

Bill introduced to Senate in effort to extend GI benefits

A bill has been introduced, co-sponsored by more than one-third of the members of the US Senate, to extend the benefits under the Korean War GI Bill to veterans who served between January 31, 1955, and July 1, 1963.

Officially titled the "Cold War Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act," the bill as it applies to eligible college students means that a single student would get paid $110 a month for college up to 1½ times his length of service.

For an ex-GI who served a two-year tour of active duty the bill would mean that he would get 36 months of his education paid for—in effect a four year college program courtesy of Uncle Sam. To be eligible for the program a veteran would have to have been on active duty for at least 180 days. This lets out most six months reservists.

As in the World War II and Korean War GI Bills, higher allowances are provided for students with dependents. A veteran with one dependent would get $135 a month, a veteran with two or more would receive $160.

Generally the program would provide for a wide range of choice on the part of the students including approved institutions in foreign countries.

Veterans at SF State who would qualify would need to submit a list of courses and a proposed plan of education to the Veteran's Administration officer handling the program.

Students would be able to use the benefits of the bill up to June 30, 1973 — longer if they had not begun their educational efforts until 1968.

Any veteran who didn't receive a dishonorable discharge would be eligible. However, as part of the agreement to accept funds from the government, enrolled veterans would have to meet stricter standards for class attendance.

Similar bills to the Cold War GI Bill have been introduced each year for a number of years in one of the houses of Congress. They have either died in committee, been vetoed by the president or failed to clear any one of a number of hurdles that allowed its enactment into law.

Dr. Molnar retires from SF Symphony Orchestra

Violist Ferenc Molnar, professor in SF State's music department, is among the long-standing members of the SF State Symphony Orchestra who are retiring this year.

Born in Budapest, Hungary, Dr. Molnar's musical education included extensive study under such great composers and musicians as Hubay and Bartok. In 1928, he left his homeland and came to the United States.

"I have been playing with the San Francisco Symphony for 20 years now," says Molnar.

"After serving such a long time on a symphony, as I did, along with many others, I was given the opportunity to leave as were seven other of my associates.

"One of my main reasons for leaving is the fact that Jorda will also be retiring. I feel that if a leading man such as Jorda leaves such an organization and a new man replaces him much disagreement is created. A new conductor understandably wants to import new and great talents from different sources, therefore, I felt it was my time to leave."

Dr. Molnar has also been active in various outside activities during the time of his teaching years and membership with the Symphony.

"With a concert career in full swing it was difficult for me to follow five lines at once. Now I will certainly have more time to be with my students.

"I plan to pursue a program of traveling concerts as a soloist and chamber music player in the near future. My wife, who is a harpist, and I will be applying for a Guggenheim Fellowship and will travel throughout Europe," Dr. Molnar concluded.

Handley gives piano recital

Paul Handley, SF State scholarship piano major, will give a recital tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre of the Creative Arts Building.

Included in the Junior Recital program will be compositions by Bach, Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt.

House Subcommittee plans 'seminar' inquiry on news

By DANIEL RAPAPORT
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee hopes to start hearings March 18 on the administration's "managed news" policy, it was learned today.

The sessions will cover the broad area of government information but will not deal with specific complaints according to one source.

The hearings stem from complaints of newsmen during the Cuban crisis that the government on occasion withheld non-security information and that it attempted to "manage" the news with some pieces of information it did give out.

The Government Information and Foreign Operations Subcommittee, headed by Rep. John Moss (D-Calif.) will conduct the inquiry.

As envisioned now, the hearings will be more in the form of seminars than an investigation. Witnesses will not be placed under oath and will talk freely with subcommittee members. A witness list has not been drawn up but those appearing will fall into two categories — high level government information officers, and representatives of press groups.

The subcommittee would like to hear from White House Press Secretary Pierre Salinger, State Department Information Chief Robert Manning and his counterpart in the Defense Department, Arthur Sylvester.

The list of press witnesses will probably include representatives of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the National Editors Association and the National Association of Broadcasters.

Individual newsmen probably will not be called to air their complaints that news was withheld.

A committee source explained, "What we'll try to do is get general attitudes lined up."

Evans in first noon reading

Dr. Matthew Evans, professor of humanities and English, will initiate this semester's noon poetry readings in the Gallery Lounge Monday.

He will read selections from Dryden, including "The Secular Mask," "Religio Laici," and "whatever else comes into my head."

Dr. Evans considers Dryden to be the master of a very great style and one of the two great classic voices, the other being Samuel Johnson. Johnson, according to Dr. Evans, "is good for whatever ails you."

