The weekend will be devoted to exploring problems of interpersonal communication.

COLLEGE GROUPS SPIED ON BY FBI

An ex-SF State student paid to spy on student activities and an illegal trip to Cuba has turned against his former employer — the FBI.

Richard D. Rieman, is currently a San Francisco school teacher. In 1963 he was a SF State student and accompanied 58 students, 12 from this campus, on an illegal trip to Cuba that summer. He was an FBI informer.

In Federal Court last week in New York City Rieman testified that as a student he was paid to spy on campus activities and organizations.

He had been summoned by the government in its prosecution of the three men who arranged the Cuban trip in defiance of a State Department travel ban.

Rieman said in court he renounced his informer's role saying "If there has been any wrongdoing, it has been the government's" for hiring spies.

The story of Rieman's about-face testimony appeared in the October 18 issue of I. F. Stone's Weekly, an independent newspaper published in Washington, D.C. by Stone.

Stone said in his story "the lesson this affair teaches is an ugly one — that beneath the surface of a supposedly free society is an underworld of surveillance and corruption.

"The Czarist police spied on students this way. So does the Soviet police. And so does the FBI. We cannot imagine anything more truly subversive of faith in free institutions than these police state practices."

Rieman did not take the Fifth amendment thereby subjecting himself to possible prosecution for the trip. He faces a possible five year term, or a $5,000 fine or both for defying the travel ban.

There were 25 students from the Bay Area colleges in the 1963 trip. SF State's delegation was the largest from any single college.

Robert Kaffke, then an SF State student, phoned and mailed back glowing reports on the Castro reign to the Gater.

The other SF State students also reported favorably on the Communist government noting that illiteracy and racial discrimination had been wiped out in Cuba.

The SF State administration resisted outside pressure to expel students who made the trip after they returned to the campus.

US, the world's worst navigator

By PHIL GARLINGTON

The editor of a left-wing magazine said here Friday that he may be one of the first victims of a government crackdown against anti-war demonstrators.

M. S. Arnoni, who spent six years in Nazi concentration camps, said he was "in for it" because he has encouraged American youth to join the Viet Cong.

Arnoni also worked in an underground movement smuggling refugees out of Eastern Europe, and fought in the Israeli war of independence. He is now editor of the Minority of One, a non-communist Marxist publication.

Speaking to over a hundred students in the Gallery Lounge, Arnoni began his talk by saying he would "incriminate" himself by saying a good word or two about Russia and China, "and more than one or two bad words about the United States."

He charged that Americans have been conditioned to accept myths about the "communist menace" since 1917.

"Many have their eyes blindfolded, their ears stuffed and their mouths gagged by the American flag to the extent they automatically brand anyone who speaks out against the power structure as subversive and anti-American," he said.

Arnoni said China has replaced Russia as the new US whipping boy. "It is much easier for Americans to believe horrible things about the yellow race," he said.

On alleged Chinese expansionism, Arnoni said, "The devouring, expanding, marching, conquering Chinese devil has no troops outside its borders."

He fended off the inevitable questions about Tibet by saying Tibet was historically a part of China. "Even the United States admitted this in notes exchanged between Washington and London in 1945," he said.

On the other hand, said Arnoni, "the US has troops in Chinese territory (Quemoy and Matsu). The US arms, trains and land guerrillas from Formosa on the Chinese mainland. And we have repeatedly violated Chinese air space."

"We must have the world's poorest navigators," he remarked on the last point.

A question period followed Arnoni's speech. Responding to a question about what the individual could do to end the war, Arnoni said what the questioner really wanted to know was "what he could do rapidly, dramatically and visibly to change the course of events 180 degrees."

"All we can do," he said, "is each contribute little bricks, hoping that cumulatively they will have effect."

He also called for students to speak up on important issues, and not let the "conformity of the majority" manipulate them.

VNDC's new plans-- march next month and rally tomorrow

The Vietnam Day Committee's temporary chairman Kipp Dawson said Friday that the VNDC will stage another anti-war march against the Oakland Army Terminal no matter who opposes it.

