

Signs posted for CD shelter

By JACK HUBBARD
City Editor

SF State put the campus to new use over Easter vacation. The use was announced in a rash of black and yellow "Fallout Shelter" signs that greeted students as they went to class yesterday morning. The signs are courtesy of the Federal government. The shelters are courtesy of an agreement between state and local authorities to provide shelter space in all public buildings.

Executive Dean Harry Brakebill said that the shelters came as a result of agreement of the Chancellor's Office and the City of San Francisco.

"We (the administration) had nothing to do with the establishment of the shelters," said Brakebill.

"In fact, the college didn't even put up the signs. They were installed by city workers."

Brakebill said that 10 campus buildings have shelters. He did not know the exact number. "I would have to go around and count them myself," he said.

The shelters contain sanitary and medical kits, water and food packages and radiological equipment.

At the present, Brakebill said, no personnel have been specifically trained on campus for disaster work. This means that there is no supervision in the shelter by a trained person in case of disaster.

"Most of the action taken by the administration is the result of directives from the Governor's office," said Brakebill.

He referred to Governor Brown's June, 1960, Executive Order 60-CD-1, requiring all state agencies to prepare, disseminate plans and information on civil defense protection and training for protection and survival from "natural disasters."

An April, 1962 memo from the Governor's office to Boards of Trustees and School Administrators cited a need for a written civil defense plan for each school or college. The plan, according to the memo, would then be submitted to the local civil defense director.

Brakebill said that SF State has no written plan for civil defense protection at the moment.

"This was one of the purposes of the Campus Emergency Planning Committee that met last fall," he said. "The committee decided to terminate any further meetings until there was a need for them to do so. No meeting has been set up as yet."

Last fall, the Emergency Planning Committee scheduled a number of "listening drills" to acquaint the campus population with various evacuation warnings. The drills took place once during November and were only partially successful.

A number of students protested the action, notably AS President Jay Folberg and Treasurer Tom Ramsay. Ramsay, along with Jefferson Poland, said he would not participate in any actual evacuation drills on campus.

Rafferty supporters may put textbook issue on ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An effort will be made to put multiple textbook adoption on the California ballot in 1964 if the legislature takes no action in this year, the president of Dr. Max Rafferty's old election campaign organization said Sunday.

Mrs. Edward S. Gilbert, Newport Beach, former state chairman of Parents for Rafferty, and now president of its successor group, Responsibility in Education, Inc., spoke on the progress of a constitutional amendment submitted by Assemblyman Gordon H. Winton, D-Merced.

Winton proposes requiring the Board of Education to compile a list of elementary school textbooks and give local districts freedom to select from it.

Currently, the board adopts single texts for each course which the districts must accept. The districts may buy additional volumes, but the state books are free.

Mrs. Gilbert said the Winton measure was "unsatisfactory," but indicated it represented a step toward her views.

She said her fundamental aim was complete freedom for the districts under a constitutional amendment requiring the state to pay for whatever books districts choose, whether or not the volumes come from a state list.

Winton's measure, which Rafferty has endorsed as a "step in the right direction," failed to pass its first vote in the Assembly Education Committee. However, the lawmaker has said he will move for consideration.

Mrs. Gilbert asserted that the local districts need freedom of choice to deal with "individual situations." Opponents have argued that giving the districts freedom would result in excessive costs and open the school system to extremist political pressures.

When Mrs. Gilbert was informed that if the legislature failed to act, her group would need 468,259 valid signatures in petitions to put a constitutional amendment on the November, 1964, ballot, she said, "I imagine that we'll be able to do whatever is necessary."

The group previously was active in the effort to stop the reappointment of Thomas W. Braden to the Board of Education.

Rafferty, superintendent of public instruction, has said that while he is aware of the responsibility group, he is not connected with its current policies.

Encore features comedy

A frothy comedy of stuffy late-Victorian mannerisms comes to life in the Frederick Lonsdale play, "On Approval," dominated by Clive Brook, portraying a stuffy noble and adapting, producing, and directing the piece, presented by the Encore Film series today.

Combine the wit of Beatrice Lillie as Mrs. Wislack, a sporty widow, Roland Culver as Poor Richard and Googie Withers portraying the American pickle heiress in the setting of a lonesome shooting lodge in Scotland, exquisite comedy and perfection results.

The performance will be held in ED 117 at 3:45 and 7:30 p.m. at 50 cents for students, faculty and staff and 75 cents for guests and public. Tickets may be purchased in Hut T-1.