Summarizing his thoughts on Dryden, Dr. Evans said, "I love people who think and feel and act in poetry. Many poets think, fewer feel, and still fewer act. To find them all in one poet is a highly wonderful thing."

She's a starlet now

This lovely girl is Laurel Goodwin, a Hollywood starlet now being seen in Elvis Presley's latest flick, "Girls, Girls, Girls." If the rest of the girls are as cute as Laurel, Elvis is indeed lucky.

Laurel is an SF State alumnus. We like to take a little credit for giving her career a boost. She was a former SF State entrant in the nationwide Glamour magazine Best Dressed College Girl contest.

She didn't win a spot among Glamour's winners — but then, Glamour didn't give away Elvis as a prize, either. See contest details on this page . . . Elvis will be making more movies.

Entries for the best-dressed search are due

By REED NESSEL
Gater Fashion Consultant

This week will be the big one as far as Glamour Magazine's Best Dressed Girl Re-zine's Best Dressed Girl Search on our campus.

SF State's entry in the nation-wide competition must be chosen this week, with the final selection slated for Tuesday, February 26. Deadline for all entries is this Thursday, February 21, at noon.

The short entry period was made necessary by a conflict between State's semester break and Glamour's deadlines. Sorry, girls.

Entries must include a full-length picture showing the entrant in an outfit representative of her wardrobe. Size and type of picture is unimportant — but it must be clear.

Along with the picture, the entrant must submit her name, address, age, telephone number, height, weight, hair color and other pertinent information.

The entries can be submitted either to the Gater Office, HLL 207, or to Hut T-1.

Remember, ladies, entries must be in by Thursday.

Franciscan editor Roy L. Weitzel announced that senior pictures will be taken one day only, Monday, March 4, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., in HLL 204. Cost for the sitting is $1.50. Men must wear dark suits

It's wet, but not for the poor student

It's wet — 750 feet from the Berkeley campus.

For students, however, most of the area surrounding the campus remains dry.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board recently granted the Shattuck Hotel a liquor license — the first to break the traditional one-mile university limit. The hotel is located in Berkeley's downtown shopping center.

Student hangouts in the area remain dry.

Two other local establishments, the Durant Hotel and Larry Blake's Rathskeller restaurant have applied for liquor licenses, but have not yet asked the ABC for hearings.

A spokesman for the Durant says that it will not become a student hangout because — "our prices are too high for students."

Administration and faculty personnel, business groups and professional and educational conferences make up the largest "university" business of the Durant.

Blake, whose application is to sell wine with meals rather than hard liquor attacked the "drinking students" issue saying that students over 21 have as much right to drink as any one else.

Future site chosen for state college

San Bernardino has been chosen as the future site for California's next State College.

