

A PARTY WITH A PURPOSE:

To Strengthen the Role of Women in Politics

By supporting the National Women's Political Caucus' Democratic Task Force and the Democratic Women's Agenda.

The Caucus, The Task Force and the Agenda

The practical politics of the women's movement--that's the National Women's Political Caucus. 35,000 strong, multipartisan and welcoming the participation of women of all ages, economic and ethnic backgrounds, the Caucus has been organizing women since 1971. NWPC takes the mystery out of politics as it helps women assert their vast untapped political power. Governed by a National Steering Committee of more than one hundred women, the Caucus now has three hundred active affiliates nationwide.

Activist women around the country count on NWPC Democratic Task Force for the inside story on what goes on within the Democratic Party that's important to women. Increased participation of women in the Party process is the goal--an ever-widening network of contacts is the method. Increasing numbers of politically sophisticated women show our success.

An agenda of our own--that was what women wanted in this Bicentennial convention year. The Democratic Women's Agenda--DWA '76--is the realization of that deeply felt need. DWA '76 mobilized support for including women's concerns in the party platform and developed new cohesiveness among women within the Party. Together with NWPC and the Democratic Task Force, DWA '76 propelled women's issues into the mainstream of American politics.
