Dear Governor Schwarzenegger,

As a Ventura County resident, I am concerned by the grave threats associated with Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) and the state of California's rush to use it. Please consider all of the implications of LNG before handcuffing the people of California to the use of this unneeded and potentially dangerous fuel.

I am in support of your bold proposals for prioritizing the development of renewable energy and energy efficiency. However, I feel as if until these proposals are fully implemented, there is no need to put us on the hook for more foreign fossil fuels. These two energy tracks are fundamentally at odds with each other.

The people of California deserve clean energy generated by renewable resources, rather than more natural gas which is known to contribute to global warming. LNG is also extremely volatile. The supertankers used to transport this chilled fuel, and the import terminals that we will need to construct, present potential safety hazards for our communities as well as unnecessary targets for terrorist attacks.

We have the ingenuity in this state to build a clean energy economy. Doing so will create jobs, energy independence, and cleaner air. Please walk the talk, continue down the path we're going, and say "NO" to LNG.

Thank you for taking action to protect Californians and the generations that will follow.

Sincerely,