'Mud in your eye'

Above is one of the scenic mudholes of SF State College. Located between the Commons and the IA building, it is somewhat dried up at the moment (the picture was taken before Easter vacation), but a little rain will restore its original consistency.

"As long as it's too muddy to walk on, the students will just have to walk around," said one member of the buildings and grounds department.

This and other bogs on campus provide excellent feeding places for a number of mallard ducks. If rainfall is light, the lawn is watered often enough to insure that the campus doesn't lose these swamps.

Gater briefs...

"Why I Am a Unitarian" will be discussed today by Dr. Henry Lindgren, professor of psychology, at 12:15 p.m. in Ed 207.

The Unitarian Universalist Lunch Discussion Group will sponsor the speech.

Colored travelogues will be shown today at noon in BSS 104.

The films will picture Argentina, Greece, India, France, Italy, Brazil and Japan. The International Student Affairs is sponsoring the showing and admission is free.

AS petitions close today at noon

Petitions for the spring AS elections will close at noon today with a candidates' meeting slated for 3:30 p.m. in AD 162 to discuss the rules of the election.

In addition, today is the last date for all students running for office to make a reservation to have their pictures taken. The arrangements for pictures can be made in the business office of Hut T-1.

The primary election is set for April 24 and 25, and if necessary, a run-off election is scheduled for May 1.

Mr. Smith goes to San Bruno

Coming as an anti-climax to the Berkeley and Canadian elections earlier this month, the San Bruno Park Elementary school district election today isn't attracting much national interest.

But several people on campus have followed the San Bruno campaign closely for the last three weeks.

Glenn Smith, assistant to the president, is one of four candidates for two positions on the San Bruno board. Dr. Morris Lewenstein, head of the social science department, coordinated the campaign efforts.

Dr. Urban Whitaker, associate professor of international relations, a former member of the board himself, Dr. Donald Barnhart, assistant professor of social science, Associate Dean of Students Donald Gerth, and all their wives have helped with the campaign also.

"It's not a controversial campaign," said Lewenstein. "Some of the people are mad at the present board, but that isn't our platform."

The issues of the campaign revolve around who can offer

GLENN SMITH
... vote today

the best service to the community.

Smith, who has two children in school and recently adopted a five-month old baby, now serves on the San Bruno planning commission and hopes to effect closer cooperation between the school board and city government.

Two instruments have proved invaluable in the campaign: the coffee cup and the telephone. A series of coffee hours in various neighborhoods were arranged in private homes. Smith talked briefly and then answered questions if he could, spending 45 minutes or an hour before going on to the next one.

Contacting voters by telephone has also proved successful in creating interest and various civic groups have sponsored three open meetings where the candidates spoke and answered questions.

