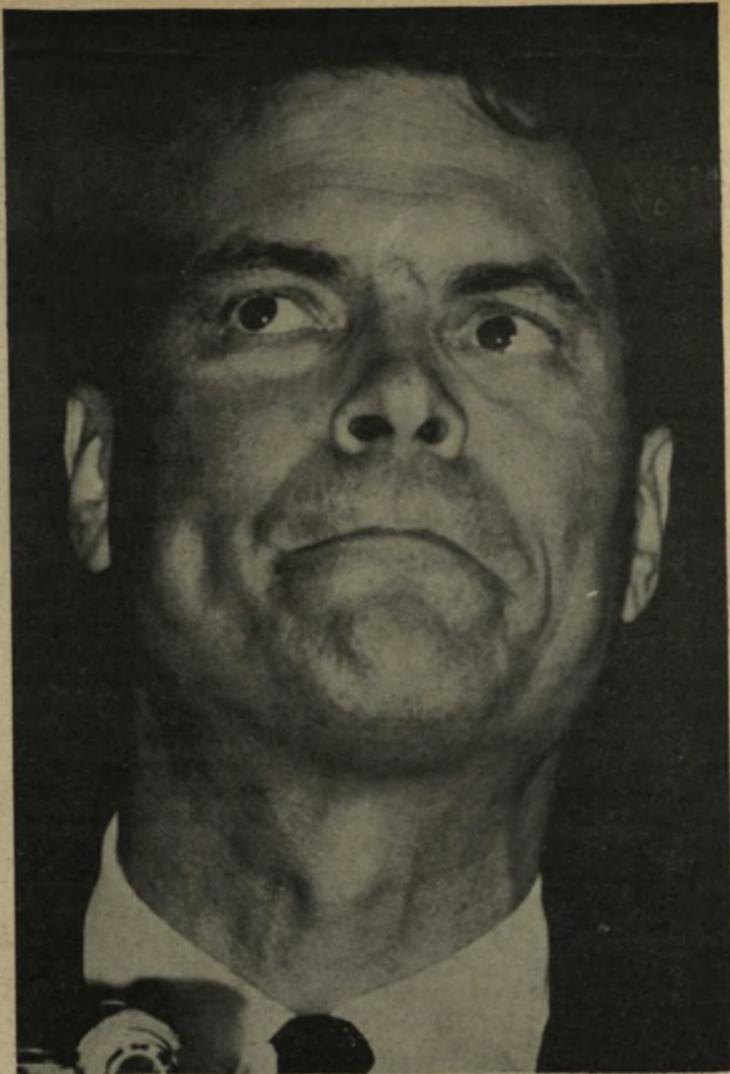

- If Goldwater is elected, there will be a depression and a Communist take-over.

- Jews should be gassed if found guilty of treason. Gassing is the only way to deal with a large number of them.

- Election of Johnson would be "just ideal for my purposes. For America he's a catastrophe."

- Six million Jews murdered during WWII is a lie.

When Rockwell concluded his speech, sponsored by the Forensics Union, he was sparingly applauded.

Faculty backs joint doctorate

The faculty yesterday confirmed its support of plans to begin granting joint PhD. degrees in conjunction with the University of California, and passed a resolution urging the Academic Senate to come up with concrete guidelines.

The watered-down resolution was in effect a vote of confidence in the work of the Academic Senate—and a call for action.

Provisions in the original motion which would have called for faculty referendums on Academic Senate joint-doctorate proposals were deleted by the faculty.

All speakers on the resolution agreed that a joint doctorate program is desirable and inevitable. But the approved resolution raises many problems which the faculty must solve.

The faculty asked for a more specific policy on:

- How many dollars should be guaranteed to the faculty for each PhD. student;

- Where should the support come from—should SF State funds merely be shifted or should most money for the program come directly from the state?;

- How will departments here qualify to participate;

will the department's desire and willingness be enough?;

- When several departments are ready to ask for approval from the Academic Senate, which departments will have priority?

Dean of graduate study George Feliz denied that Problem of peace: scientists

Assuming that a complete peace had been declared, Clarence Rainwater, associate professor of physics, began his lecture on "Scientists — War Surplus."

