

degree was offered in 1949; today it is offered in 37 fields of study.

Between 1953 and 1958 the college was moved from the old campus site, by then surrounded by the City of Fresno, to a 1410-acre site six miles to the northeast. In 1961, under the newly created California State College system, the administration and control of the state colleges was transferred from the State Board of Education to an independent board, the Trustees of the California State Colleges. An approximation of university organization was effected during the years between 1965 and 1968 through the organization of the college into seven schools and the Division of Engineering. The schools, each with its own dean, included Agriculture, Arts and Sciences, Business, Education, Professional Studies, Social Work, and Graduate Studies. Further reorganization resulted in the division of the School of Arts and Sciences into the School of Humanities, School of Natural Sciences, and the School of Social Sciences.

Fresno State College in 1911 had an enrollment of 150 students, most of whom were women. By 1940 the enrollment had increased to 2,000 students, by 1964, to 7,500. In the fall of 1971 more than 14,000 students registered and by 1980, it is expected that about 22,000 will be attending the Fresno campus.

The Presidents of Fresno State, in order of tenure are: Charles L. McLane (1911-1927), Frank W. Thomas (1927-1948), Arnold E. Joyal (1948-1964), Frederic W. Ness (1964-1969), Karl L. Falk (Acting) (1969-1970), and Norman A. Baxter, who has served since 1970.

FACILITIES

The University is located at Cedar and Shaw Avenues in the northeast section of the City of Fresno. Its 1410 acres provide for the expansion of facilities necessitated by a continually increasing enrollment. When the Shaw Avenue location was first occupied, during the 1953-54 academic year, there were only four completed buildings on what was then an 880-acre site. Ten years later, in 1963-64, major buildings on campus included administration, agricultural classroom, agricultural mechanics, home economics, bookstore, business, cafeteria, education-psychology, engineering, home management cottage, industrial arts, library, gymnasiums for men and women, music science, social science, speech arts, student health service and the first residence halls. Between 1964 and the fall of 1971, the addition of student administration, residence hall commons, classroom and office buildings, a three-story college union, new bookstore, and a new art building of contemporary design
