

AFROTC in red-tape trap

Faculty action on the cancellation of the AFROTC contract with SF State bogged down yesterday in a meeting of an ad hoc committee of the Academic Senate.

The open meeting of the committee, which was attended by about 50 students, ended with an agreement by committee members that they would come up with a decision in time to present it to a full meeting of the Academic Senate next Tuesday.

No Decision

President John Summerskill has said that he will not make any decision about cancelling the AFROTC contract until he gets faculty advice.

Opinions vary on whether the faculty will act in time to insure the cancellation of the contract this semester.

"I realize that May 31 is a real deadline. If we have not acted by then we have in effect made the decision to maintain ROTC for another year. I am sure that the Senate will do everything it can to arrive at a clear-cut decision before that date," said

Academic Senate Chairman Walcott Beatty.

"The matter will probably go from here to the Senate to a full faculty meeting and possibly to a faculty referendum," said Henry McGuckin, a member of the AFROTC sub-committee and professor of speech.

Anti-AFROTC students, who sat quietly through the meeting yesterday, expressed disappointment at what they called the "red tape and bush-beating" of the faculty. The student body voted by a two-to-one margin to discontinue the AFROTC contract in the AS elections April 24 and 25.

"I think that if we get 300 students in a building the process will speed up," said SDS member Bruce Hartford.

'Unreliable'

"Students can't rely on the Academic Senate to move fast enough to settle this issue," said SDS co-chairman Bob Broadhead.

Students have scheduled an appointment with President Summerskill at 2 p.m. today in the conference room of the administration building to present their demand for implementation of the student body decision.

AFROTC headquarters: how long will it be so empty?

At 4 p.m. a meeting of all students concerned with the AFROTC issue has been scheduled in Ad 162.

"This meeting will decide which course the students will take to defend the decision we made in a democratic election," said an SDS spokesman.

The next open meeting of the faculty sub-committee on AFROTC will take place Monday.

Athletic storm still stirring

by John Hansen, Sports Editor

The confrontation between the Athletic Department and black athletes at SF State is becoming more and more polarized. At a meeting between the two factions the athletes presented five demands that must be met by May 25.

If the department does not hire a black coach, a black graduate assistant, a black housing co-ordinator, find summer jobs for the athletes and set up a grievance committee, a boycott of all sports next year is threatened.

The Athletic Department presented a statement categorically denying all charges, but Vern Smith, spokesman for the athletes, stuck with their demands.

"We feel justified in our demands. In addition to the boycott we have talked with the Associated Student government and received support to cut the athletic budget if our demands are not met."

Through the report, athletic director Jerry Wyness reaffirmed his position that all athletes are treated the same.

"All the problems brought up are not restricted to black athletes. We are not allowed to give housing and jobs. We help find them for athletes, and once an athlete has found one it is out of our control," he said.

Although white athletes have had similar problems, Smith said, "It's up to them to complain — we think there is racism practiced in the department and demand that it be stopped."

Wyness has contacted President John Summerskill and the housing and job offices to see if black staff members can be added.

"We think the department has enough influence to gain the objectives we want," Smith said.

"We were also disturbed at Wyness' flippant attitude. I don't think he takes our situation seriously," he added.

"I can't see how they think I'm not taking this problem seriously," Wyness said. "I have spent about 10 hours with members of the departments in the last few days trying to solve this question."

"We've gone to the administration and that's all we can do. Vern does not understand the financial situation a faculty member faces in a state college in trying to request additional salaries for a department."

"We've called meetings, met with the athletes and been open to any discussion with the group. I can't see how they think we aren't taking it seriously," Wyness concluded.

NLF flag joins Che in huts

Student artists decorated the huts with ground-to-roof paintings yesterday in the first day of the AS paint-in, which will continue today.

Political and social topics dominated the first day's art work. The south side of Che Guevarra Hall — the middle hut, shared by the AS executive branch and student publications — is now decorated with a flag-like, red-white-and-blue design with a question mark spelled out in white stars on a blue field.

The Hall's north side was augmented with a caricature of Lyndon Johnson and an NFL flag, with the legion "victory to the NFL."

AS Vice-President Albert Duro, who named the hut after Guevarra several weeks ago, said there is still room and paint for anyone who wants to add his contribution today.

"This may be the best thing we've done since we took office," Duro said. The paint-in is part of the inauguration festivities for the "Community-Action" AS officers.

