Students:

I would like to point out some of the benefits provided for you by Student Council and some of the opportunities which are available to you in Student Government. You pay $20 a year in student body fees. This is used to support division council programs, the Pioneer, yearbook, cultural and athletic programs, guest performers, and student council. I cannot stress too greatly your participation in extracurricular activities. You can make Student Council's work easier by participating actively.

Clifford J. Ferreira,
President of the Associated Students

When you registered at Cal-State, you became a member of a department within one of our seven academic divisions: Biological and Health Science, Business and Economic, Creative Arts, Education, Humanities, Physical Science and Mathematics, or Social and Behavioral Science. Hopefully, you will take enough interest in your education to participate in your division's planning sessions and activities.

You will be able to express your opinions at divisional meetings where division officers, council representative, and department representatives will be discussing the future activities and policies of your division. You can even decide the leadership of your division by voting in the general student body elections in May of each year, or become a leader yourself.

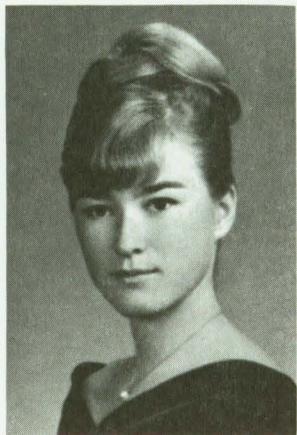

By using your division representative to Student Council as a liaison, your division has a voice in the activities and policies planned by the Student Council. The Council consists of a president, vice-president, secretary, two representatives of the entire student body, and a representative from each of the seven divisions. Council meetings are open to all students and opinions can be given during the discussions which precede the actual voting on issues of importance to the entire student body.

All the funds for the activities sponsored by the divisions and Student Council are provided by the student body fees that you pay at the beginning of each quarter. Your fees that you pay are used to sponsor our athletic teams, symposiums, lectures by faculty and guest speakers, movies, dances, college concerts and plays, and other activities.

Only your active participation in your division and in student government can insure that your own interests are being served. Participate!

Clubs, organizations open for membership

In order to establish a club or organization on campus, there must be at least 12 members and a faculty advisor. Application forms may be obtained from the Dean of Women's office. In addition to this there must be a written constitution submitted and approved by the Student Council.

The Dean of Women's office has the complete list of current clubs and organization active each quarter. Listings of meetings will be published in the student newspaper. There are clubs on campus dealing with music, athletics, religion, politics, and law. There are professional societies, recognition societies and honor societies.

There are now four service groups on campus. Alpha Phi Omega and Alpha Phi Beta men's service fraternities are open for membership to any male student. Alpha Phi Omega each year presents an Ugly Man Contest to raise money for a scholarship.

Gamma Delta Epsilon and Lambda Sigma Chi women's sororities are open for membership to all female students who are interested in service to the college. Gamma Delta Epsilon members are also interested in promoting friendly community relations.

Division system works at CSCH

Cal State is not organized according to the traditional class system of freshmen to seniors but by academic divisions.

When students have questions concerning course advising, they should go to the division office for assignment to an academic counselor in a department.

Each division is organized with a division student council. The president of the division and officers, along with the division representative to student council, plan seminars and activities for its division members.

The Division of Biological and Health Sciences, for example, encompasses health science, marine science, and biological science.

The concern of the Division of Business and Economics is to provide students the background, understanding and tools necessary to achievement of their career goals in business. The departments are business administration, business education and economics.

The Division of Creative Arts currently offers majors in art, music, and speech-drama.

The Division of Education is concerned with the professional education of teachers and with programs for specialists in selected areas.

The divisions are teacher education, educational psychology, health and physical education, recreation, and school administration and supervision.

The Humanities Division offers majors in English, history, foreign languages, and philosophy.

Six departments make up the Division of Science and Mathematics. They are chemistry, mathematics, physical science, physics, psychology and statistics.

The Division of Social and Behavioral Science consists of anthropology, geography, journalism, political science, public administration, sociology and social science.

Confused, befuddled? see a dean today

Dean of Students, L. D. Edmison, is responsible to the President of the college for the over-all administration of student services. As a member of the executive staff, he serves as a representative of the students on campus. Policies pertaining to student life are developed in cooperation with his staff and recommended to the President. Similarly, many policies which affect student life are executed by his staff, principally the Dean of Women and the Dean of Men.