About 50 attentive students attended this the second lecture in the Faculty Focus Series "If Peace Is Declared."

"Before peace," Rainwater said, "about 2.7 million were employed in science and technology. Now without war, an army, secret police, weapons, and loyalty oaths, these people are out of work."

He contended that the fate of these men depends on how society develops in this new peace. The old order can't continue and there are two avenues open to society:

- People can do the jobs that used to be done by ma-broad guidelines for amounts of financial support can be determined.

"The amount of money needed will vary with each doctorate. We are flying in an uncharted area. There are no benchmarks to go by," he said.

chines and unemployment will still be like the depression of the 1930's.

- The focus of society can remain on technology and teachers and scientists can become the major working force of the world. Most people will work little, if at all and a new plan would have to be provided for them.

Rainwater, favoring the last choice, said that a new system of values would be necessary since in our society people that do not work are generally scorned.

"Can science be applied in search of a new morality?" Rainwater then asked. In answer to his own question he advocated putting these unemployed scientists to work to help us find a solution to moral problems.

The question of when a department is ready to work on a doctorate program is a delicate point.

Negotiations with the University of California were authorized by the Donohoe Act in 1960.

In 1963 a board of SF State and University representatives approved a procedure to develop joint doctorates. The SF State Academic Senate approved the procedure with slight modifications shortly afterward.

Dean Feliz stated why he believes SF State needs a joint doctorate program:

"We are committed to graduate education. There is a desperate national need for doctorate manpower, and we are ready now for a limited beginning to meet the need."

"This means," Feliz added, "no reduction in our commitment to undergraduate education."

There are now 4,300 graduate students at SF State. Feliz stated that 50 per cent are working toward MA degrees.

Feliz said the joint doctorate program "must be comparable with the best being given at any national institution."

Proposition 14 must be defeated

The most important issue Californians will have to decide Tuesday is not who their senator will be, nor even who their president will be.

IT WILL BE Proposition 14.

Proposition 14 must be defeated. Here's why:

This proposed amendment will not only repeal the Rumford Fair Housing Act, it will prevent enactment of further fair housing legislation.

IT READS: NEITHER the State nor subdivision or agency thereof shall deny, limit or abridge, directly or indirectly, the right of any person, who is willing or desires to sell, lease or rent any part or all of his real property, to decline to sell, lease or rent such property to such person or persons as he, in his absolute discretion, chooses."

THIS MEANS LEGALIZED discrimination.

Many people support this proposition arguing that owning property is a natural right of man.

Under this same reasoning, then, the acquisition of property must also be a natural right. How can a person own property if he is not allowed to purchase it?

MANY OTHERS SUPPORT 14 because they don't like the Rumford Act. However, they have little to fear from this law.

In the first 10 months the 13-month-old law was on the books, only 159 cases of discrimination were filed with the Fair Employment Practices Commission which handles these cases.

AND MOST OF THESE were settled out of court by conciliation. Only one of the 159 cases required formal public hearing and an FEPC order.

If an owner is prosecuted under the Rumford Act, the highest penalty is a $500 fine. However, the owner can still appeal this case to the courts.

The law also only restricts a property owner on racial and religious criteria. He can still discriminate on any other basis.

AND MUCH OF CALIFORNIA housing does not fall under Rumford Act jurisdiction.

About 70 per cent of all California housing is covered. But the remaining 30 per cent comprises about 70 per cent of single family, privately financed residences which are exempt from the law.

Only property financed with government assistance — such as FHA and VA loans — and multiple dwellings of five or more units.

THIS MEANS THAT IF Proposition 14 passes, more than $267 million of federal urban renewal and redevelopment aid will be cut off.

Since the federal government does not allow laws legalizing discrimination, it cannot be expected to sanction the discriminatory laws of a state.

Also, many people claim that if Proposition 14 passes, the civil rights movement will push even harder.

AND IF 14 PASSES, that push would be justified. The Rumford Act isn't adequate, but it at least gives the impression of legal recourse against presently illegal prejudice.

When and if Proposition 14 passes, it won't just lock the door on inequality. It will throw away the key, leaving a lot of angry people outside.