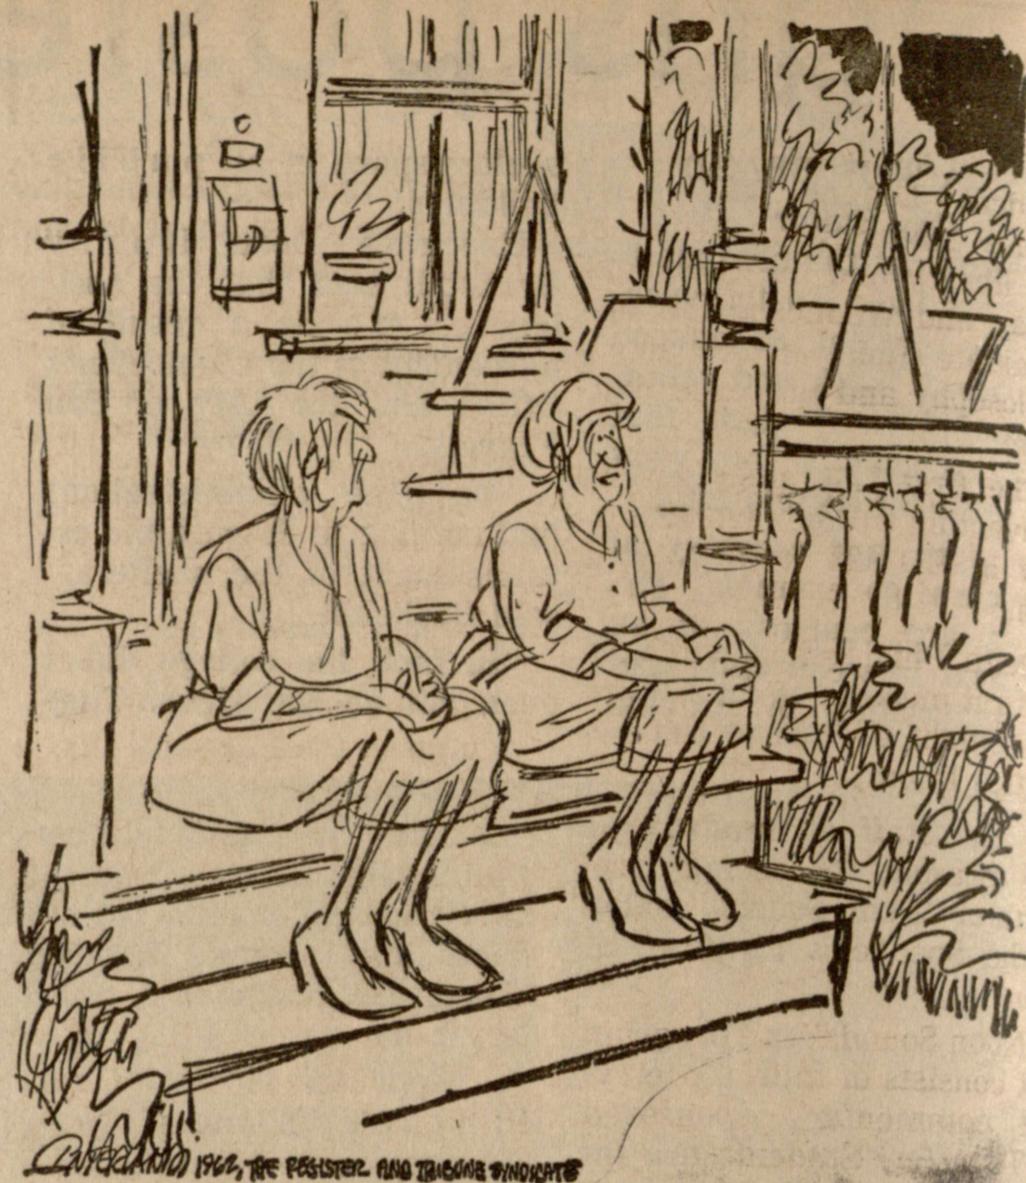

"It's rather lowly campaign compared to much political activity, but these methods have made him known to the townspeople, Smith said.

"I'm not confident, but I'm not pessimistic, either. I've tried to base the campaign on how we can best solve our problems," he said.

Smith came to SF State in 1958 from Occidental College where he was associate director of admissions.

Since 1958, he has assisted three presidents: Dr. Glenn S. Dumke, now chancellor of the State college system, Dr. Frank Fenton, who was acting president last year, and President Paul A. Dodd.

He was a leader in creating the Board of Publications on campus three years ago, and sits on it today as one of the oldest continuing members.

and Andrew Hoyem all of whom have, or will shortly have, their works published.

Brown has published in several magazines and has read his poems in various programs, most recently in the "Voices: 1962-63" series.

Reque, a mid-westerner, is finishing a novel and a play. He attended Ralph Humphries' Poetry Workshop at the University of Colorado Writers' Conference last summer and edited a pamphlet of poems, "Boulder and Flints," written in that workshop.

Hoyem, a graduate of Pomona College, is a partner in the Auerhahn Press in San Francisco, and will have his first volume of poems published shortly.

The "New Poets Program" was begun with the founding of the Poetry Center in 1954 and has as one of its goals "to bring the best of modern poets to the Bay Area."

The poetry reading will be repeated tonight at 8:15 p.m. at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

Brenner concert tomorrow, 'How you play that counts'

By JOANNA BURKE

Vladimir Brenner, music professor at SF State and well known Russian-born pianist, will perform in concert including works of Bach, Liszt, Chopin, Debussy and others tomorrow evening at 8:30 p.m. in the Main Auditorium.

Born in Leningrad, Brenner was raised in a cultural and musical atmosphere, his father a well trained military band conductor. His musical career began at the early age of 12 when he was asked to perform the Weber "Konzertstück" with the Dniepropetrovsk Symphony and later was given the opportunity to perform for the famous composer Glazounov in Petrograd.

VLADIMIR BRENNER
... Russian-born pianist

For 12 years, under a scholarship, Brenner studied at the Petrograd Conservatory of Music, with training in piano by Prokofiev and Alexander Scriabin, and composition under Glazounov.

