Jazz gig ends as four groups play

The Associated Students' "Jazz '65" closes today with four groups climaxing the three-day "gig."

The Rudy Salvini Orchestra, a "rehearsal band" that has made dozens of appearances in the Bay Area in the last 11 years, has been expanded to 20 pieces just for this concert. The band will be playing a new composition and arrangement, written especially for this appearance, by Gary McFarland.

The John Handy Quintet, featuring Mike White on violin, and Gerry Hahn on guitar will follow the Salvini Orchestra. This quintet, now appearing regularly at the Both/And Club in San Francisco, has received unqualified critical acclaim, as well as the response of jazz enthusiasts at this year's Monterey Jazz Festival. The group is currently recording for Columbia Records.

Next, Shelly Manne and his Men take the stage, featuring Conte Candoli, trumpet; Frank Stroaier, alto and flute; Russ Freeman, piano; and Monty Budwig on bass.

In the final group the "Men" will join the Rudy Salvini Orchestra to "open up" their arrangements. Williams will guest conduct the double group today.

The performance begins at 12:30 in the Main Auditorium, and tickets are $1 to students and $2 general admission.

Bare breasts and free sex discussed at College Y meet

The objectives of the Sexual Freedom Forum agree with the attitudes of most college students, according to George Drysdale, acting president of the forum.

Drysdale, along with two other representatives of the forum, spoke yesterday to members of the College Y.

Although the main purpose of the meeting was to explain the forum's ideas about abortion, the speakers ranged over a number of other topics on sex.

On the subject of marriage, Jim Holmes, press secretary for the forum, branded 90 per cent of marriages "a lie."

"The only ones who profit from them are lawyers and the people who sell silverware," he said.

Holmes denied he was in favor of abolishing marriage, but said he'd "like to give it a decent burial."

He said he favored the type of marriage in which the partners shared all the responsibilities, including that of breadwinning.

Phillip Williams, a forum member and a student at City College, stressed the importance of mental and emotional compatibility in marriage. "Once you get out of bed, you're the real man," he said.

Williams said a couple should live together before marriage.

Holmes was scathing in his attack on the Broadway strip shows.

"I think Broadway is disgusting," he said, and then spoke of "chrome plated boobies," and "loathsome sexual hucksters."

"We are being pushed around in the head by people who manipulate frustrated sexual energies. But I would defend their right to dangle their boobs if they want to," he added.

Holmes then suggested that the desire of the public to see peep shows could be curbed by a television program showing a typical American couple — "a mom and dad type" — making love for three hours on the kitchen table, "with close ups and sound effects."

The so called Blue Laws drew fire from both Holmes and Williams.

Holmes said the laws in California against cohabitation and oral-genital contact were used by police when they wanted to "put the thumb-screws" on someone for another offense.

Holmes cited an article in Playboy magazine about a man who was sentenced to 15 years in jail for committing a crime against nature (oral-genital contact) with a girl in a parked car.

Holmes also felt that the time had come for sex education in the secondary schools, and struck out at Superintendent of Education Max Rafferty for his stand against it. Holmes called Rafferty "the most dangerous man in California education."

He quoted Rafferty as saying sex education in high school "would be like supplying more Indians at Custer's last stand."

Williams said the forum's main concern this semester will be directed toward changing the antiquated abortion laws.

He said 5000 women die each year from abortions, either through incompetence or unsanitary conditions. He estimated a million abortions took place annually.

According to Williams, there should be no more stigma attached to the removal of a fetus than the removal of an appendix.

Citing statistics, Williams said 80 per cent of recorded abortions were performed on older women, while 20 per cent were performed on girls between the ages of 12 and 19.

The three men stressed that the purpose of the forum was not to have orgies or encourage promiscuity, but to work for the enlightenment of society on matters concerned with sex.

New 'South Bay State' College urged for 1966

The creation of a new state college to provide space for 20,000 students has been placed before the California State Legislature for immediate approval by Governor Pat Brown.

The Governor, acting on recommendation of the State College Trustees in asking for $10,380,000 to buy 346 acres of land in the Dominguez Hills area near Compton, said the site might cost less if bought immediately.

"I am placing this on special call at the request of Assemblyman Joseph Kennick (D-Long Beach) and of the Trustees," said the Governor, "because of the urgent need for a new state college in the South Bay area."

The proposed college would be called South Bay State College and could open in the fall of 1966 if the Legislature approved the purchase of the land during the current session, according to the Governor.

Senator Thomas Rees (D-Los Angeles) will author the measure and Assemblyman Kennick will co-author and carry the bill in the Assembly.