The Dean of Students also serves as chairman of the Student Association Budget Committee. Another of his duties is being the disciplinary officer of the college. It is his responsibility to protect the rights and freedoms of students. He also must see that students accept responsibilities which are the marks of mature citizens in a democratic society.

The Dean of Women serves as coordinator of the out-of-class education program and of quarterly orientation activities. Dean Thomas and her assistants also are in charge of the college activity program. Individuals or groups seeking to establish clubs, organization, honor societies, social and recreational events, and other out-of-class activities should clear with the Dean of Women or the Activities Advisor in her office.

The Dean of Men is in charge of financial aids, scholarships and loans, foreign students, housing, personal counseling of students, and other duties as may be assigned by the Dean of Students.

Members of Dean Howard Slatoff's staff work with students to assist them with financial problems. He is also concerned with housing of students and the administrative control of the residence halls and other college approved housing.

In addition, his staff advise foreign students of rules and regulations of the U.S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization. The staff also keep foreign students advised of college regulations.

Student services help get studies finished

Health Services — All currently enrolled students are eligible for the free services of the Student Health Service office and its staff. Part-time students are limited to emergency and first aid care. All students must show registration identification to receive care.

Student Health Services encompass health education, the prevention and treatment of illnesses and injuries, and the provision of a safe and healthful environment. This includes such basic benefits as: evaluation of the student health record, health counseling and health education, special tests, laboratory and X-rays, insurance, and clinical services.

A health insurance plan which provided protection against the expense of hospitalization and care, which is not provided by the regular college health service, is offered through the Associated Students Office.

The Student Health Services office is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. During the noon hour (12 to 1 p.m.) emergencies only are taken. Requests for service should be on appointment basis, if possible.

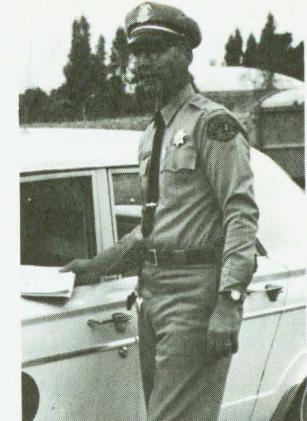

Counseling and Testing — The College Counseling and Testing Service is available to all students free of charge to provide help on any topic of concern whether it be academic, vocational, social, or personal in nature. Consultation is voluntary, based on individual and/or group counseling sessions which can at times be extended to include several weekly appointments. When indicated, a student may be assisted with a referral to a community health clinic, social agency, or private therapist.

The second function of this office is to conduct various tests for students such as admissions, graduate study and others. Students can check for up-coming test application dates by looking on the bulletin board outside the office.

The Counseling and Testing Service, located in FA 260, is open for appointments from 8 a.m. to 12 a.m. and from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Dr. Donald Strong, Director of Counseling and Testing Services, is available to answer any questions which may arise in regard to these activities.

Parking — Campus parking facilities are available to students with the purchase of parking permits at $9 per quarter for regular students and $4 for part-time students. The stickers may be obtained at the Accounting Office, FA 145, on the day of registration. A coin-operated parking lot is available on campus at a cost of 25 cents per exit.

Parking tickets issued to students are $2 which may be mailed to the Hayward Municipal Court.

Placement Office — The Placement Office has three functions: part-time or student job placement, educational placement, and business-industry-government placement.

Registered students wishing to utilize this service should complete part-time registration forms in the Placement Office, FA 294. Available part-time jobs are listed on the bulletin board just outside the office. Registration forms should be brought up to date once each quarter.

Veterans Affairs — A coordinator of Veterans Affairs is located in the Records Office, FA 1227A, to assist students seeking information and counseling concerning the V.A. program. Only Cal-Vet dependents are eligible. For further information pertaining to any of the public laws, contact the records clerk.

Auxiliary Foundation — Auxiliary Foundation exists for the benefit of students, faculty, and college staff. Its services include vending machines, cafeteria and bookstore. A.F. is responsible for selling tickets for all programs on campus, and administering a "Trust Fund" which will provide "Grants-in-Aid" and scholarships for California State College Students. The auxiliary Foundation also serves as a bank for all college clubs and organizations.