During the last years of the Romanoff regime, he was honored as protege of Czar Nicholas and appeared before the Russian royal family in private concerts at the Alexander Palace every Saturday.

In 1923 Brenner came to the United States, mainly because "I strongly disagreed with the political situation (in Russia), and for that matter I still do," he said.

For a number of years he was staff soloist in New York City under Toscanini, playing various concertos.

Brenner has been considered by many as one of the last members of the great school of pianists. "This is mainly because I play mostly the romantic composers including Chopin, Brahms, and Liszt. As far as modern music is concerned, Bartok is just about my limit. Anyone further 'left' I find extremely difficult to understand," he explained. "However, it is not really what the artist plays that counts, but rather how he plays it."

Brenner has been teaching at SF State for 12 years, engaged now in courses in advanced piano and Kibur Literature, and a biweekly class-room concert of 16th century composers up to the present time.

His upcoming performance at SF State will feature the Bach-Liszt "Fantasie and Fugue in G Minor," Bach's "Arioso," Rameau's "Two Rigaudons," "Allegro Spiritoso" and "Sonata in D Major" by Scarlatti, Debussy's "Jardins Sous La Pluie" and "Two Etudes" by Scriabine.

Four works of Brenner's favorite composer, Chopin, "Nocturne Pois 15," "Tarentelle Opus 43," "Three Mazurkas," and "Scherzo Opus 39" will also be included.

He will conclude with Liszt's "Sonetto 123 Del Petrarca" and "Aragon" from Fantasia by Albeniz.

General admission will be $1.50 and $1.00 for students.

Baseballers boost record with five Easter victories

By REED NESSEL

Tom Morgan's Gator baseballers travel to Stanford for a ball game today after spending a pleasant Easter vacation week.

"Pleasant" because they won five of the six games they played, including a Far Western Conference doubleheader at Chico State.

Terry Christman and Dave Gehre, SF State's southpaw aces, tossed four hitters at the Wildcats a week ago Friday as they picked up exactly where they left off in the FWC last spring.

Christman struck out 11 men in the first game, which the Gators won, 6-2. Bob Mansfield knocked in two runs to pace the SF State attack. Gehre coasted through the second game as Wayne Service, Buddy Harrellson and Ken Barbieri led a Gator batting splurge which gave him a 9-2 win. Barbieri bopped a long triple, Harrellson and Service had two hits apiece.

Another double header sweep, over Pasadena College was highlighted by Mike Campus' second game one-hitter, on Monday. Campus gave up only a seventh inning single in an 11-0 Gator victory.

The first game was a little closer, with State on top, 7-3.

Terry Christman came back with another strong pitching performance Tuesday, shutting out San Fernando Valley State, 3-0, on three hits. He struck out eight while Jim Loustalot gave him all the offense he needed with a two-run double.

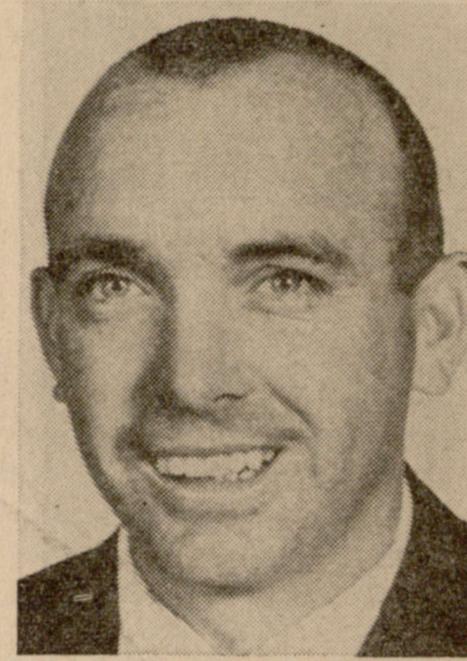

The only loss came at the hands of San Diego State on Wednesday. Dave Gehre pitched well enough, but came out on the wrong end of a 5-3 count to the Aztecs.

The doubleheader-loving Gators won still another one Thursday, taking Nevada a Southern 9-4 and 10-2 in Las Vegas.

Morgan is smiling about several things so far this season—the team's 19-7 record, the improved hitting of his club, and some real bench strength, a luxury Morgan hasn't enjoyed often at State.

"This year we have the ability to put in people from our bench and have them do the job," said Morgan.