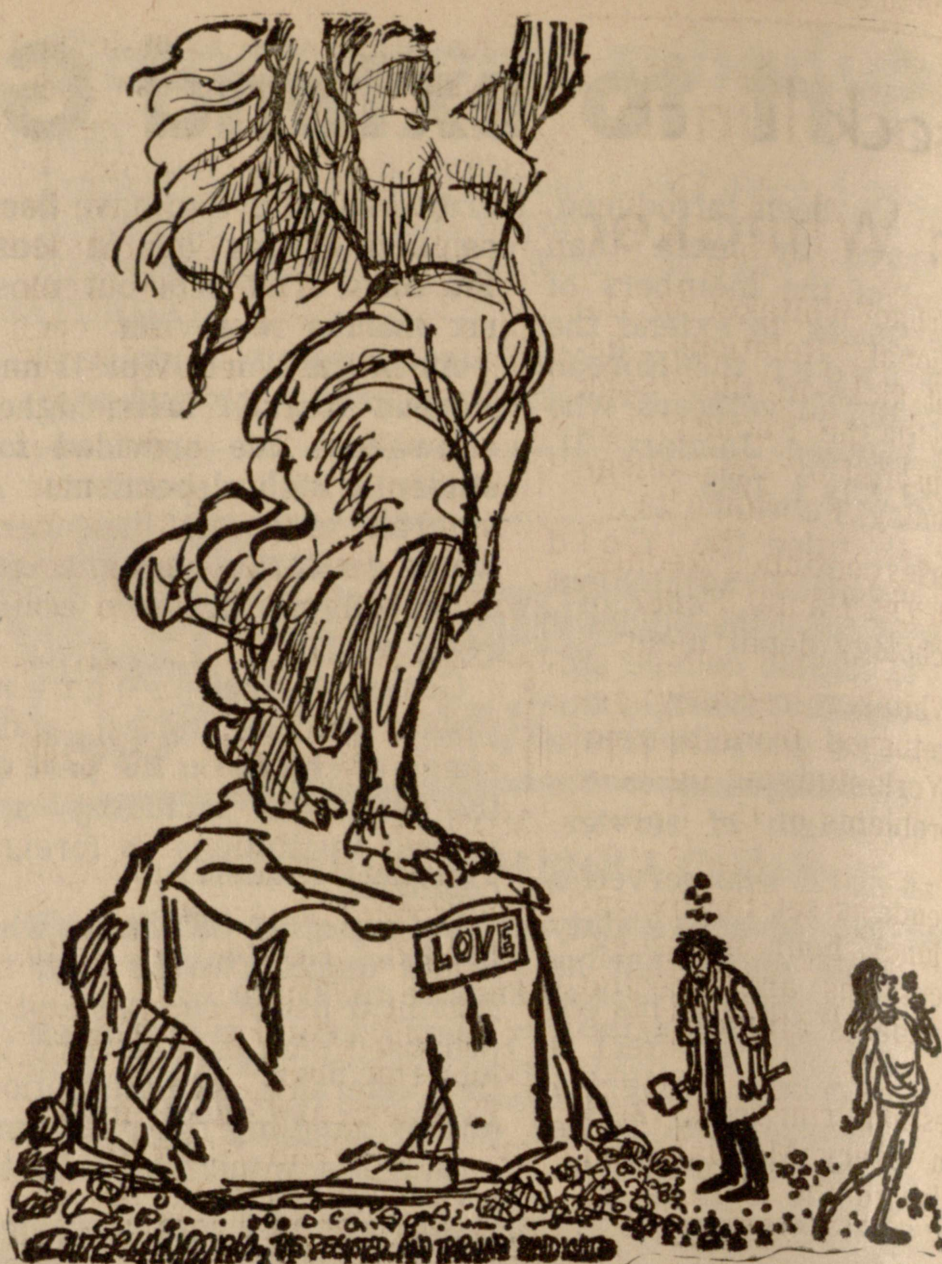

The location was chosen by the State College Board of Trustees at their meeting last week.

Final approval on the site will be needed from the Public Works Board. If the board gives this approval, the college will open in September 1965.

Expected enrollment of the first class will be about 200 students. The enrollment is expected to reach 5,000 by 1975.

Letters to the Editor

Hurrah for sex

Editor:

About Donald Levitt's letter (Feb. 14). On behalf of all male dorm students (and probably most of the female dorm students), I would like to say that Mr. Levitt's proposal to integrate the dorms is an unchildish, mature, and reasonable thing to do. Mr. Levitt appears to be a righteous man (never been in jail, has a steady job, never had to pick lettuce) and surely must be the appropriate boy to begin integrating the dorms. I am sure that the dorm students will gladly pay Donald's way through college if he can get the dorms integrated with double beds in each room. But, Don, you and Jeff would be doing dorm students a favor if you would get contraceptives sold in the dorms rather than the Bookstore.

Steven Larson

Down with Jeff

Editor:

I find it hard to understand or sympathize with the current "Save Jefferson Poland Fund." We had enough of Mr. Poland, with his Bookstore contraceptives and animal shelters, last semester. It was not very amusing.

Also, the president of the student body should not officially support such a cause. This degrades the whole idea of student body government at this school. I think that the student government should disband if it has nothing else better to do than this, and that the lethargic Mr. Poland, if he wants money for out-of-state tuition, should go out and work for it like the rest of us.

Girl badgers Wisconsin for quarterback position

UPI — A suffragette freshman coed at the University of Wisconsin said she may try out for football quarterback next fall.

Mary McIntyre said Thursday she came close to breaking down the sex barrier of the all-male Haresfoot Club, a university drama group.

"I've always been a sort of a ham and I'm a suffragette as well. Everything else on this campus is coed, so why should men only be allowed to go on tour with the Harefoot Club?" she reasoned.

Miss McIntyre donned dirty sneakers and old white denim trousers. She plastered down her short hair and appeared at the auditions for "Destry Rides Again."

When she finally made known her identity to club members, she persuaded them to foot the bill for a visit to the beauty parlor.

50-milers get medal

UPI — The Amos Alonzo Stagg Foundation will present a gold physical fitness medal to each person who walks 50 miles in 20 hours or less.

Dr. Ferd H. Busher, national director of the foundation, said the walk was in keeping with the great tradition of Stagg.

Stagg, one of the first all America football players and all-time great coaches, retired at the age of 97. He is now 100.

Persons who have accomplished the walk and desire a medal should write the foundation, Box 2344 in San Francisco.
