

WHEN IT DRIPS, CALL THE ---

PLUMBERS

To "Keep it running" was the responsibility of the plumber, referring, of course, to the sewer system of the Center.

One of their first jobs was installing a larger sewer outlet and a pump replacing the old outlet which could not adequately carry the increased sewerage caused by the Center's inception.

The Plumbers also changed the plumbing and installed all toilet facilities in the hospitals, piped water between every barrack, and repaired the shower drain for the Army. Sidelines were the repair of kitchen utensils and children's wagons and tricycles.

Hisashi Hayakawa, Foreman

Sadao Shinoda

Junkike Hayashida

Monroe Fujisawa

Shigeuke Jofuku

Nat Kawaguchi

Tsugishige Jofuku

Tokio Nakano

Tokio Nomura

Tokuo Hosoda

George Tsutsui

Eiji Hayakawa

FOR ODD JOBS -- THE UTILITY CREW

Troubleshooters or handy men were these boys on the Utility crew under Frank Hayashida who contributed some definite improvements aside from their routine of odd jobs. Outstanding among these were the laying of the pipes for the barrack faucets, filling the gravel pits at the faucets, grading the main Center roads and hauling dirt and gravel for the Army.

Frank Hayashida

Ted Matsuyama

Frank Kawaguchi

Paul Negoro

Harry Hirakawa

Paul Murakami

Tetsuo Okamoto

Masao Takemoto

Toshi Okada

Tom Matsumura

Roy Miyake

Allan Morishige

THEY BUILT THE WADING POOLS

Bringing cool relief to the Center kiddies the cement crew under Paul Tsuchiya built two by 40 foot wading pools during the hot summer weeks. They were also responsible for cement floors in all the latrines and foot baths in all the showers.

Paul Tsuchiya

Yoshio Gotan

Min Inahara

Albert Tahara

Kazuo Morihiro

Frank Isogawa

Bobby Takatsuka

Joe Tominaga

Toshio Tsubota

Bonny Yamamoto

Security