

RED GATORVILLE HIRES MEL BELLI

By PATRICK SULLIVAN

Residents of Gatorville, SF State's married student housing complex, have hired super-attorney Melvin Belli in an effort to prevent their eviction at the end of the semester.

The action was revealed by Noel Myricks, Gatorville Association President, after residents received a letter Friday from Acting President Stanley Paulson informing them they would have to leave by June 30.

After that time, the seven wooden, barrack-like structures are scheduled to be torn down to make way for a new instructional building on the 3.2 acre site.

According to Myricks, Belli will launch a three-pronged effort to:

- Prevent eviction on June 30.
- Force the college to announce the availability of five currently vacant apartments.
- Bring the facilities up to minimum safety standards until new housing is provided.

The Paulson letter, citing a concern for "possible hazards to student families," said a preliminary inspection a year ago revealed "significant deterioration in plumbing lines, wiring, and an increase in dry rot in the 19-year-old structures."

The seven structures were first used during World War II to house Navy dependents at the Hunters Point Naval Shipyard in the city, and were brought here in 1946.

In his letter to the 79 families now in Gatorville,

Paulson said a recent inspection by the State Fire Marshal resulted in a request that the college "discontinue use of the facilities . . . or reconstruct to conform to minimum code standards."

The marshal's report said the "age, tinder dry condition of the wood framing, the lack of any fire resistive value, and the deterioration of the joints in the dry wall ceilings . . . constitute an undue fire and life safety hazard to the occupants."

Paulson said an estimated $357,000, "which we don't have," would be needed to reconstruct the buildings.

But Myricks said Orrin DeLand, Executive Dean, estimated reconstruction costs at $10,000 last May.

DeLand said yesterday the $10,000 figure was in fact the estimated cost for a comprehensive engineering firm study of the condition of Gatorville.

Norm Carlin, Public Relations Director for the Gatorville Association said many residents "think the situation here is tied up with the 6.6 acre land purchase."

He referred to a series of questions by State Senator J. Eugene McAtee (D-SF) about college expansion and the proposed use of Gatorville land for new residence facilities.

McAtee favored an "instructional" building rather than living quarters.

The college has since come out with plans for an instructional building on the Gatorville land.

"But the change in plans was not a condition of Senator McAtee's approval of the land purchase," Paulson said, "but rather, the result of the need to plan for 16,000 full-time students."

Paulson also flatly denied a charge by Myricks that he (Paulson) had implied in a meeting with Myricks, that if Gatorville residents became troublesome, they may find the fire marshal coming in with 24 hour eviction notices before June 30.

"That charge is patently untrue," added Glenn Smith, Assistant to the President.

Paulson's letter to the residents indicated the college had contacted the San Francisco Housing Authority and that units could be made available to any or all of the Gatorville residents on a priority basis.

But Myricks said available city housing units are "worse fire traps than we have here."

Paulson noted that temporary barrack structures are being phased out at college campuses all over the country.

"At Cal Poly," he said, "students were given 30 day notices."

The Acting President has taken steps to comply with interim improvements suggested by the marshal's report.

- Increased security patrol in Gatorville.
- Fire-drill practice at an early date.
- Inspection and emergency repair of stoves, heaters and wiring.
- Disconnection of wiring in five vacant apartments.

Draft forum

The Vietnam Day Committee's second workshop, a "draft forum," is scheduled today in Ed 117 at 12:15. Included will be discussions of the "Korean War"-based academic standing tests, individual draft-counseling, counseling for potential Conscientious Objectors, and selective service procedures for freshmen.

Paul Dodd, 'man of vision,' honored by Dumke, faculty

The power elite of SF State and the state college system gathered yesterday to honor retiring SF State president Paul Dodd. What emerged was kudos for Dodd and the College, but criticism for several aspects of the system.

Associated Students President Terry McGann praised Dodd for allowing students "an unusual and unprecedented working relationship with the administration."

McGann also lauded Dodd for being able to work effectively under "the inefficient and sometimes ludicrous financial operations of the state colleges."

Richard Axen, chairman of the Academic Senate, presented Dodd with the traditional gold watch and said Dodd had "made great advancement of faculty involvement in decision making."

Acting President Stanley Paulson praised Dodd's "great vision" and gave him an aerial photograph of the campus.

