Rep seeks reapportionment proposal for AS Legislature

A bill that was unanimously passed by the Welfare Committee and a resolution strongly urging an amendment to the Foundation By-Laws faces the AS Legislature today.

Meeting for the first time this semester at 12:30 in ED 207, the legislature will vote on the appointment of a three-man committee that would be "responsible for the physical control of public events on campus."

Members of the committee proposed by AS Rep Ken Harrison, appointed at large by the president, would include a representative of the activities office, a legislative member and a representative of the creative arts department.

AS Rep Terry McGann will propose a resolution which would make the two resident hall representatives appointment to the Foundation board a responsibility of the AS Leg Speaker. The two representatives have previously been appointed by their respective halls.

McGann stated that the rationale for the resident appointments was abrogated on March 26, 1964, when a lease was signed between the SF State Foundation and the AS which separated the residence hall operations from the Foundation.

Included on the legislative agenda is a bill that would provide $100 for the discovery and development of campus talent. The proposed bill would be under the auspices of the AS Activities Department.

Reapportionment — a controversial item these days — is under consideration by the AS Legislature. Introduced by AS Rep Terry McGann, a proposed reapportionment amendment presents the following considerations:

- That the entire Legislature shall be elected at large.
- That there shall be 10 student seats with the following qualifications: two shall run as lower classmen (60 units or less), six shall run as upper classmen (60 units or more), and two shall run as graduate students.

- That there shall be one faculty and one administrative member of the Legislature.

- That only one election of officers shall occur in a n y calendar year.

McGann has, in addition, proposed a resolution to establish a specific area on each floor of the library that would serve as a smoking area.

"With exception of the hall outside the ground level Garden Room and the designated smoking room on the first floor adjoining the main entrance, the SF State library enforces 'no smoking' restrictions," said McGann.

'Unjust war' says Vietnamese

Little response at rally

By BEN FONG-TORRES

The third consecutive "Anti-War in Vietnam Rally" presented yesterday on the Speakers Platform was promised to be a sizzler. Instead, it fairly fizzled.

"Five or six speakers from off campus" were scheduled, according to Doug Samuels of the Humanist Forum, co-sponsor of the rally with the Alliance Towards an Active Campus.

While the two previous rallies included lively debating, shouting and jeering from both sides of the microphone, the question and answer session after yesterday's speeches lagged for lack of audience participation.

And despite the warm weather, little more than 150 students showed up. This compares to the crowds of approximately 500 and 200 for the Monday and Tuesday meetings.

Audience members had to listen closely and attentively to understand speaker Nguyen Van Luy's arguments. Van Luy, a former South Vietnamese citizen, spoke with a heavy accent while denouncing the United States' "undeclared, unjust war" based on "a complete prefabrication."

Van Luy, who worked in the United States War Office during World War II, claimed that "the US war plan has gone bankrupt; that our agents have sustained heavy defeats in Vietnam," and that the South Vietnamese "do not share our feeling that Red China will intervene or attack."

The Red Chinese, he said, "will be forced to defend themselves and to help their neighbors if the United States troops go up to North Vietnam."

Ira Sandpearl, who, according to Samuels, is a supporter of the Quaker group — The American Friends Society — also spoke in terms of war.

"If we allow World War III," he said, "it will come because we believe, all over the world, that we can take another man's life."

The bearded Sandpearl complained, "We murder the 'bad guys'—and we don't know who they are." He cited the fluctuation of status between "ally" and "enemy" according to situations and named Germans, Japanese, Chinese, and Russians as examples.

The looming of war also underlined Bert Kanegson's speech.

Kanegson, from the War Resisters' League, criticized the US policy leading to "the existence of concentration camps in South Vietnam, napalm bombing, and the most obscene tortures known to man.

"We are becoming a nation of brutes," he said, and he predicted that "we shall lose

Stanton talk on education

Congressman William Stanton (Dem. - San Jose) will speak today on "The Crisis in California Education" at 2 p.m. on the Speakers Platform.

Music from Spain today

Juan Serrano, a flamenco guitarist from Spain, will appear in the Main Auditorium today at 12:30 p.m.

Serrano was born in Andalusia, Spain — where flamenco music was born — and has traveled extensively. His program will be preceded by an explanation of flamenco music and Serrano's songs.

Admission has been set at 25 cents.

Anti-Viets plan more action

Protesters of US-Vietnam policy are not stopping with "Anti-War Rallies" at SF State.

Plans for further mass action, in the form of marches, organized picketing, and — of course — more speeches, were announced at yesterday's noon rally. They include:

- An American Humanist Society-sponsored hike today from the Speakers' Platform to West Portal, beginning at 12:45 p.m. Via Muni buses, the protesters will regroup at the Federal Building for picketing and other related projects until 6 p.m.

