

Reporter -- Fred Harada not only served as a reporter for the Grapevine. This 19 year old young man was an accomplished musician and conducted the Center's 30-piece symphony orchestra. Versatile and cleancut, in addition to writing, his specialty was the violin.

Reporter -- Lily Koyama was a diminutive bundle of smiles and sunshine. Constantly searching the center for news, 17 year old Lily covered all hospital and social news. She was a senior from Los Angeles High School.

Senior Typist -- Sumi Ishii, a young lady with a sunny disposition and 20 years old, came to the center from Fresno. She had a unique technique for cutting stencils and was a valuable addition to the typing brigade. Her brother, a former employee of Walt Disney Studios was a cartoonist for the paper at Santa Anita Assembly Center.

Technician -- Ben Fujii, a well-built 19 year old from Fowler, joined the staff in July. During his school days he won national honors in art. Notable for his deep voice and skilled hands, his artistic ability proved invaluable on many occasions.

Technician -- I. J. Iwamoto at 17 was the youngest of the technicians. He joined the staff the day after he entered the center from Fowler in May. His versatile contribution to the Grapevine and Vignette included headline cutting and service as a typist.

Technician Assistants -- Sunji Yomagota, John Kikuta, and Hugh Muranaka were the other members of the technician staff that printed the miles of (ready to read) material that flowed from the mimeograph machines.