The retiring president was made a life member of the SF State Alumni Association by former Association President Art Blum. Blum also presented Dodd with $600 to be used for a perpetual Paul Dodd Scholarship.

Chancellor Glenn Dumke said SF State is a "great college" that is "eager to pioneer and try new things."

A resolution from the Legislature praising Dodd's work in education and labor relations was presented by Assemblyman Charles Myers.

The last three SF State leaders — retiring president Paul Dodd, former president Chancellor Glenn Dumke, and Acting President Stanley Paulson — wait to speak at a special faculty meeting to honor Dodd. In addition to the three presidents, AS President Terry McGann and Richard Axen, Chairman of the Academic Senate spoke at the meeting.

Prof jailed; didn't register

Walter Coppock, associate professor of psychology at SF State, is convinced of the immorality of the draft. He is a conscientious objector who has served a prison term for refusing to register.

Coppock stresses the point that there must be a "purposeful confrontation" between the individual and a country whenever the two disagree.

"If you feel you are being played with by the government, it's better to stand up to that government and take the consequences. You just can't wait for someone else to do it for you."

Coppock's stand against the government did not begin until after World War II. During the war he registered as a conscientious objector and was drafted while still a junior in high school. He was assigned to the Soil Conservation Service and also took part in two experimental food-ration projects.

With the termination of the war, Coppock went back to school. Then in 1948 the United

"... stand up and take the consequences."

States initiated the peace-time draft. Coppock wrote a letter to government authorities stating that he could not, in good conscience, register.

"My thinking had changed since the end of the war," Coppock emphasized. "First I had become more absolutist. The very idea of the draft was wrong now as far as I was concerned. Secondly, the situation was different from the Second World War. This was a peace-time draft. I felt it important to stress the difference."

The government felt it imperative to stress its position, too. Coppock was sentenced to a three year term in a Federal prison. He served one year, and was then placed on two years probation.

"I have a continuing concern regarding peace activities," Coppock said, "but I don't want my statements to sound like self-praise or advertisements of the individuality of Walter Coppock."

According to Coppock, there should never be a need for a national draft call. "National governments must have a foundation based on heading off threats of attack and thus reducing or eliminating the need for a mandatory draft."

"Actually we are heading toward a one worldness. It is the only solution to war. It probably won't come about in my lifetime, but it will evolve out of necessity."

Coppock said that he is not opposed to an international force to keep the peace. "But only when this force is thinking of the welfare of all of mankind, and not of some particular nation, will it be successful."

Coppock concluded by saying that the draft is legal — approved by the American people. "The sole question is its morality. In the end, each individual must make up his own mind about that."

Engineering at Columbia

W. J. Hennessey, Dean of Columbia University School of Engineering, will be on campus Tuesday to answer questions concerning the Columbia University-SF State cooperative program in Engineering.

The cooperative program enables engineering students to attend SF State for three years and Columbia School of Engineering for the remaining two.

The program guarantees acceptance into the Columbia School of Engineering to the student recommended by SF State.

Also, arrangements exist to send qualified four-year graduates on to complete a Master's degree program in Engineering. The program requires at least one year for engineering graduates and two years for non-engineering science graduates.

All students considering entering this program or desiring more information, contact the Engineering Department Office, Sci. 131.

Official Notice

SECONDARY EDUCATION URGES ADVANCED APPLICATION FOR FALL ENROLLMENT TWO-SEMESTER CREDENTIAL PROGRAM

The Department of Secondary Education is now accepting applications for fall enrollment in its two-semester ("fifth year") credential program. Advanced applications are necessary, but filing an application does not constitute a commitment on the part of the student nor acceptance by the Department.

Application forms and additional information can be secured from the Secondary Education Office, Ed 31, and should be returned to that office before March 31.

Eligibility for entrance into the program includes: 1) an AB degree, 2) be able to complete a teaching major and minor within the next two semesters, 3) a grade point average of 2.5 in each of the major and minor subject areas.

The two-semester sequence, sometimes referred to as the "new" program, is offered in addition to the long-standing three-semester program.

Starting today the Christian Science Organization will hold its meetings at the Ecumenical House Chapel.

The Organization previously met at the Stonestown YMCA.

Reverend Al Dale of the Ecumenical Council said the change is on an experimental basis for both groups.