Emotion wins votes says SF State prof

Very few people have rational basis, as to whom they will vote for in Tuesday's Presidential election, according to Alton Hobgood, semanticist and assistant professor of humanities and language literature at SF State.

Hobgood said that whatever success Senator Goldwater has had during the campaign has been due largely to the fact that many diverse groups seem to have identified with him.

An individual or group will identify with a candidate, and then transpose this identification so that they come to believe that the candidate stands for the same things they do.

A large number of groups have associated themselves in this manner with one or the other of the presidential candidates.

President Johnson, according to Hobgood, has not overcome the disadvantage he found himself working under in 1960, when his public image was one of a brash westerner.

Hobgood, in speaking of voting trends, said that the public tends to vote emotionally, rather than giving consideration to the issues.

People will vote for a candidate who they feel is much like themselves, he said. This can be seen in the defeat of Stevenson, according to Hobgood. In 1952, and again in 1956, the voters identified with Eisenhower and were a little afraid of Stevenson's intelligence.

"People manifest this desire to elect a candidate like themselves in still another way," said Hobgood. "They will vote for the man who convinces them that he is more of a "local boy" than his opponent. For this reason most candidates try and out-do each other in assuming the characteristics of the locale."

In discussing political slogans, Hobgood noted slogans contain both less than what they are supposed to mean, and more, due to their implied connotations.

"Property Rights versus Human Rights," "Keep T.V. Free," "In your heart you know he's right," and other such slogans are almost misleading," he said.

Yet many voters think in terms of slogans, he said, and many politicians simplify the issues until they themselves almost talk in slogans.

Film Guild kiosk stolen

A five foot multi-colored Kiosk, built by the SF State Film Guild, was stolen last week-end. The wooden column and its cement base were chained to a bench near the Commons Friday night but only the base and chain remained Monday.

Eve Rallard, Film Guild publicity chairman, said the kiosk was to be used for announcements of films. She could think of no reason why anyone would want it other than "it is pretty."

The Film Guild is offering a $15 reward for the return of the kiosk. It can be returned to Miss Rallard or the Film Guild office in the Radio-TV department.

Psych project gauges civil rights value

By SHELLEY BURRELL

The civil rights movement in San Francisco will soon prove effective.

Or will it?

The SF State psychology department will have the answer shortly.

A research project concerning the race issue is currently being conducted here, the first such study to measure the value of civil rights activities on a city.

"We think we have something here, but we're just getting off the ground now," said Louis S. Levine, professor of psychology and former chairman of the psychology department, who is directing the project.

In March, about a year after the project was first outlined, the actual impact of the civil rights movement on San Francisco will be made known by the department.

A team of about 50 graduate students in psychology and various faculty members were involved in the initial work, which began in June.

In all, about 270 persons were questioned.

Leaders of civil rights groups were interviewed as were members of opposition groups. All were interviewed with respect to: their organizations' activities; their individual roles with the groups, and their knowledge of the issues. They also were asked their opinions regarding their opponents' views.

In addition, major demonstrations and meetings which had a bearing on the activities of the civil rights groups and their opponents also were observed as part of the project.

For example, tape interviews were taken during the Republican National Convention in San Francisco in July, in an effort to find delegates' reactions to the civil rights demonstrations and picketing which were taking place outside the Cow Palace.

Certain "key" political and power people also were interviewed, as were a group of "unaffiliated" representatives of the Negro community, according to Dr. Levine.

After the data is studied and published, special attention will be given to the decisions reached regarding education, housing and employment, said Levine.

Moneyed assistance for the project was provided by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions and also the Division Fund.

SF State faculty members involved in the project have been Paul Ekman, John Hall, Jerome Podell and Audrey Bohm, all from the psychology department; John Shover, history; Lloyd Crisp, speech. Also assisting with the study was Gerald Kogan of Contra Costa Junior College.

All were hopeful that tangible results will be gained from the project.

"It's the first systematic and scientific study of the civil rights movement on a city. I think we're going to have something," said Levine.

"We're eager to get out the first material," he added.