"We will definitely take part in the march," she said during a VNDC meeting.

The VNDC has come under heavy fire lately from federal, state and local officials for its part in leading the anti-war protest marches last weekend in Berkeley.

However, the next march, which Miss Dawson said is tentatively scheduled for November 20, will concentrate its protest on the refusal of the Oakland city council to grant a parade permit to the demonstrators. Oakland authorities underscored their refusal by blocking the march with a barrier of 400 Oakland policemen.

"There is a good possibility many times more people will join us in the march next month," said Miss Dawson. "People concerned with the right to hold a protest march, church groups, labor unions, and civil rights organizations, have already expressed interest."

According to Miss Dawson, the march will draw people from throughout the country and is intended to focus national attention on Oakland, the same way civil rights marchers brought Selma before the national consciousness.

In other action, the VNDC voted to hold a rally on Tuesday on the subject of Johnson's Big Stick and the Anti-war Movement.

Speakers from the Students for a Democratic Society and from Berkeley's chapter of the VNDC will discuss what they allege is the attempted suppression of the anti-war movement by the government.

During the meeting Miss Dawson cited an example of this alleged suppression. She said 15 members of SDS picketed the draft board on a Friday and received their induction notices the next Monday.

Another event slated by the VNDC is a "town meeting," at which two student representatives from the VNDC and two from the Young Americans for Freedom will express their, in all probability, conflicting points of view.

Another project in the works for the VNDC is a plan to invite Vice President Humphrey to exchange viewpoints with VNDC members during his visit to San Francisco on November 4.

If Humphrey declines, the VNDC will express its viewpoint anyway by picketing the Vice President during his address to the Commonwealth Club.

Peace Corps week

Week-long Peace Corps drive

Only four years old, but an established institution, the Peace Corps will be at SF State all this week to add more volunteers to its current roster of 10,000.

Peace Corps staff members, including three veteran volunteers, will be on hand to man the information centers, to explain the program, and to accept applications.

The centers will be located in the Gym, humanities building, and outside of Commons.

The non-competitive Peace Corps placement test will be given every day. The test is used to determine applicant's qualifications and requires no preparation.

Groups can arrange with the Peace Corps' liaison at SF State, Charles Earlenbaugh, to have a representative speak at any time during the week.

One hundred and forty-five SF State students are currently among the volunteers serving in 46 countries of Asia, Africa, and Latin America.

An additional 32 have already completed the two year service.

The underdeveloped countries are in dire need of doctors, nurses, engineers, architects, teachers, sociologists, economists and agriculturalists.

Juniors, seniors, graduates, and faculty can qualify immediately for Peace Corps training.

Summer training periods conducted at SF State have been successful, and may be repeated, according to Earlenbaugh.

Trainees who volunteered for teaching duty attended a crash program of instruction in art, arithmetic, math, and social studies, and then were sent out to practice in the SF school system.

Other students were trained as public administrators in Liberia to give help in the Public Utilities Commission, the National Public Health Service, and the Department of Commerce.

As a part of their training the volunteers are sent out to the rugged Sierra-Nevada mountains. There they get a taste of day-to-day survival in primitive terrain, and acquire technical skills such as operating a Liberian kerosene lamp and driving a jeep.

Counselor sign-ups

Sign-ups for student orientation counselors for the Spring '66 On-Campus Orientation Program will start Monday, October 25 and run through October 29, in AD 167 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The job of an orientation counselor is to help new students adjust to the programs of the college.

The task is to explain life at SF State to new students.

Interviews will be set up in the volunteering students' prospective divisions November 1 and run through November 12.

Students who are familiar with the programs at SF State and the mechanics of registration are needed for this job.

In past semesters, new students have evaluated the orientation program. The student counselors were often named as the part of the program they liked best, and never appeared under the "liked least" list.

Prior, professor of Philosophy at Canterbury College, New Zealand, is presently a visiting professor at U.C.L.A.