"The Ecumenical Council doesn't mind the Christian Science theology so much as its medicine," he said.

Christian Science Organization members say that Christian Science teaches that the individual's spiritual thinking and prayer are effective for healing all ills. They feel that thinking determines one's whole experience.

The Weekly Testimony Meetings will be on Tuesdays from 1 to 2 p.m.

New Left in the community

By RICHARD RICO

Ted Kroeber, associate professor of psychology, has suggested that the College's acceptance of five per cent of the new freshmen and transfer students be left to the discretion of a special student-faculty group.

Speaking in the first of this semester's faculty lecture series "College Without Walls," he also called for returning to the faculty the responsibility of granting withdrawals to students up until grades are recorded at semester's end.

Other proposals included:

- Expanding the circulation of the Gater to the community immediately surrounding the College.

- Using Fort Funston in San Francisco to provide a summer school for children and a laboratory for tutors and teachers; and

- Getting teachers and students to take over the operation of a local high school and its feeder junior high schools for 5 to 6 years as a way to experiment with new ideas in education.

Kroeber said that all these proposals were geared to help the College respond to the challenge of the "New Left in Higher Education."

He characterized the "New Left" as revolutionary, affiliative and democratic. He said they were revolutionary because they were action-oriented, experimental-minded and anti-establishment. They march and sit-in; they create experimental colleges and tutorial programs; they start SNCC instead of joining the NAACP.

Kroeber pleaded for the acceptance of "different people, even outrageously different people, " who may not have attained the upper third of their high school class in cumulative grade-point or who may not have done well in comparative achievement tests.

In regard to improving student-faculty relations, Kroeber said: "It used to be possible to withdraw from a course anytime up to the moment before grades were turned into the registrar. The only requirement was that since it was the instructor who gave the grade, it was he who had to be approached for the withdrawal."

Kroeber said the Sixth Army had no use for Fort Funston and the National Guard, to whom it is leased, would not use it enough to interfere with whatever program the College could devise.

In regard to the Gater, Kroeber, who is on the Board of Publications, indicated that he would soon propose that the Gater be expanded to include circulation to the neighborhoods surrounding the campus.

"The ideas students have and the activities on the campus need to be read and discussed by the people in this area. We have to understand one another and work together on common problems," he said.

$800 requested for College Union vote later this month

The College Union Council will present an estimated budget request totaling $800 to the AS Finance Committee today.

The allocation is to cover the costs of the College Union election March 28 and 29, and the cost of publicity.

The CUC budget allocation will come out of the "College Union reserve" account, which has a current balance of $224,111.40. This money has been laid aside by the AS over the years and is to be used for part of the cost of the Union if the proposal is passed (by a two-thirds majority), next month.

Salaries for election workers, a four-page "Gater" insert and information brochure are figured into the CUC budget request. Other things discussed in last Friday's Council meeting:

- Five percent rise in cost of the Union each year due to rise in building and material costs.

- A possible land crisis. The Union would be built where the units now exist according to present plans. This is a central place on campus and therefore optimum for a Union. It was pointed out however, that this location may be used for additional classroom space if the Union is not approved.

- All students may vote in the election next month. This includes part-time, overseas, and graduate students.

Contact Legislature office, ext. 1538, Hut T-2, room 3 for time and place of Finance meeting.

Student lectures hit religious topics

A student lecture series planned to determine if there are religious persons at SF State opens tonight (March 1), 7:30 p.m. in Ad 162.

Presbyterian campus pastor John C. Jones said the SF State Ecumenical Council is planning the series because, "Religion is the most talked about topic on campus next to sex."

Most of the submitted papers, Jones said, are from "students outside the church."

Two papers will be read by the author each Tuesday night throughout the semester. Tapes of the lectures will be sent to radio station KPFA.

At the culmination of the series, the papers will be combined and printed in a booklet. The writer of the best paper will be awarded $50.

Tonight's lectures are "An Old Cliche—Maybe," by Ron Carlson and "Religion and Student Life," by Jeff Berner.

Prof to lecture on archaeology

Jotham Johnson, Danforth visiting lecturer in archaeology, will speak on "The Marble City of Aphrodite" today at 8 p.m. in the Main Auditorium.

The lecture, illustrated with slides, will concern recent excavations at Aphrodisias, Turkey, which were conducted by Johnson.