Records Office — The Records Office maintains academic records of students, but also performs such duties as registration for classes, veterans affairs, graduation and issuing transcripts.

It is in the Records Office where a student goes to drop a class. The student may even drop at the end of a quarter for an emergency such as severe illness.

No appointment is necessary; the office is open during regular working hours.

Financial Aids Office — The Financial Aids Office participates in many loan programs. A student must have certain application forms filled out in order to apply for a loan.

The college maintains a short-term emergency loan program for students who have temporary financial need. Loans are available at no interest for periods up to 30 days.

The office is located in FA 181. An appointment is necessary.

Housing Office — A major goal of the Housing Office is to develop the best possible conditions for successful college living.

There is one off-campus residence hall, Carlos Bee, which accommodates 308 men and women students.

Card file listings of off-campus accommodations are available in the Housing Office. These include furnished and unfurnished houses, apartments, and room without board. These accommodations are not inspected by the college. The office is headed by Erwin Bigger.

Director of Intercultural Relations — This year a new center was opened, the Intercultural Studies Center located in the Fine Arts building (293). It is headed by the Director of Intercultural Relations.

Foreign Students Office — The Office of Foreign Students coordinates all services of the college for foreign students. A counselor will advise students in regard to admission, regulations, personal problems, and in any areas where the student needs assistance. The office is headed by Clayton F. Daugherty.

Independent Study Center — The Center for Independent Study operates under the office of the dean of instruction and provides materials and space for students who wish to do extra work outside their regular classes.

No credit is given students enrolled in the center, but there are teaching assistants available to help students who have difficulty with the programmed material.

No appointment is necessary, but the student should inquire first to see if a teaching assistant is available for consultation.

The brightest events are yet to happen

There will be many Homecoming activities, including rallies, queen campaigns and elections. The Homecoming game will be against the University of San Francisco on November 2.

The climax of the day will be the traditional ball and the Homecoming Coronation of the queen.

The fourth annual Pioneer Week of Cal State is the major activity of the spring quarter. It is a week filled with contests, surprises, Beau and Belle elections, noon dances, and the Pioneer-100 trike race. The end of the week ceremony will be a feed and dance.

Pioneer Week will be a week to drop books and have fun.

Concerts and out-of-class activities are sponsored by the Activities Committee, which receives funds from the Student Council to put on a varied program for the year.

The two headliners for fall quarter will be Harpers Bizarre, Cannonball Adderley Concert on October 11 and the Roger Wagner Chorale on December 6. In addition, noon concerts, films, and all college dances will be presented each quarter.

*The Pioneers are blasting off
the countdown has begun,
No matter how tough the foe we meet
we'll have them on the run,
The spirit of our college fair
is one that can't be beat,
And when the starting whistle blows
we'll just turn on the heat.*

*The colors of our college fair —
the Red, the White, the Black,
Will carry us onward into space
and keep us on the track,
And when the final chips are down
for everyone to see,
We'll FIGHT! FIGHT! FIGHT! FIGHT!
on to victory.*

Homecoming Game

In June, 1957, money was appropriated by the Legislature for a state college in southern Alameda County. After months of controversy over possible sites, the Hauschmidt ranch in Hayward was chosen as the home for the new college. When the results of the decision were known, the Municipal Band of Hayward marched down B Street in celebration, preceded by a sign proclaiming, "Hayward now has a state college."

Even before a site for the college was definite, the State College for Alameda County had opened its doors in 1959 to a student body of 293 who met in Sunset High School and the County Office Building on Winton Avenue.

In 1960, the college moved into the former Hayward High School complex on Foothill Boulevard. In April, 1963, approximately 900 students were attending classes in the old buildings and using a library that was once the girls' locker room.

Cal State got its first freshman class and its name, "California State College at Hayward", in the fall of 1963 when the college moved to its hilltop home.

Student publications offer reading material

The Pioneer, the student newspaper, is published on Tuesdays and Fridays. It is being printed on campus through the Journalism Department. Newspapers are free to students and are distributed on the red stands throughout the college.

The New Dialogue is a publication which started last year. There is no regularly scheduled publication date. Copies of the New Dialogue are distributed by its staff members after publication.

Each year, the students of the Humanities Division Council collect literary articles from students, faculty, and administration for publication in the Amaranth, Cal State's literary magazine.
