From the time CSUCI opened its doors, the English Program has brought students, faculty, President's Circle, and community together for wonderful lecture/performances by nationally acclaimed authors. These events, funded primarily by the IRA, enrich our literature and writing classes with readings and discussions by authors students are studying, authors who can answer their questions about how and why they write what they do. This has also been an interdisciplinary series joining one, two or several other programs to sponsor authors who speak to issues across disciplines. We're very proud of our well-attended and well-reviewed events.
