Dear Miss Morgan:

I have looked over your little book and find some other doors that are not quite so elaborate and therefore perhaps better suited to a garage treatment.

On page 375 you had a mark. That is good in some respects. It is openings and the balcony above gives a pretty effect. The window frame is not interesting but that could easily be improved — perhaps after the window of 296.

The most interesting door to me is page 292. That is very quaint and it is rather severe and consequently suited to the purpose. I think we might widen the door a lot and still retain the moture above the door.

There is no window
treatment with this
but perhaps we could make a window
treatment out of the door and overdoor
in plate 35-6. If we coned I think this combination would be very pleasant and effective Then the tower could be made a little different and either carry a top railing as in plate 98 or plate 222 or else terminate with interesting cornice and corbels as in plate 260.

Shall we make the tower three stories or ~~four~~ two. The first treatment would be better for a three story tower - the second for a two story tower.

Howard do whatever you think best Sincerely
