4E. Paragraph and Essay Organization (1) (Former EXP 64D, 64E)

Developing skills in identifying the sub-topics which make up the central idea of a paragraph or essay, in expanding and supporting ideas, and in arranging them so that the author's purpose is carried out as effectively as possible.

CHILD DEVELOPMENT

The university offers an interdisciplinary major leading to the Bachelor of Science Degree in Child Development. The major is appropriate for students interested in vocational opportunities based on children. It may lead to employment in the areas of preschool, child center, private nursery, special programs for disadvantaged children, and other child-related vocations.

The program includes a behavioral science base from psychology, sociology, home economics and courses in communicative disorders, and speech communications.

The major consists of a core of 10 courses listed below, plus approved electives. Note: H Ec 39, Psych 10 and Soc 1 are prerequisites to some of these courses. Please consult catalog.

Students interested in this interdisciplinary major should consult the Chairman of the Home Economics Department in the School of Agriculture and Home Economics for assistance in program planning and assignment of advisers. (See brochure on Child Development, Home Economics Department, for additional information.)

CLASSICAL STUDIES

Although the university does not offer a bachelor's degree program in classical studies, many courses in several disciplines are concerned with this subject. By appropriate selection from these courses as electives or within the requirements of various majors, a student can secure a useful background of study as preparation either for graduate study or for his or her vocation.