The Governor said the Board of Trustees decided on the Dominguez Hills area after detailed comparison of four sites in the South Bay area, compiled from an initial survey of 49 suggested sites.

The Trustees based their recommendation on four factors: adequate available land to service the number of high school graduates in the state's largest school area; transportation access to the campus and its proximity to the center of student population; promise of rapid acquisition; and the consulting architect's assurance the site can be developed into a beautiful campus.

"It has the added value of being located in an area which would provide access to a college for minority group students in western Los Angeles who do not now have a college close at hand," the Governor said.

A Palos Verdes site, which earlier received tentative approval by the Legislature, was abandoned because of high costs. This site would have provided less than half the acreage in the Dominguez Hills plan and taken care of far fewer students.

"Although the cost of land and site development at Dominguez Hills will be some $437,000 higher than for the Palos Verdes site," said the Governor, "the larger student body would bring that cost down to an average $567 per student as compared with an average cost of $682 per student at Palos Verdes."

Race dispute at Daily Cal

BERKELEY (AP) — The Daily Californian, student newspaper at the University of California said Wednesday it will not suspend publication because of a racial dispute at Bogalusa, La.

The Senate of the Associated Students voted to delay a boycott against paper produced by the Crown Zellerbach Corp. Such a boycott had been approved against the firm's alleged racial policy at three Bogalusa plants.

Tuesday, the paper said the boycott would force it to suspend publication. It said the firm which prints the Daily Cal used Crown Zellerbach newsprint.

Crown Zellerbach has denied charges of racial discrimination in hiring practices at its Bogalusa plants.

Students puff away, signs or no signs

Smoking, which was a commonplace thing until the days of the Great Cancer Scare, is about to cause another controversy at SF State.

It seems those "no smoking" signs around the campus — the ones everybody ignores — are bothering some of the non-smokers.

At least one complaint about smoking in classes has reached the office of the Dean of Students.

The Faculty Manual, which states that it was "prepared for the information of the faculty," contains this succinct passage:

"There is to be no smoking in classrooms during class or at any other time. . . ."

However, Antoinette Willson, associate professor of English, stated flatly, "I don't permit it."

"It's bad for the students' health, and besides it's dirty," said Miss Willson, who is a non-smoker.

A tour of the campus revealed some inconsistency in posting of the signs. They are in the old wing of HLL, but not the new wing; likewise the Education building. Signs are all over the Science building, but there are none in evidence in the new Psychology building.

Perhaps Miss Willson summed it up best when she said, "We should either enforce the rules or take down the signs."

But few people really seem to care.

War labeled 'racist'

The war in Vietnam was labeled racist by a Vietnam Day Committee speaker Tuesday.

Bob Avakian, a member of the Berkeley chapter of the VNDC, said it was racist not because it was waged "against a yellow people," but because "it is waged against a people we care nothing about."

Avakian was one of several speakers from the VNDC and the Students for a Democratic Society who spoke at a rally here protesting alleged suppression of the student peace movement by the government.

Also speaking was Ken McEldowney, a member of SDS, who said for the first time in years "college students are being drafted off the campus."

He said students carrying less than 15 units or with a grade point average below 2.4 are now being classified 1A.

McEldowney said the administration hoped the severe criticism from Congress and other governmental branches would crush the student peace movement.

"But there has been a fantastic backfire," he said, "and membership in SDS has soared."

Another speaker from SDS, Carolyn Craven, compared attempts by the administration to crush the peace movement with the witch hunting of the McCarthy era.

She said that during the red scare at the time of the Korean war "people were afraid to speak up and those who did made it a civil liberties fight rather than concentrating on the real issue—the war in Korea."

New prof lecture series 'College Without Walls'

A new series of faculty lectures, entitled "College Without Walls," begins this week at SF State.

Speaker at the first lecture will be Otto Butz, associate professor of social science and organizer of the series. He will lecture on "Facilitating A New Order of Experience" at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Frederic Burk Auditorium.

A series of 16 lectures is planned during the Fall and Spring semesters, each featuring a member of the SF State faculty or administration.

"College Without Walls" is sponsored by the Education Forum of California. The purpose of the series is to explore new needs and opportunities in higher education in relation to social change, and to promote community understanding and support.

The series is open to the public.

$500 of leftover art pieces scattered all over the place

Hanging in obscure corners, tucked away in dusty file cabinets, and floating around campus on an "on loan basis" are works of art that have cost students more than $500.