Tutorial program opens 6th center

SF State's Tutorial Program will open its sixth schooling center this week at the Methodist Church in Washington Square.

At present the service includes 80 student volunteers who work at five centers, three in the Mission district, one in the Fillmore and one in the Haight-Ashbury area.

Although 10 tutors have already been assigned to the new center, many more are needed to reach the program's goal of 25 new teachers a week.

The center, now open every Tuesday and Thursday, hopes to expand to Monday through Thursday from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Student coordinators Larry

Cole and Eric Jorgensen urged all SF State students to participate, stressing the need for people from all departments.

"We're not asking for specialists, everybody is qualified. We can use a P.E. major just as well as an English major," said Jorgensen.

The program's motto "Each

One Teach One" explains the strong emphasis on individual student-teacher relationship. Volunteers are required to spend at least two extra sessions, three hour periods, each week with one student.

"The real keys to success are the students who are certain they can keep a regular schedule," he explained.

There are openings for tutors at all the centers to work with elementary through high school children.

Applications may be obtained at Hut T-1 and should be returned to the secretary's office in Hut D across from the Bookstore.

Rep hopes for decisive vote

Refusing to predict the outcome of the Presidential election, Congressman William S. Mailliard made several observations about Republican party future Tuesday afternoon in the Gallery Lounge during a speech sponsored by the Young Republicans.

WILLIAM MAILLIARD
Seeks re-election

Mailliard, who is seeking election to a seventh term from the 6th Congressional District, which includes SF recalled the election of 1948 and said that not until next Tuesday will the results be known, despite polls, assumptions and rumors.

When asked his own position on Senator Goldwater's candidacy, Mailliard replied he had done everything in his power to prevent Goldwater from receiving the nomination, and that he was not truly happy with either candidate.

"But there you are, and you have to make a choice," he said. "Or refuse to make a choice, that's a right, too."

Mailliard did cite the Republican voting record as indicative of potential strength at the polls.

If a Republican goes to the polls to vote for a bond issue or something else that interests him, he will usually vote a straight party ticket, even if he doesn't agree completely with the presidential nominee, according to Mailliard. Also, if he goes to the polls to back the party's major nominees, the Republican will usually vote for Republican candidates for lesser offices as well, he said.

Mailliard stated that the future of the Republican party depends entirely on the outcome of the impending election.

The congressman said he hopes Goldwater either wins or loses decisively, but does not look forward to seeing him almost win.

If the election results in a Johnson landslide, the existing leadership of the party would likely be replaced with more liberal members such as himself, Mailliard said.

In the event Goldwater loses by a narrow margin, the more conservative faction of the party would contend that it almost won with Barry under adverse circumstances and should stay in power for another try next election.

Dealing with his own campaign, Mailliard cited his political experience as a primary reason he should be supported.

With the election of Congressman John Shelley as mayor, Phil Burton was elected to succeed him in a special election last March. Should Mailliard be replaced now, San Francisco would be left with two inexperienced legislators at the opening of the 89th Congress, he said.

A first term congressman finds it very difficult to get things done, said Mailliard. A legislator must develop relationships with other members of Congress before he can expect to accomplish much.

In commenting on the Soviet shakeup, Mailliard stated that it is fundamental to the Russian system that one strong man must emerge.

At this point there is no reason to suspect a radical change in Soviet policy, he said, but it is possible we are witnessing an interim government, with someone as yet unknown in the wings pulling the strings.

Between Beginning and End

Do you know that God's Holy Scriptures begin with "in the beginning God created the heavens and the earth" and that they end with "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen."?

And do you know that the following message from Him is contained between those two verses?

"Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths. (1) Know ye that the Lord He is God: it is He that hath made us, and not we ourselves. . . . (2) All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned everyone to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on Him (Jesus Christ) the iniquity of us all. (3)

For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not His Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world THROUGH Him might be saved. (4) He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him. (5) . . . God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ. (6) For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God. (7)

Repent ye therefore and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out, (8) . . . but except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish. (9) If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to FORGIVE us our sins. (10) For the wages of sin is death; but the GIFT of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord. (11) For by grace (God's) are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the GIFT of God. . . . (12)

What must I do to be saved? . . . Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shall be saved. . . . (13) For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. (14) Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. (15) For ye are all children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. (16)

Jesus said unto her, "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in Me shall NEVER die! (17) These things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may KNOW that ye HAVE eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God. (18)

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for Thou art with me. . . . Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever. (19)

Are you a doubting, but honest reader? Then check the above portions of Scripture for yourself and prove that this is the true record. As has been said, God will receive each of you who will accept His way of coming to Him. Won't you settle with God and confess the Lord Jesus Christ as your Savior now while there is yet time?

Education research by Hilda Taba

Raising the 'think level'

A research project directed by Hilda Taba, professor of education at SF State, promises to raise the "level of thinking" in children who are considered average, to levels previously expected only in the brightest children.

She is assisted by Sam Levine, James Hills, Freeman Elzey, Leon Paulson, and Miss Mary Durkin.

The study began 10 years ago with a special curriculum designed by Miss Taba and associates to develop children's ability to interpret social studies data and apply the learned principles to situations involving new data.

The children in the Contra Costa elementary schools who were involved in the project proved superior to children who had not been taught in the planned curriculum.

In the last two years the program has expanded to the teaching level, and even greater achievement is being observed, according to Miss Taba.

The two main strategies being used by the teachers are:

- Teaching the children to ask questions and teaching them which questions to ask.
- Taking gradual steps to complexity in thinking, so that a realization of the correct processes in thinking is achieved.

"In some cases," says Dr. Taba, "children's progress has been so great that they are able to 'catch up' the teacher in a less than perfect analysis, when only in the third grade."

The teacher therefore must be careful to call for conclusions only when there is sufficient basis for these conclusions or speculations.

Defeating factors which may be present in an evaluation but which have not been discussed, must not enter into the process. The teacher only attempts to provide the widest possible field of divergent thinking. Later, ideas which have been formulated may be refined.

Procedures being used to evaluate the study include tests of the children formulated by Miss Taba compared to test abilities in "Interpreting Data and Applying Principles," and by traditional social studies tests; taping of classroom discussions to determine on what level the children are thinking, (i.e., the complexity of their thinking, and how well they are able to relate what they have learned to other data), and the coding of these tapings, in which an evaluation is made of their study.

Teachers of Contra Costa, Berkeley, Richmond and Daly City elementary schools involved in the study attend special training sessions with Miss Taba and her associates, in which they are given special study materials to guide them, and in which their progress is discussed.

The great progress which has been achieved with the children to this date with the special methods of teaching may initiate a revamp in educational curriculum and methods of training teachers in universities and colleges.

'Beer slalom' event

Clubs plan winter weekend

Squaw Valley will be the site of the first annual SF State Winter Carnival. The three-day event is set for February 3-5. The Alpine Club, the Business Club and the Inter-Sorority Council are sponsors for the event. The Winter Carnival king and queen contest will be directed by the ISC. Publicity will be handled by the Business Club and overall co-ordination is the responsibility of the Alpine Club.

Many activities will be scheduled for the skier and non-skier. There will be a "beer slalom" where contestants must drink a can of beer at each gate of the course. The man, or woman, who gets the farthest, or finishes, is declared the winner. The prize—a case of beer.

Other events include an obstacle race, a snow shoe race, torch skiing at night, broom hockey, a tug-o-war, and a giant slalom.

In addition to the daytime activities entertainment will be provided at night. Sponsors hope to have a well-known folk singing group, such as the Serendipity Singers, give a concert one evening. There also will be dancing and group singing.

The cost of the three days and two nights will be about $20.00. This will include food, lodging, entertainment, use of all the lodge facilities such as the ice rink, and a discount on the ski lifts. Not included in the cost is transportation by bus or car pool and any ski equipment that has to be rented.

Information on where and when to sign up for the carnival will be available at a later date.

Wetballers blasted by Owls

By BILL NUNES

For about 20 seconds last Wednesday, SF State and Foothill Junior College were locked in a scoreless duel. Then the Owls scored once and what followed was the Gators' most humiliating defeat of the season, 21-5.