Some of the artistic endeavors took a poetic turn. "I have looked for a home throughout my life, A place to be happy and to be sad..." declared the side of the Experimental College's Hut D.

Medical and musical themes occupied the minds of some of the artists. The passage-way between Hut D and the faculty's Hut A is now enshrouded with a gigantic heart and arteries, while Guevarra Hall bears a painted variation on the musical statement "It's all over now, baby blue."

The huts, located between the Commons and Bookstore, house the Associated Students government and the student programs.

OTEY'S CLASS A REAL CHALLENGE

Editor:

It's discouraging to read faceless criticism.

The time has come for someone who has the benefit of reflection, to make a criticism of the Gater article (front-page) naming Dr. Otey as a 'most dangerous man.'

With the guidance of Wendell Otey, I graduated from San Francisco State with a Master's Degree in Music. The Music Curriculum has not changed since I was a student, and from the sounds of it, neither has Dr. Otey, fortunately.

To take a class with 'Otey' is definitely a challenge, a real mind-opening experience being as innovative as the historical period covered allows. The brilliance of Otey truly comes forth during contemporary workshop situations, where perhaps the student might feel less frightened by his (Otey's) vastly collected and mentally filed information formulae. The beauty of Wendell Otey unfolds when, with serious forethought and unbiased intent, one can propose or compose an idea, or challenge his, face-to-face, and then realize together the solutions. There are some students who cannot handle this kind of rapport—thus, your published article, SICK, and full of unjustifiable fears, or guilts.

Admittedly, the Otey exam has been a point-of-jests for many years, and to get an "A" in an Otey class is an achievement . . . but not that difficult.

Rules of the game: (all games have rules)

1. Attend Every Class.
2. Take thorough notes, your own.
3. Understand the text.
4. Study and Prepare.

If this does not suit the student, Freedom of Choice Prevails . . . there is always another teacher, another school, another country, other world. No one is holding your hand.

And if this is also unsatisfactory, then in accordance with your conscience, it would seem that you would be obligated to Your Self to take a fearless look at your values and judge yourself—first!

OTEY'S PERSONALITY SIDE ISSUE

Editor:

I wonder if Miss de la Fuente realizes that Dr. Otey's personality is a side issue. If she had to take a course for her major, or pass a graduate exam on the strength of what he supposedly teaches, I wonder if she would support him so vehemently. When people who have received A and B grades object to his teaching, and when almost every music student fears his courses, it is more than spite and petty nastiness that is involved.

Please withhold my name.

ADMINISTRATION "STUPID"

Editor:

I know I'm probably the 10,379th student to say this, but I'm so disgusted with the administration that I don't care. With an administration so stupid and unorganized as the one here at SFSC, it's no wonder that the student body is the same way. This is my first semester and I wish my last. Unfortunately, as I'm involved in the credential program, I must return for one more semester. As a new student I have only run into two people who know anything and they are in the Education Department.

Recently I went to the Registrar's Office to find out the procedure for dropping classes. She referred me to some other office, which set up an appointment with a counselor so as to discuss WF and WP. I went to the appointment expecting to get a straight answer, but like the run around treatment I've received from the first day of this semester, she said she really couldn't say whether I'd receive a WF or WP as it was up to some Petition Committee. So what is she getting paid for? This is my opinion of the way things are run around here. Stupid. Nobody knows what they're doing and they don't seem to care. And the administration doesn't know how to cope with the difficult situations with students. Well, they are so wishy - washy themselves that they invite and foster these situations. So to these wishy-washy worms I say "Wake up!!"

PARK CLOSER SAVE SPACE

Editor:

Perhaps it would in part help the Parking Problem if the people who park on 19th Avenue, Junipero Serra, etc., would park just a bit closer. Surely it doesn't take that much room to unpark those power-steering equipped Mustangs and what not. Not because you got there at 7 a.m. doesn't mean you qualify for one and two-thirds spaces. Let's just have some simple-minded cooperation and the result will be space for about 25 percent more cars.

COLLEGE UNION FOR THINKING

Editor:

SF State is a place where a person can find almost anything to participate in or to join. State offers an atmosphere where one can become involved with significant happenings of this world. Yet for all its years, State has failed to offer a place where the college community can interact and really get to know their fellow students.

The proposed College Students Union offers such a place of involvement for students. When and if it is built, we can go there to talk, listen, share experiences, dance, eat good food, play, think, etc. The College Union offers a place and a chance for the thoughts and the people who have these ideas to learn from the other person. Let's hope that this chance for us of interaction and understanding is not just something left on the drawing board.