He has written numerous books and articles on logic and philosophy, including "Formal Logic," "Logic and the Basis of Ethics," and "Time and Modality."

The talk, in HLL 135 at 4 p.m., is sponsored by the campus Philosophy Club.

Applicants for the positions must have completed 30 more units and at least one semester at SF State, carry a minimum GPA of 2.25, and obtain a letter of recommendation from a faculty member.

Applications for the positions are available in Hut D today. One of the chosen representatives will be a student working toward a credential, and one will be a graduate student.

The secretary in Hut D has further information.

AF conclave

The SF State Air Force ROTC were represented by six cadets and two members of the Angel Flight at the annual Arnold Air Society conclave last weekend.

The resolution and policy-making conclave was held at Loyola University in Los Angeles October 22 to 24.

The Arnold Air Society is an honorary fraternity for top ranking cadets. Serving as a social organization the Society has three main missions:

- To further the purposes, missions, traditions, and concepts of the United States Air Force;

- To promote American citizenship; and

- To create a closer and more efficient relationship among ROTC cadets.

Cadets from 17 colleges met at Loyola University and participated in meetings, symposiums, and speeches. Notable persons in the military, industrial, and entertainment fields have participated in past conclaves.

SF State's representatives were Paulette Almeida and Terry Standridge from the Angel Flight; Cyril W. Thornton, Arnold Air Society commander; Robert W. Nicheline; William Chestman; Roland Carroll, Ernest Coldren, and John Peterson.

The cadets were accompanied by Captain Lawrence E. Ogle, professor of aerospace studies.

Film on India

Peace Corps recruiters on campus today will show a film of their activities in India at 7:30 p.m. in Merced Hall.

The film, entitled "Peace Corps in India," is a 50 minute black and white documentary and will acquaint prospective Peace Corps members with the work now being done in India.

Peace Corps recruiters will be present to answer questions about the Corps and its world-wide activities.

$20,000 given faculty

Whether the faculty or Administration should disperse funds for faculty research was debated by the Academic Senate last week in a meeting remarkably devoid of action.

The college has accrued over $20,000 from various sources to award to faculty for research and development projects.

The Senate has set up a committee to work on the dispersal problem, but at the time of its inception it was not specified whether the committee would actually disperse the money or merely advise the administration on dispersal.

After debating the question for an hour and 20 minutes the Senate passed a motion by Leo McClatchy, professor accounting and law, instructing the committee to determine the use of the funds and report its conclusions to the Vice-President of the college by the start of the spring semester.

Stanley Anderson, Chairman of the Humanities department suggested a revision to the Faculty Constitution in an attempt to make non-tenured full time faculty eligible for Senate membership.

Tenure is achieved when a faculty member is given a permanent contract instead of being contracted each year. About 50 percent of the faculty has tenure.

Anderson claimed that a large segment of the faculty is not represented in the Senate because of tenure regulations.