• A rally at UC Berkeley's Sproul Hall on Friday. Co-sponsored by the Women for Peace and the Committee for Nonviolent Action-West, the meeting will feature speeches by FSM leaders, followed by a march — this time to the Oakland Naval Supply Depot.

• A Saturday rally and demonstration at the Federal Building starting at 2 p.m. Co-sponsored by the Humanist Forum and SNCC (Students Nonviolent Coordinating Committee), this one is scheduled to last until (according to a Forum spokesman), "it gets too dark and cold to do anything else."

Government jobs for needy students

The federal government is providing twenty-three part-time jobs for SF State students who need financial aid this semester.

Last week SF State received a $10,000 grant, part of $4.5 million made available to California public and private colleges and universities by the recently enacted Economic Opportunity Act (EOA).

The off-campus jobs created under the act range from public relations assistant to arts and crafts instructor. The act, passed August 20, 1964, provides for salaries up to two dollars an hour for 10-15 hours of work a week.

Helen Bedesem, coordinator of the Student Financial Aids Office, will administer the program here.

She has estimated 75 per cent of SF State students could qualify for employment under the act. Applications are now being accepted in AD 180.

Students will not apply for specific jobs but will complete the usual application for financial aid, which includes a parents' financial statement and personal interview. Those who qualify will be notified of jobs, and will automatically be considered for other forms of aid.

Mrs. Bedesem described the EOA grant as a "tremendous step for the college."

A provision in a bill to be presented to Congress this year would make scholarship funds available to colleges already participating in the EOA.

SF State has a much larger request of $178,000 pending before EOA administrators. The money would be used to pay students for part-time work on campus.

Ira Sandpearl addresses students gathered around the Speakers Platform on the conflict in Viet Nam program to be held at the college this week.

Pay cut cripples recruitment

By TONY MIKSAK

The pending 1.8 per cent pay cut for two ranks of state college professors has been called a brutal blow, but it's not an isolated one.

While the professors are down, the state colleges continue to be hit by a sluggish salary scale that cripples the power of the colleges to recruit qualified personnel.

The assumption of a recent report on personnel matters in the state colleges, prepared by Chancellor of the California State Colleges Glenn S. Dumke, is that the pay cut is only making a bad salary situation worse.

The 21-page annual report was submitted in January to Governor Brown and the state legislature.

Acknowledging that the colleges have been experiencing an increasingly heavy rejection of offers of employment, the reports notes:

"There will be a serious impact of the uncompetitive salaries on the quality of academic programs in the state colleges if faculty are not improved."

The conclusion of the report is that there is justification for a 15.8 per cent increase in faculty salaries.

Daniel Feder, dean of academic affairs here, summed up the recruitment problem: "Prospective faculty members laugh at our salaries," he said.

An economist just out of college and possessing a Ph.D., can command $9,000 to $10,000 in business or government, according to Feder.

At SF State, he would probably start at $7,044, the initial salary of an instructor. He could hope eventually to reach the upper limit of $15,828 as a full professor.

That is, of course, barring further pay reductions.

"We are losing potential faculty members all the time," Feder said. "We get clobbered on the question of salaries. If an instructor does come here, he often stays a few years and moves on."

At the request of Chancellor Dumke, SF State compiles a semi-annual report on faculty recruitment problems.

In the present report, the most frequent reason cited by professors who turned down SF State job offers was "insufficient salary."

This category also ranked first in 13 of 16 state college reports, and second in the remaining three.

The Chancellor's report indicates some state colleges offer prospective teachers higher ranks than necessary in order to make up for basically low salaries.

Dean Feder reported other drawbacks to employment at this college.

"Financial considerations are not everything," Feder said. "There are frequent objections to the heavy teaching loads, large classes, and to the lack of graduate assistants."

"We get a chance to talk to bright young people at professional meetings," Feder said. "We are asked about chances for professional growth at SF State.

"Will there be time, they ask, for research, writing, other creative work? Or will it be a constant rat race with no opportunity to regenerate themselves?" he said.

"If a person who lives intellectually doesn't have a chance to grow intellectually," Feder said, "he is in trouble."

On the other hand, SF State has earned a reputation for excellence in many areas. According to Feder, SF State offers faculty members "a constant freshness of opportunity."

"The built-in historical trend here is that everyone gives a new idea a shot," Feder said.

"You don't have to find out what the traditions are when you arrive at this college. Instead, you are constantly challenged to grow."

Frederic Burk Foundation set for Peace Corps pact

Terms for the sixth Peace Corps-Frederic Burk Foundation contract were negotiated during the semester break by a three man SF State team.