Foothill launched an attack that slammed in a modest three goals in the first quarter, then combined superior swimming and nearly flawless teamwork to tally 12 more in the second period to lead at the half, 15-0.

Meanwhile, the Gator offense was completely throttled by a taut Owl defense that intercepted 28 passes, 18 in a first half that showed State attempting only five shots.

Foothill's biggest surge came midway through the second quarter when their accuracy provided 11 straight goals without a miss. These proved to be the killing blow.

As the third quarter started the Gators began to retaliate on the Owl reserves, but still only netted two goals out of 13 shots.

Rusty Mills broke the SF State scoring drought by slamming in the first goal. Don Davis also added another tally and the Gators had closed the gap to 15-2. But when the whistle ended the third quarter, it also ended the Gators shortlived rally.

Foothill returned to form in the final stanza, making good on six of 14 attempts. Jim Dunn added three Gator goals, one on a penalty, and the annihilation was complete.

The Owls had been acclaimed as the top team in northern California and the Gators will undoubtedly agree.

Tomorrow SF State returns to Far Western Conference competition and travels to Davis for a re-match with the Aggies. Wednesday's loss had no effect on the Gator FWC 3-2 mark.

Paulson debates 2

Stanley Paulson, SF State Vice President of Academic Affairs, debated on behalf of Proposition 2 on KRON-TV Tuesday evening.

This program was the last of a three-debate series between Paulson and Lloyd Graybiel, former president of the California Taxpayers Association, who opposes the proposition.

Paulson opened his argument with a statement of the crucial need for the funds provided by the passage of Proposition 2. "Over $10 million will go into physical facilities for higher education in San Francisco itself. Over $30 million will go into higher education in nearby Bay counties."

Graybiel, taking the negative position, replied that the need for funds "has been overgeneralized." He proposed that the passage of Proposition 2 would be an abandonment of sound fiscal policy.

Paulson defended the economic soundness of the proposition, adding that the bond issue was passed by large majorities in both the California Assembly and Senate.

Gridders hope for win and end of jinx at Humboldt St.

The Golden Gators will try to break a football jinx dating back to 1954 Saturday night when they meet Humboldt State at Arcata's Redwood Bowl.

Not since 1954 have the Gators beaten the Lumberjacks on the Arcata gridiron. That year the Gators slipped by 14-7.

Coach Phil Sarboe's Lumberjacks have a 4-1 record this season, compared to SF State's 4-2 mark.

SF State's rushing trio of Tom Piggee, Jerry Brown and Jim Crum will try to penetrate Humboldt's "Green Chain" of bulky defensive linemen. Leading the way will be a Gator offensive wall averaging 214 pounds.

Humboldt will be minus the services of the Far Western Conference's leading rusher, Roger Grant. The senior halfback, who has run for 378 yards in five games, is sidelined with an ankle injury suf-

Rain-slicked paths await SF distance men

Packing a 3-1 season record, SF State's cross country team journeys north to Arcata for a Saturday morning dual meet with Humboldt State.

For the last two weekends, the Gator thinclads have hosted triangle meets on their own foggy Lake Merced course.

October 17 the squad lost to Far Western Conference-leading Sacramento State 15-40. However, they beat Sonoma State, 22-35.

Last Saturday the Cal Aggies lost a FWC contest to the Gator distance men.

This week rain has slickened the Humboldt State home course pathways. Keith Stapleton, top Gator finisher last Saturday, warned that Humboldt State runners usually finish stronger at home.

"But we should beat them," Stapleton added.

ferred last week against Nevada. Mike Monahan will substitute for Grant.

The Lumberjacks lead the FWC in team offense and team defense. SF State hopes to break through with an attack led by quarterback Don McPhail.

The sophomore signal caller has completed 72 of 126 passes for 981 yards, a 57 per cent average. He leads the FWC in passing and total individual offense.

Opposing quarterback Joe Sarboe has completed 41 of 79 tosses for 423 yards, and has run for 137 more.

SF State holds a 12-10 edge in the annual series with Humboldt, with one tie. Last year the Gators crushed the "Green Chain at Cox Stadium 21-16.

Kick-off time at Arcata is 8 p.m.
