

Convention were taken on a delightful drive through San Jose and the surrounding country.

Sunday was spent in devotional meetings, a consecration meeting being held early in the morning, a sermon by Prof. Hayes at eleven, and separate meetings for ladies and gentlemen in the afternoon.

The services in the evening consisted of addresses by delegates and others. At the close, the members of the Convention, and all others present who were interested in the work, joined hands forming a large circle extending entirely around the chapel, and thus standing sang the familiar hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds." The Convention then adjourned to meet next year at Berkeley.

Throughout the entire Convention the feeling of good will and Christian fellowship was manifest, and the affair proved not only strengthening and beneficial in a spiritual way, but highly enjoyable as well.

To the people of College Park the members of the Convention feel especially grateful for the kindly welcome they received, and for the delightful manner in which they were entertained.

ALL SORTS.

No more Belts needed in Mid. A.

Does love come like a summer sigh? Ask Ed.

Wanted—A cushion for the front seat in the Senior A row.

Normal girls should never go riding with their "brothers."

Senior A class pictures are to be taken by Hill & Watkins.

The Middlers brought back some good pictures from their trip to Saratoga.

Miss X.—"Can you dismount from the bicycle?"
Miss Z.—"No, but I can get off."

All information with reference to ostrich culture will be thankfully received by Prof. K.

The trip of the second division of Senior A's to Mt. Hamilton has been postponed till the middle of June.

From the sounds that come from the Junior rows we should imagine they had been studying sigh-chology.

Why are rabbits not found on the mountain highlands? Because the mountain peaks are bald and no hares grow there.

FRYE.

Reason why the fauna of Southern Asia is different from that of Northern: "When the animals of Southern Asia tried to climb the great plateau of Thibet there was a change of climate, and because of the change of climate they could not climb it."

On the tenth Prof. Keeler of Mt. Hamilton tendered his resignation. We hope it was not to avoid our Normal excursion.

Yes, the fountain brink is an inviting seat, especially when one spies a lone angler seated there studying nature in its depths.

In consideration of the fact that Decoration Day comes on Saturday this year, the Trustees gave the school a holiday on May Day.

Some of the students in the Chemistry class do not like the book they are using because it is called a primer. It makes them feel young.

When you go out to Prof. Schoof's and find the lane guarded by a sow, that is the time for the girls to walk the fence. Some Junior A's tried it.

Several of the students are out with the measles; but proper precautionary measures have been taken, and it is hoped the disease will not spread.

The Agendia will furnish the literary and musical program for the military entertainment to be given by the Middle class about the middle of June.

The Y. W. C. A. expects to be addressed on the twenty-second by Mrs. Thomson, Chairman of the Pacific Coast Committee of the Y. W. C. A.

Although we have heard that ostriches do not thrive at points farther north than San Diego, yet an ostrich farm is carried on with more or less success right here at the Normal.

The Junior B's have organized a reading club with the following officers: President, Anna Munn; Vice-President, A. Weed; Secretary, Jessie Donaldson; Treasurer, May Arbogast.

When Juniors go picnicking, they should remember that although in the country, they are not privileged to enter peoples' gardens, yes houses, to find out what kind of people live there.

Paradoxical as it may seem, some of the members of the Middle A classes are in search of mental gymnastics with which to improve their physical condition, otherwise condition in physics—and the Seniors are too!

Where is the young gentleman who is unwilling to concede that woman's mind is capable of perceiving more delicate relations than man's is, yet gracefully declines in favor of the young ladies when it comes to discussing a question in boating?

One evening after school
He was sitting by the pool,
When a lovely maid in red
Went tripping by—
And as she passed, he tipped his hat,
Then they at once began to chat;
And after that he saw her home,
But now, ah me! she goes alone.

Substance of a conversation between two U. P. boys of '93 overheard by an enfant terrible.

"Oh! if only one-third the Normal girls would attend U. P.

What a paradise on earth this would be!"
I wonder what the rest of the conversation was.