The pieces of canvas, burlap, and plaster were purchased from the student Contemporary Art Festival last April as part of a campus beautification project. According to Harold Harroun, business manager for the AS, none of the pieces has yet found a permanent hanging place.

In similar purchases in the past Harroun said that it has taken more than a year to get the first picture hung. He produced a neatly rolled piece of stitched burlap from his file cabinet that cost $200.

According to Robert M. Church, assistant professor of art, it takes a great deal of time to find a suitable and useful place to hang a painting or piece of sculpture.

Church said that the campus has few walls that are considered safe to hang a large painting because of the cement-plaster construction.

Claire Salop of the Activities Office said the change from the spring semester, when the art is purchased, to the fall semester, with a new set of student body officers, slows the process.

"It takes awhile to get things going," she said. "The paintings should be hanging by January."

Good response for Peace Corps

The current drive for volunteers at SF State has generated high interest. In only its second day, 25 students were scheduled to take the Peace Corps test.

"With repeated drives, I expected the interest to slack off, I am still amazed at the response," said recruiter Lorraine Farinha, who served in Brazil three years ago.

"In classes, we're scheduled for a five-minute pitch, but the students keep us there for as long as half an hour asking questions," she said.

"The questions the students ask are intelligent and quite to the point," she continued.

All Peace Corps staff members who man the information centers are veteran volunteers.

They agree that the most frequent questions concern the draft.

Other prevalent questions are: "Were you a volunteer?" and "Would you go back?" The answer in both cases, is "yes."

One student inquired, "Do you take foreigners?"

"No," was the reply. "Volunteers must be citizens."

And another was, "Can I join if I served in the Army Intelligence?"

"No, the Peace Corps has often been accused of spying activities, but the charges have not been documented." is the answer.

"What about married or engaged couples?"

"We want them," said Sally Irish, who served in the Philippines. "I feel that married couples have some built in advantages and stability."

The staff is anything but displeased about the seemingly endless questions.

Curiosity may contribute to the success of Peace Corps' current drive to increase its ranks of 10,000 volunteers to 14,000, according to recruiter Thomas Williams.

'Abolish parking limit,' campus neighbors agree

Parkmerced residents are almost unanimously in favor of easing the restricted parking laws, according to an Associated Students survey.

Of 42 interviewed residents, 41, or 97.6 per cent, stated they were in favor of abolishing the present one-hour parking limit.

AS President Terry McGann said that many residents stated they are tired of receiving parking tickets while parked in front of their own houses.

A check by the Gater disclosed that over 100 tickets are issued daily in the first few Parkmerced streets near the campus. More than 200 are issued daily in the area, $2,000 worth weekly.

McGann said the restrictive parking laws are a "harassment of students that doesn't solve the parking problem."

He said that SF State is the only school in the city with one hour parking restrictions on nearby streets.

The AS plans to present a formal request to the city Board of Supervisors this week, asking removal of the present laws.

McGann and the Parkmerced residents agree that the ultimate solution to SF State and Parkmerced parking problems is to create more on-campus parking.

The five men who will choose a new president for SF State began deliberating last week.

The five are the Presidential Selection Committee, elected at large by the faculty at large, and they have between now and February to recommend between three and five presidential candidates to Chancellor Dumke.

The Chancellor will report directly to the Board of Trustees of the California State Colleges, who will confirm the appointment of one of the candidates.

The committee has emphasized its function as selection, not suggestion, of candidates.

Thursday the Committee met with Assistant Chancellor for Faculty and Staff Affairs Mansel Keane to lay down the functioning ground rules for the initial stages of selection.

The process will begin within the next two weeks with the submission to the Committee of candidates' names by the faculty, staff and students of the college. The Committee will review the history of every candidate suggested, then narrow its choice of candidates down to the three, four or five they will suggest to the Chancellor.

"We will consider any candidate, regardless of whether he comes from SF State or not," said Committee member Leo McClatchy.

One of the major problems the committee faces is the current drain on presidential talent in California.

Besides SF State, three other state colleges have to find new presidents by next semester: Chico, Sacramento, and Cal State at Los Angeles.

Also, two Cal Poly presidents are retiring before February.

YAF officially 'condemns' the John Birch Society

The right-wing Young Americans for Freedom passed a resolution Monday condemning the John Birch Society and its views as preposterous, irresponsible, and harmful to the conservative cause.

The resolution, passed in a six-to-three vote, stated that the SF State YAF chapter "Does deplore, condemn, and repudiate the statements of Robert Welch and the John Birch Society, and urge that those members of the . . . Society who share our concern for responsible conservatism forthwith resign."

ciety's style of conservatism is "distinguished only by . . . preposterousness and irresponsibility."

