

Administration OK's plan; employees vote

By HAROLD KENT

A proposal for a new organization of SF State's non-academic employees has been approved by the college administration and will be put to a vote of the employees this week.

The college's 600 non-faculty, non-student employees—everybody from custodians to maintenance men to secretaries—will discuss and vote on the plan at a meeting in the Main Auditorium this Friday, May 13 at 3 p.m. They will be given time off from their jobs to attend the meeting.

Acting President Stanley Paulson will address the group. Interested students and faculty have also been invited to attend.

The new plan was outlined in a letter from Paulson to the employees last week, in which he stated that increased participation of the non-academic staff will have a result that "can only improve the College itself."

The new organization is the result of several months' work by members of a Joint Committee of six, three each from two secretaries' groups, Operation Campus Staff (OCS) and Representative Staff Council (RSC).

The two groups, rivals in the past, ironed out their differences and made plans for a new group to include not only secretaries but all non-academic employees on the campus.

Their proposal calls for a representative council of from 20 to 25 members to be chosen according to number of employees in a given area on the campus, geographical proximity and salary allocations.

The Committee emphasizes that the proposal is only preliminary, and representation can be changed as the council sees fit after the initial elections.

The council will also include a member of the administration appointed by the president—the only point where the Joint Committee's original proposal differs from the final approved version.

The change, however, was mutually agreed upon.

"This is consistent with all other committee structures on the campus," Paulson explained.

"The administration member will be present to provide information and in the interests of a better communication with the college," he said.

The president also noted that he is "very optimistic" about the success of the new group.

"A tremendous part of the success of this college depends on the non-academic employees and their suggestions for improvement," he said.

Members of the Joint Committee include chairman Genevieve Deeds, accounts payable; Fran Grinenstraw, school of education secretary; Al Miceli, accounting technician; Jeanne Perisich, graduate education secretary; Edith Roller, Academic Senate secretary; and Barbara Stafford, dean of humanities secretary.

The first duty of the newly-elected council will be to draw up a constitution and by-laws to present to the employees and the administration.

The Joint Committee recommended that all full-time and part-time non-academic employees be eligible to vote, but that only those who have worked at the college for one year be eligible to run for the council.

After the election, OCS, RSC and the Joint Committee will be disbanded.

If the proposal is approved at Friday's meeting, procedures will be set up for carrying out the election.

Fong-Torres voted editor

After a marathon eight-hour meeting, disrupted by members of the Black Students Union charging the Gater with racism, the Board of Publications late Tuesday night appointed Ben Fong-Torres, current Gater City Editor, as the paper's editor-in-chief for next year.

The meeting had no sooner started when seven members of the BSU, attempting to elbow their way into a priority position, leveled charges that the current Gater policy was heading toward racism.

They demanded a "full apology from the Gater and full censorship of Dave Swanson," editor.

Leo Young, chairman of the journalism department, said bringing charges against a plaintiff without giving him time to prepare a defense was "utter nonsense."

The BOP voted unanimously to deal with the charges at a later date.

The final balloting for editorship came only after Fong-Torres and the other candidates, Susan Hull, Gater news editor, Patrick Sullivan, assistant city editor, and Phil Garlington, reporter, had presented their platforms and were questioned individually by members of the BOP.

Jerrold Werthimer, associate professor of journalism, praised all of the candidates for not resorting to "playing politics, as has been done in the past."

Fong-Torres, a 21-year-old senior majoring in Radio-TV, has had extensive experience in the newspaper field. He was a columnist for the Oakland Times for three years and Gater reporter for a year before becoming City Editor.

During his reporting stint, he was named "Outstanding Journalist" by the BOP and this year nabbed second place award from the California Intercollegiate Press Association for his weekly "Whatever's Right" column.

And for his radio work, he was recently awarded a "Broadcast Preceptor Award" from the R-TV Department.

Among his proposals to the BOP was "a need for more editorials." "The Gater, I think, underestimates its power position on campus," he said, "and students have expressed puzzlement at the paper's cold detachment in its reporting of some major stories."

"Well-written editorials often make news of their own, spur definite action, and can help unravel some red tape."

Editor-elect Ben Fong-Torres (center), ensconced at his desk beneath a year's collection of memorabilia, gives a scathing tongue-lashing to two reporters as he examines their copy through his snap-top shades.

China and a united Europe

By HAROLD KENT

China may be the most powerful nation on earth by the year 2000, a West German predicted here this week.

Alexander Von Hase, press officer for the Bonn government, made the remark in describing what he called "second rate" powers.

"France, England and Germany are only second rate because they do not have enough population, space and industry," he said.

The United States and Russia have these things, he continued, but "China lacks only industry to join them as a first rate power."

Von Hase, who was interned for some months in a Nazi prison camp because of his father's anti-Hitler activities, spoke in fluent, but heavily-accented English before an audience of approximately 50 students as part of the College Lecture Series.

