All Hail, Green and Gold

(Cal Poly Alma Mater)

*All Hail, Green and Gold,
May your praises e'er be told
Of friendship and of courage
And stalwart sons of old!
All Hail, Green and Gold,
In your name we shall prevail,
So to California Polytechnic,
Hail! Hail! Hail!*

—Harold P. Davidson

Academic Dress

The traditional academic attire that is seen today had its beginnings in the Middle Ages when the university first developed as an institution of higher learning. The most important centers of intellectual life at that time were the monasteries and the least affected by the disorders of the time. This relative stability of the monastic life left monks free to develop, for the first time in Western society, systematic graded education.

The first students were the monks and priests, and the clothing they wore was more for protection from the elements than as distinctive regalia for the scholarly way of life. Caps were a necessity in the cold drafty buildings and capes and hoods were worn for warmth. In later centuries, as the British universities passed from the control of the ecclesiastics, the costumes took on brighter colors, and the hood was singled out as the item to be made distinctive for various degrees by color, trimming and lining.

The use of caps, gowns and hoods has been continuous in the United States since Colonial times—the tradition having been transplanted from Oxford and Cambridge to the New World. However, the dress code was modified and the vivid colors so prevalent in Great Britain were eliminated.

Prior to 1895, faculty academic costumes varied widely from university to university. Since few people knew the distinguishing marks or colors for the various degrees, the dress code was standardized for all American universities. Students began a movement which would spread throughout the country to make academic regalia an integral part of the commencement ceremony. A desire to make the festivities more impressive and interesting as well as to add grace and dignity to the function led the students in this successful endeavor.

At Cal Poly, the Bachelor's candidates wear a wide-sleeved gown and the Master's candidates wear a gown with slit sleeves. Both groups wear caps with colored tassels. The color of the tassel identifies the School in which the wearer has taken a degree. The Cal Poly hood is lined in gold with two green chevrons (stripes).

School Colors

Tassels of caps are in colors associated with the different Schools or degrees and are:

School of Agriculture and Natural Resources	Maize
School of Architecture and Environmental Design	Brown
School of Business	Drab
School of Communicative Arts and Humanities	White
School of Engineering and Technology	Orange
School of Human Development and Education	Black
School of Science and Mathematics	Golden Yellow
Division of Social Sciences	Citron

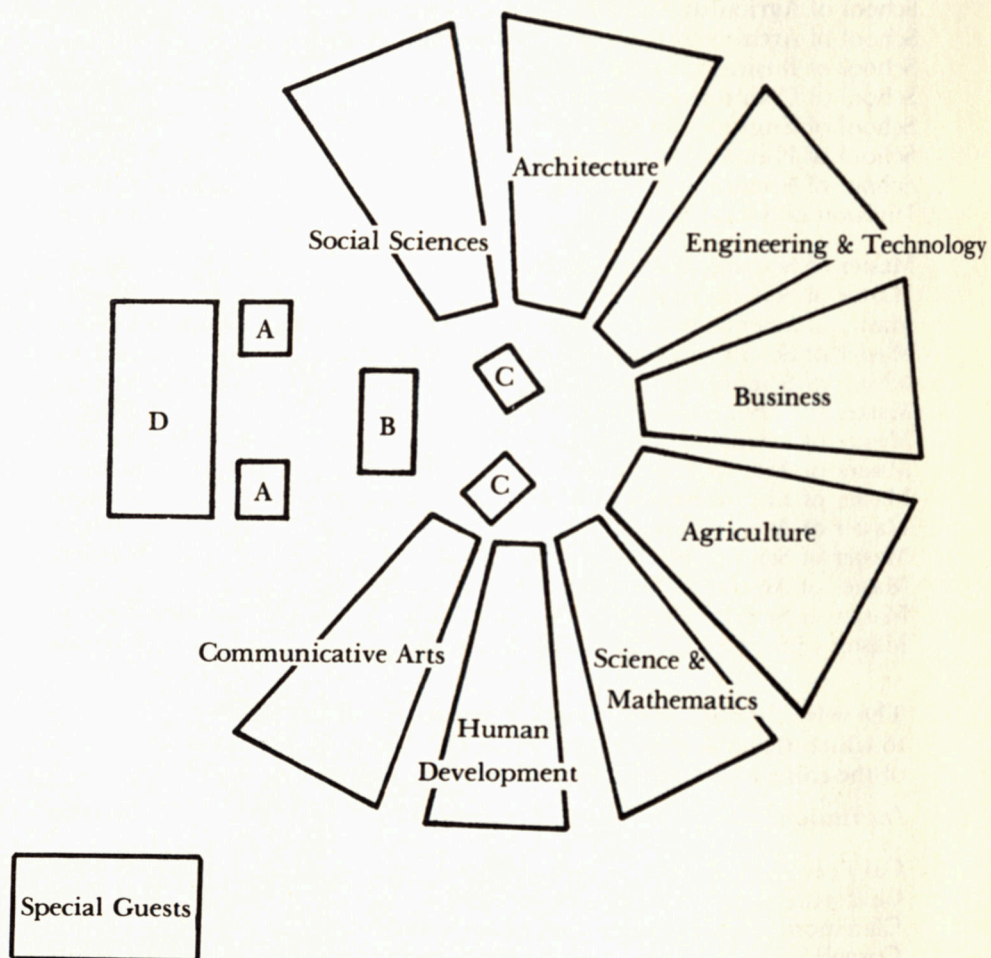

Master of Science in Agriculture	Maize
Master of Science in Architecture	Brown
