

"Whose Child Is Next?"

"Whose child is next—?"

No matter how future generations consider Franklin Roosevelt's politics—no matter what they think of him as a war leader, his name will go down in history in connection with one of mankind's most important wars—that against poliomyelitis.

We here at State now have the opportunity to further this war effort by contributing generously to the March of Dimes. The difference between the war against polio and that against our fellow men is the difference between birth and death.

We can help more now than ever before, since medical research is unearthing more and more about the heretofore mysteriouscrippler. A dime from each of us now can further this research to the point where children need no longer go about under the shadow of the invisible giant, infantile paralysis.

It's worth your support. It doesn't mean great sacrifice to you. Well, who's stopping you? Get out the dime!

—Marion.