His remarks on China came in describing the need for European units — a movement he said goes back to the 17th Century.

There are two major lines of thought regarding European unity, Von Hase said. The first he called "integration," which envisions a supra-national government and parliament — a "United States of Europe."

This is opposed by De Gaulle's concept of "confederation," a loose grouping of independent governments with traditional "friendship" treaties.

De Gaulle likes to think of himself as an arbiter between East and West — "he wants to be the one to decide the questions," Von Hase said.

Germany is "psychologically handicapped" because of Hitler and the World War II mass slaughter of the Jews, Von Hase continued.

De Gaulle's desire to be the leader is basically why he opposes European integration, but Von Hase said he thinks the rest of France is not behind him.

"De Gaulle himself is personally very popular, but his Gaullist party is not," he said.

This may cause trouble in the general elections next spring if the Gaullist party does not get a majority of the votes, Von Hase said.

Such an outcome could precipitate an internal crisis, he continued, because the Communist Party is the second most powerful in France after the Gaullists.

Profs receive collective bargaining questionnaire

A questionnaire on collective bargaining has been distributed to every faculty member at SF State by the Association of California State College Professors (ACSCP).

The questionnaire has been distributed to all the State College faculties in an effort to determine the possibility of collective bargaining as a means of improving faculty employment conditions. Before action can be contemplated, the extent of interest on a statewide basis must be determined.

The questionnaires are printed on cards and should be returned to the ACSCP by May 23. The data will be processed and the results made available in a report by the end of the month.

The concern over the professional future and quality of State College teachers was initiated by a pending salary decision of the State Legislature in its consideration of a new budget. The Legislature is divided with the Assembly endorsing an 11.2 per cent increase and the Senate and Governor Brown favoring a 6.7 per cent increase.

The salary battle has reached a crucial stage because of the shortage in needed new faculty; teachers chose to work elsewhere for bigger pay. Assistant professors in the State College System get a beginning salary of $7,700 while they can expect $8,500 elsewhere.

Fall homecoming plans begin with meeting today

Students interested in helping organize next fall's Homecoming ceremonies are invited to a meeting of the Homecoming Committee today in Ad 12 at noon.

Committee chairmen will be appointed from those attending the meeting. They will be responsible for the traditional coronation ball, publicity, and other facets of the yearly affair. Also, according to one of last year's co-chairmen, Diane Sweet, a parade is hoped for.

At the meeting, to dispense information, will be the old committee and adviser Bob Flynn, Activities Counselor.

Santa Clara walks over SF State with 17 passes

By JIM VASZKO

The Santa Clara Broncos walked all over the Gators for ten innings Tuesday night.

In a three hour and 59 minute game, highlighted by a total of 26 strikeouts and 22 bases on balls, the Broncos strolled off with a 5-4 decision that broke SF State's six-game win streak.

That the Gators were able to last 10 innings while giving the Broncos 17 free passes is a feat in itself. But that Bob Cavalli was able to last nine innings while striking out 15 and walking 14 is a miracle.

The iron-armed Gator right-hander threw more than 200 pitches in a futile attempt to notch his seventh win. Amazingly, he got stronger as the game progressed, striking out six and walking only one during the last three frames he worked.

But coach Bob Rodrigo decided to call on the bullpen to start the tenth. Reliever Bob O'Gorman was victimized by his own wildness and was tagged with the defeat after hurling only one-third of an inning.

The Gators got on the scoreboard first, scoring two runs in the third on a single by rightfielder Lon McCasland and a home run by catcher Tom Martinez.

The Broncos came back with two in their half of the third on a pair of walks, a single, and a double.

SF State moved back on top in the fourth.

With one down, Hiroshi Sakamoto was safe on an error by third-baseman Bill Schmidt. Sak moved down to second when Cavalli's fly ball was dropped in left by Joe Carlan. Jim Barnett followed with an infield hit to load the bases and third sacker Dick Schultze plated Sak by rapping into a fielder's choice.

In the fifth inning Santa Clara took the lead for the first time. Centerfielder Barrett Tolman doubled with two down pinchhitter John Misick was given a free pass. Cavalli walked Bruce Carmichael to load the sacks. While pitching to Henningson, Cavalli balked in the tieing run. Eventually the Santa Clara second sacker worked Cavalli for a walk and the fourth ball got past Martinez for a passed ball, scoring Misick with the lead run.

A sacrifice fly by Cavalli tied the score in the eighth.

Then in the tenth the Broncos scored the winning run off O'Gorman. Fittingly, walks played a big part in the score. Henningson led off with his fifth consecutive free pass of the night and was sacrificed to second by Les Oderman. O'Gorman intentionally walked cleanup man Rod Austin and unintentionally passed Joe Carlan. Pinch hitter Jan Dukes then chopped a high bouncer towards second that Dan Wilson had to wait for to come down. It didn't come down fast enough. Henningson crossed with the winning tally.