Johnson is professor of classics and chairman of the department at New York University. He is also a former president of the Archaeological Institute of America.

Cagers close out

Yecchh!

SF State closed out its Far Western Conference basketball season on a sour note last weekend, losing to Sacramento State Friday, 106-93, and champion Nevada Saturday, 112-100, in two road games.

The losses gave the Gators a 7-5 FWC record, and dropped them to a tie with UC Davis for second place in the conference.

Nevada smashed CS Hayward, 80-59, Friday so it finished with a 12-0 FWC record, and won its last 16 games in a row to finish with a 20-5 season record. SF State was 8-15 before last night's season finale with University of Portland (see tomorrow's Gater for results.)

The only bright spot over the weekend was the continued brilliant play of guard Everett (Goose) Adams, who became the number two season scorer by hitting 41 points against Sacramento and 27 against Nevada. His season total of 549 broke Gerald Fort's 503 set in 1954-55.

The Goose got his record in just 23 games, while Fort took 26. Kevin Duggan holds the college record with 718 in 30 games for the 1950-51 campaign.

Sacramento was paced with 37 points by the magnificent Lynn Livie, not quite as many as the Goose, but he was aid-

The Goose monopolizes

Nevada ran away with the FWC basketball championship, but players from other teams dominated most of the individual statistics.

Lynn Livie, Sacramento's redheaded offensive machine, poured in 380 points in the 12 league games for a 31.7 average. He was followed by SF State's Everett Adams with a 26.6 average, and Nevada's Larry Moore with a 22 average.

Livie and Adams contributed the seven best game performances of the season.

Adams topped the marathon with 58, and added 37 and 41 later, while Livie had 51, 43, 39 and 37. Livie averaged about 48 per cent of field goal attempts and 78 per cent of his free throws, and Adams averaged about 50 per cent from the floor.

Going into last weekend, Gator Joe Galbo led the FWC in field goal percentage with 55 per cent, and was fourth in free throws with 83 per cent. He averaged 18.3 points a game overall.

Following are the FWC standings, with only a game between Humboldt and CS Hayward, scheduled for today, remaining:

TEAM	W	L
Nevada	12	0
SF State	7	5
UC Davis	7	5
Sacramento	6	6
CS Hayward	5	6
Humboldt	2	9
Chico	2	10

ed with 22 by forward Bob Ferrel and 16 apiece by Bill Syas and Mike Canning. Bill Smith had 16 and Joe Galbo 11 for the Gators.

Livie upped his season's average to an even 30 points a game with a 43-point performance the following night in a 97-66 win over CS Hayward.

Sacramento, which finished with a 6-6 FWC mark, led 57-48 at halftime as the Gators were in foul trouble. Galbo and center Jon Crawford finally fouled out, and Smith and Mike Paulle had four fouls each at the game's end.

Against Nevada, Adams was supported by 18 points from guard Rich Henderson and 17 from Galbo, but the great Wolfpack quintet all hit in double figures (as it has all season long) to offset those performances. Walt Gilliam had 29, Frank Bruno 23, Nap Montgomery 21, Larry Moore 20 and Al Nicholson 17.

The Gators were behind, 54-44, at intermission, and reserves played a good portion of the game thereafter.

King Hanway again played excellently as a backup man, tallying nine points.

Golfers' 1st match this afternoon

The Gator golf team plays its first match of the season today at 1 p.m. against St. Mary's at Round Hill Country Club in the East Bay.

Friday the golfers take on Stanford at the Farm's course, and next Tuesday they meet USF at the Meadow Club.

The first home match is a Far Western Conference encounter March 10 at 1:30 p.m. at Harding Park.

Grapplers fourth in FWC tourney

A fourth-place finish in the Far Western Conference meet over the weekend marked the end of the season for SF State's wrestling team.

Fred Kusumoto grappled to a first in the 115-pound division, and Dan Lucas took first in the 160-pound class for SF State.

Bruce Aitken added to the Gator point total with a third place in the 130 pound class, and Bob Simmons was fourth in the 177 division.

Rich Ayres, who had been expected to place high for SF State, suffered an injury the day before the meet and was unable to compete.

Chico took first place in the meet with 98 points, followed by UC Davis with 88, Humboldt 59, SF State 49, Nevada 39, CS Hayward 14 and Sacramento 14.
