

Versatile Doctor.

Its part of the profession I guess. Two little boys caused a minor excitement at the hospital one day. One came limping, his face tear streaked. The other boy explained excitedly that his pal had a nail in his foot. So the doctor had the young patient take off his shoe and he inspected the bottom of the foot. "Why, there's no nail in your foot" exclaimed the Dr. "Its in my shoe" said the little guy. So the doctor checked the shoe. Sure enough, there was a nail in the shoe that had been pushing into the boys foot. So the doctor secured a hammer and beat the nail down and the little fellows said thanks doc. for the operation and were on their way.

"Do or don't beat em - bite em"