According to president Harvey Hukari, a copy of the resolution will be sent to the YAF newspaper, "New Guard," and to the national and state chairmen of the YAF.

He was not sure that the resolution would be sent to the John Birch Society itself.

Hukari said conservatives were being unjustly associated with the Birch Society and that this association hindered some of their efforts and membership drives.

The resolution said the So-

The whim of a nubile maiden

By ROBERT NEUBERT
Gater Sports Editor

Could the whim of a nubile maiden make or break a college football team? I say yes in the case of Chico State.

The Chico Wildcats, who play SF State at Chico Saturday, are proud possessors of a 4-2 record this season. Pretty good, considering they lost every game they played in 1964. There are only 10 returning lettermen on this year's squad, so they alone could not make the difference.

As Gator coach Vic Rowen has said, one guy can give a team the lift it needs to become a winner. Chico has found the answer in Ron Morelli, a halfback out of Antioch High in the East Bay. Morelli currently is the fourth-leading ground-gainer in the Far Western Conference, with almost 400 yards in six games.

Morelli would have been playing for SF State this season had it not been for a certain maiden of his acquaintance.

The girl friend and Morelli each concluded two years at Diablo Junior College in June, and Morelli applied to SF State and was accepted. But when the little lady decided The Land of a Thousand Parties was for her, Ron also dragged his body into Chico.

If the Gators win Saturday, no sweat. But if the Wildcats prevail, Chico may hail a capricious broad.

* * *

Noted in a recent SF Chronicle:

Herb Caen dragged out an old Mark Twain quotation which epitomizes the reason I never use the editorial "we" when writing a column:

"'We' should be used only by kings, editors and people with tapeworms."

It is a shame for Caen that never the Twain he shall meet (sorry, there), for he could use the old master's clever wit.

* * *

When I read page two of Tuesday's Gater, I got a couple of yuks from the misplaced modifier in the headline "Fraternity's handicapped party success."

Now what is a "handicapped party"? Is it a party that is hindered or impeded? And if so, why was it a success? Or was it like a horse race, where the inferior nags get advantages that make their chances of winning better?

I was still pondering the ramifications of such an affair when I came to the bottom of the story, where a spokesman for the frat said he hoped such activities would show that the inhabitants of the Redwood Room were not rah-rahs or social bums.

A well-intended remark, no doubt, so I went down to check out the action. It was interesting.

A steady low roar of human voices, punctuated occasionally by raucous laughter, greeted me. The noise, although incessant, was okay until some clown blew a shrill whistle, jumped atop a table, and shouted, "Everybody against the wall."

Maturity in action.

Bored sorority girls talked casually about their clothes and the lads they were going out with. The guys at the brown round tables now and then sent crushed straws and cups flying toward their friends. And a few cats utilized the booths for making out.

I was impressed. The frat man was right. These were not rah-rahs or jocks, but pre-pubescent children. Or were they?

Stanford wins

Water polo team almost pulls it off

The Gator water polo team came within a half of pulling off the upset of the year Tuesday, before succumbing to the Stanford Indians, 10-6.

SF State scored first on a goal by Rusty Mills midway through the opening quarter. After Stanford tied the score, Gator forward Jim Dunn tallied on a 10-foot backhand shot to give the home club a 2-1 lead after one period.

Dunn added his second goal early in the second quarter for a 3-1 lead. Fred Kennelly added another goal with five minutes remaining in the half, and the Gators were in front, 4-2, at halftime.

The second half was all Stanford. SF State was outscored 8-2, but never gave up as they desperately tried to knock off the unbeaten Indians.

The Stanford victory was its ninth straight this season, and it remains the number one ranked team in the country.

SF State has now compiled a 4-6 season record.

Dunn was the only Gator to score two goals. Mills, Kennelly, Mike Dower, and Chris Fussell added one apiece.

Coach Walt Hanson's club plays its next home game Friday afternoon at 3:30 p.m. against Sacramento State.

Booters try on the farm

The rejuvenated Gator soccer team tries to start another winning streak Saturday when it meets Stanford University at 1:45 p.m. on the WRA field.

SF State had its two-game winning streak snapped by San Jose State, 2-1, last weekend.

Jim Sermol booted the winning goal for the Spartans in the final quarter.

Micha Reimer scored the Gators' only goal in the second period. The halftime score was 1-1.

Coach Art Bridgman's club has compiled a 2-4-1 record, its best in four years through the first seven games.