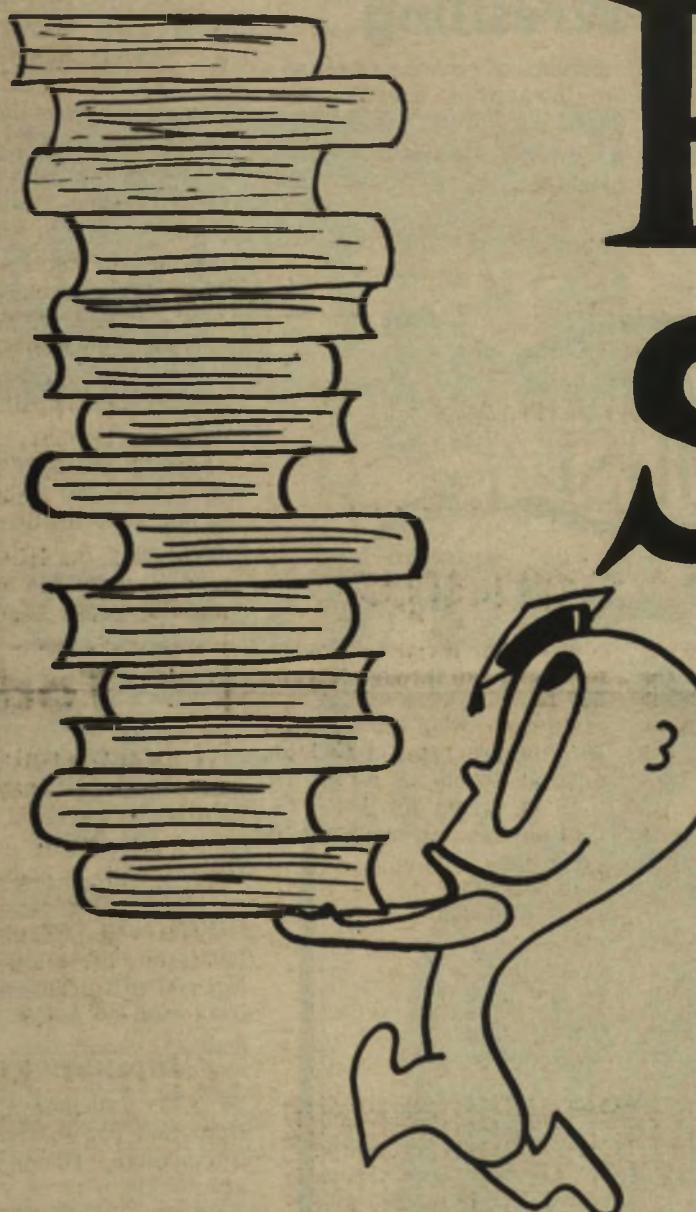

The Senate decided, after discussion, to shelve the question until a study of faculty representation is made.

Two in a row for SF booters

By RICK GAMBLE

SF State's great yimproved soccer team won its second straight game Wednesday, 2-1, over UC Berkeley.

The Gator booters, coached by Art Bridgman, completely dominated the first half of the WRA field contest and took a 2-0 lead into the second half.

Micha Reimer scored both goals in the second period. (He had scored two of SF State's goals in the 3-1 win over Chico.)

But defense was the key to victory in this game.

Gator goalie Tom McAllister blocked eight shots, and left fullback Dennis Dutschke led an inspired band that stopped the powerful Cal Bears time after time.

UC Berkeley averted the shutout with 12 minutes left in the game. The score came on a deflection shot by Jim Bademosi.

In the final period, Cal dominated on offense, but Dutschke, right fullback Pete Peterson, and halfbacks Ray Ambrogio, Marcelo Friere and Jack Martinez blunted several thrusts that looked like sure scores.

When the final gun sounded, coach Bridgman was carried off the field by playeers and fans, a tribute for molding an inexperienced group of athletes into a good soccer team.

The win was the first over Cal since 1960, and it marked the first time in six years that the Gators had won two games in succession. The booters were 2-3-1 before meeting San Jose Saturday.

Pre-season grid stats

Chico and Humboldt State each had 4-1 records in pre-Far Western Conference play, but it was SF State football players who dominated the statistics.

Even though the Gators had just a 3-2 record, they led all league teams in team defense and team offense. The gridsters limited opponents to an average of 180.6 yards a game, and rolled up an average of 313.6.

Total offense by an individual was neatly taken care of by Gator quarterback Don McPhail, who had 623 yards, almost 80 more than his nearest opponent. He also led in pass attempts, pass completions, total passing yardage and touchdown passes.

Fullback Jim Crum continued to lead in scoring with 48 points, 18 ahead of his nearest competitor, and in rushing with 430 yards. In addition, Crum had the longest run from scrimmage, 85 yards, against Redlands.

Chico's Gerald Circo continued to lead Howard Moody in punting, with a 46.2 average compared to the Gator's 40.

Humboldt's Carl Del Grande edged ahead of Mike Meyer in receptions, with 26 grabs to 24 for the Gator split end.