The group traveled to Washington, D.C., to meet with Peace Corps officials and prepare a contract to be signed later this month or in early March.

Those attending were: George Hallowitz, chairman of the Interdisciplinary Study Center and director of the Peace Corps training project; Dale McKeen, associate professor of accounting and deputy director of the project; and Stanley Paulson, vice president for academic affairs.

The position of the Frederic Burk Foundation is, in McKeen's words, an "anchor pin, a fiscal focal point" of the Peace Corps training program.

The contract between the foundation and the Peace Corps covers such items as the budget, dates and conditions of training, the country or countries trained for, and the number of trainees to be handled, according to McKeen.

The contract covering the summer of 1965 is essentially the same as past contracts, McKeen said, with only a few details changed.

McKeen said that 175 Volunteers will be trained here this summer.

Poland is back 'free sex for all'

Jefferson Poland — SF State's famed anarchist who favors abolishing the administration—is back.

Fresh from New York City, Poland, who once ran for Rep-at-large advocating contraceptives in the Bookstore, is campaigning here again.

This time his motto is "Free Sex For All" and he's trying to drum up recruits for his Sexual Freedom League (SFL), a group he organized in New York City.

Ernie Barry, another former student here, tried his hand at the SFL here but without avail. He was the only member.

But Poland is taking another crack at it and has set up an SFL revival meeting at the Blue Unicorn, a coffee house at 1927 Hayes tonight at 7:30.

A Groaning World

The world about us hangs under the pall of death, (Genesis 3:17-19). Paradise is gone, overgrown with thorns and thistles. The cry of the wild animal reflects the despair and darkness of a dying world. All creation awaits the Spring of Christ's return.

"For all creation is waiting patiently and hopefully for that future day when God will glorify His children. For on that day, thorns and thistles, sin, death, and decay that overcome the world against its will, at God's command will all disappear, and the world around us will share in the glorious freedom from sin which God's children enjoy. For we now that even the things of nature, like animals and plants, groan in sickness and death as they await this great event. And even we Christians, although we have the witness of the Holy Spirit within us, aren't free from trouble; we too wait anxiously for that day when God will give us our full rights as His Children, including the new bodies He has promised us—bodies that will not be sick again and that will never die" (Romans 8:18-23).

While God has promised to intervene again in human affairs in a drastic way and restore the world to order, a large number will be left out, banished into outer darkness by their refusal to accept His way of doing things.

The question is, do you know the overwhelming victory and new life which God offers freely today, even as the sands of time are running out? Have you discovered reality as it really is, the life of Jesus Christ our Lord? Don't be swept away with the perishing and lost in a dying world, receive today God's great gift to you. Your prayer of trust in Jesus Christ is all God asks of you.

Drucker qualifies for golf tourney

linebacker for the Gator football team last season, has successfully traded his football cleats for golf cleats. Last weekend Drucker, a senior, fired 18-hole scores of 75-75 to place fourth in the qualifying for the 49th annual Roos-Atkins City golf championships.

Robert E. Smith shot a 147 to take medalist honors in the competition.

The qualifying rounds were played at San Francisco's Harding Park and Sharp Park courses.

DRUCKER VS PERLITE
In the Saturday upper bracket championship pairings, Drucker meets Tom Perlite, who shot a 36-hole total of 155. The winner of that match goes Dennis Drucker, a heavy-set into the semi-final rounds.

Another SF State senior, Mike Moriarty, provided the most exciting shot at Harding Sunday by shooting a hole-in-one on the 157-yard third hole with a six iron.

Moriarty also made the championship pairings. His 155 total pits him against Ed Sastagnetto, a veteran performer in local competition, shot a 151.

The cut off point for qualifying was 158.

The SF State wrestling team beat the University of California at Davis, 23-17, last Saturday to set two SF State records.

Bringing their season record to 5-4, the Gator grapplers won their fifth match in a row,

Meanwhile, in front of the Commons, students supporting government policy in Vietnam were garnering signatures for a petition designed, according to its author, Dan Sutton, "to (1) indicate a dissenting viewpoint to that of the rallies, and (2) end up, hopefully, with more signatures than the anti-US policy groups, therefore indicating that SF State has diversion in its political thoughts."

The petition is backed with funds from Young Americans for Freedom (YAF).

"ATAC and the Humanist Forum," said YAF president Harvey Hukari, "purport to represent the majority of student opinion, since ATAC controls student government."

"We disagree and we want to show that their claim is untrue," Hukari concluded.

More than 70 signatures had been collected by noontime yesterday, according to Hukari. This represented three hours of petition-circulation.