Animal behavior symposium here

Revelations of animal behavior, "Both Sides of the Railings," will be discussed during a three-day symposium conducted by the SF State faculty Program Center at the Sheraton-Palace Hotel.

The symposium, which continues through tomorrow, is co-sponsored by the newly-created San Francisco Institute of Animal Behavior. Dr. Robert Bowman, professor of Biology at SF State, is president.

According to Dr. Bowman, the aim of the new institute is to strengthen scientific collaboration between the zoological resources in San Francisco and its academic resources at the college.

The symposium is designed to focus on the acts of both men and animals and will include discussions of aggression, social life, the biology of behavior, animals as social partners of man, and the concept of the "naked ape."

Among the speakers at the symposium is Dr. H. Hediger, professor of animal psychology and biology at the University of Zurich, and Director of the Zoological Gardens of Zurich.

Meeting on white organizing

Students looking for a concrete alternative to merely being students may find what they want at this weekend's Conference on White Organizing, sponsored by the campus Community Involvement Program (CIP).

The conference resulted from the efforts of independent students in the community to organize more effectively.

"We want to acquaint students with effective alternatives to being absorbed into the society," said ex-SF State student Jeff Marchant, one of the conference organizers.

"The most effective groups in organizing in the poor and working class neighborhoods will be here to discuss and argue for their various approaches," he added.

Groups to be represented will include the Peace and Freedom Party, the National Community Union (JOIN), and the Mission Tenants' Union.

The Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) will also discuss their planned summer work-in.

"All students are urged to take part in the conference, whether they are students or disenfranchised persons," Marchant said.

Tomorrow's agenda includes a panel discussion in the Gallery Lounge from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., and topical workshops from 2:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Sunday the various organizations will conduct workshops from 10:30 a.m. to noon, and there will be a general get-together from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m., followed by films.

In California there is one choice -- one chance

Americans have begun to sense that with Eugene McCarthy as president, there would be an end to government by press agency and propaganda. To elect McCarthy would be to restore open debate of policies.

"A president," says McCarthy, "should understand that in a free country the potential for leadership must exist in every man and every woman. He must be prepared to be a kind of channel for the needs and aspirations of the people, to give direction to the movement of the country largely by setting people free. What this country needs is a freeing of our moral energy, a freeing of our resolution, a freeing of our strength."

San Francisco students will mass at the Students for McCarthy Headquarters, 4808 Mission Street (near Ocean Avenue) tomorrow, Saturday, May 11, at 10:00 A.M., to join students from other cities in an all out effort to canvass southern Alameda County. Free lunch!

CALL STUDENTS FOR McCARTHY — 587-3084 — ANYTIME!

Our country faces new problems — and demands new politics. McCarthy's candidacy is a challenge to "the system." Our response has been to take this challenge to the American voter. McCarthy's political success in California will depend on the number of people we can reach in a face-to-face encounter. Canvassing for Sen. McCarthy differs from traditional precinct work because of the emphasis on communicating with voters. This approach assumes that students can influence political decisions, and that they can influence the way in which people think about the issues which affect them.

Over 8,000 students canvassed the neighborhoods of Wisconsin — McCarthy won the primary with 57% of the vote.

Summerskill wants change

President John Summerskill criticised students and others who want to take over universities and said that they should find ways to "accomplish real change" when he spoke to a student audience at the University of California at Berkeley this week.

"I think that 'student power' is just one aspect of an enormous power-play that's going on in this country, with many groups trying to capture the universities," Summerskill said.

SF State is an example of the fights between these groups, and Summerskill is an example of "the unmaking of a president" that can occur in these situations, he said.

Talking about race relations, Summerskill called SF State "a pretty racist place" with "a very large, mass unwillingness to move over."

"You can go to a meeting of faculty to discuss special admissions policies, and every person there will have a different reason why things can't change. When you put all their reasons together, you see that they just don't want to change the basic nature of the institution," Summerskill said.

He also took a veiled slap at the history department for refusing to re-hire Juan Martinez, the fiery Mexican-American professor who works with ethnic minority students.

"If we want to hire minority faculty, it means that some departments are going to have to give up faculty positions that they have been waiting for for a long time. They may have to give up their — ah — Laotian specialist in history," Summerskill said.

Martinez was replaced by a Brazilian specialist, in spite of the fact that his assignment was to teach basic history courses in which this specialization is not important. Martinez has a Ph.D. in history from UC-Berkeley, while his replacement has no doctoral degree.

