

December 21, 1923.

Dear Miss Morgan :

The main building looms so large that the landscape architecture should be built to scale with it. I advise making approaches, stair flights, walls, and general effects with big main building in mind.

I think stairs on each side of temple also cross axis entrances and approaches, also rear entrance, also effects seen from distance, should be sufficiently monumental to tie in with main central house motif.

Is this all right?

Sincerely,

M. V. Heavest
ju