Summerskill said that confrontations are not the answer to the racism question. "Those answers have to come from within us as individuals. We have to find ways to move over and take action," he said.

Asked to elaborate on his perception of the correct approach for eradicating racism when "the traditional channels don't work," Summerskill said: "I don't know all the answers. . . . Somehow the generation ahead of the students must become more responsible," he said.

Summerskill pointed to the December 6 demonstration as an example of confrontations that do not accomplish their goals. Things got worse after December 6, he said.

The Movement Against Political Suspensions (MAPS) and the Black Students Union (BSU), which organized the demonstrations, were demanding that the suspensions of six students and the publication Open Process be lifted. These and several other demands were met within two months of December 6.

"The real trouble started" last summer, when "two right-wing students organized a mailing campaign to attack the administration for tolerating Open Process and the BSU, Summerskill said. These letters were sent to 10,000 influential persons throughout the state, who then put pressure on the college to crack down on students.

The students Summerskill referred to are Ron Kinder and Bill Burnett, who have been on the staff of State Senator John Harmer (Republican—Orange County) since at least October. Since they joined him, Harmer has launched public attacks on the SF State Foundation and the Experimental College.

All these forces would not be trying to gain control of the universities if they did not have considerable power in this country, Summerskill said. "The explosive discovery of new knowledge" has led business and government to turn to the universities academia for help," he said.

When the Board of Trustees questioned Summerskill after the December 6 mill-in, they asked "no questions about December 6," he said. All their questions concerned more substantive issues, he said, such as his participation in peace demonstrations and his support for the BSU.

"I didn't try to placate the politicians, but I do want to insure the viability of the institution itself," Summerskill said. He pointed to Columbia University, where classes have come to a halt due to a student-administration showdown.

"We may have trouble at SF State next week," Summerskill said, referring to a possible confrontation over the Air Force ROTC program.

"That's a pretty good issue. Colleges should take an honest look at whether they should teach warfare," he said, drawing the only applause of

Hallinan to render opinion on strike

OSEL's active pressure has let up for the time being, as the incipient student library workers' union await a legal opinion enabling the college to recognize it as an open shop.

OSEL spokesman Marvin Campbell said that attorney Vincent Hallinan, the Associated Students' retaineer on the current parking issue, has offered to render an opinion by next Monday.

Hallinan's opinion would act as a counter to the college's opinion, which vice-president Glenn Smith contends makes it impossible for him to grant OSEL sole bargaining rights as an open shop.

Thus far OSEL has been assured official recognition as a bargaining body, but not as the library workers' only possible representative in labor-management relations.

Meanwhile, if OSEL does not get sole bargaining rights this year, its members are trying to make sure their organization survives the summer intact, to carry on next year.

Last year, a similar movement among library employees to unionize fell apart after the year ended, when some of its key organizers and supporters finished at SF State.

Campbell explained that next year efforts would probably be made to organize all student employees of the college, since they all come under the same employment policies and pay scale.

"But I'm going to insist that the faculty must have the right to express their opinions before I make the final decision. I'm turned off by people who say 'it's gotta be this way or else,'" Summerskill said.

Early this semester, the Academic Senate called a special faculty meeting to consider the AFROTC issue. The faculty did not show enough interest to muster a quorum — 200 of the college's 700-plus professors.

Summerskill was the key-noter at a symposium on "Students, Protest and Society."

Gators have chance to decide baseball race

Although a midseason slump dashed their conference championship hopes, SF State's baseball team could still have a lot to say about who will finish first.

The Gators host co-leader Hayward State tomorrow afternoon in the final FWC doubleheader of the year. Hayward and Sacramento State are both 10-2 with Nevada two games back at 8-4.

After last week's double win at Chico the Gators look like they are ready to dump the league-leading Pioneers. The locals dumped Chico, 2-0, 6-4.

A month ago the Gators were 0-6 in the FWC, going into the doubleheader Coach Bob Rodrigo's boys are 5-7.

The Gators will use their ace, T. J. Delbex, in one of the games tomorrow. He won the first game at Chico with a three-hitter. In his last three games he has given up four hits (a no-hitter against Nevada, a one-hitter at Sonoma added to his Chico stint.)

Rodrigo is not certain yet as to who will throw in the second game.

In other FWC action this weekend Sac State will try to keep its share of first place at UC Davis while Chico goes to Nevada and Humboldt meets Sonoma.
