CSB GETS NEW PRESIDENT

The California State University and Colleges

The President

Faculty, administrators, and staff recognize full well that our communities, our society, and our world need an educated citizenry able to meet the challenges of the modern era. Certainly, the opportunities for students to develop, explore and gain satisfaction out of life could not be greater than at the present time.

All of us at CSB are proud of the role this college plays in offering a high quality education to our students. We work hard to provide a learning climate which is positive and enables students to develop and grow as individuals as well as professionally.

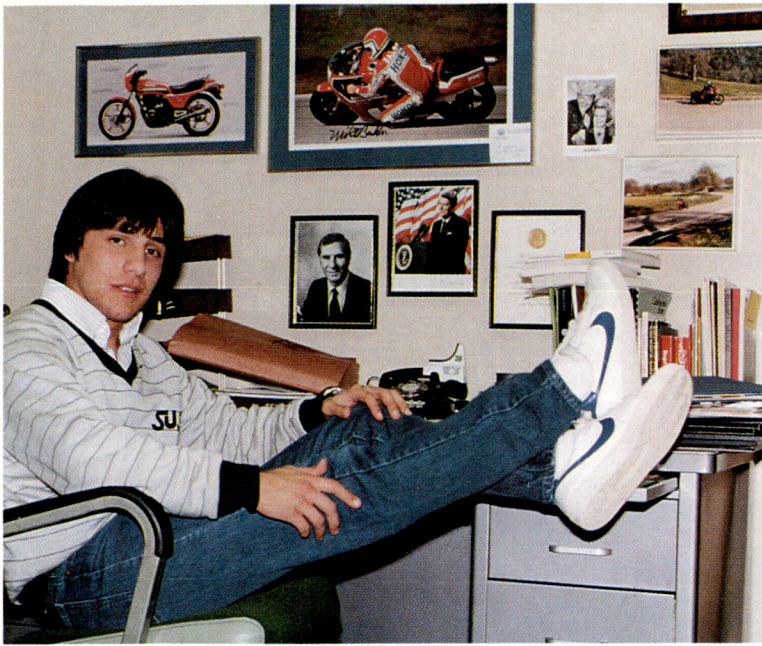

I very much enjoy being part of that important institutional tradition here and am committed to maintaining it in the years ahead.

At the beginning of the 1983-84 academic year, Cal State Bakersfield was not going to have a yearbook. Through the efforts of the Associated Students, however, we will again be able to have a valuable memento of our educational achievements and social experiences at CSB.

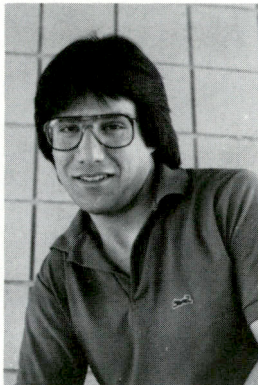

In addition, students of the 19-campus CSU system were faced with increased student fees. On July 21, 1983, the CSU system budget was slashed by nearly $90 million. Student fees were substantially hiked for the third time in 14 months, raising nearly $73.1 million from increased student fees. These fee hikes included an average $246 per full-time student, an additional $36 first-time ever post baccalaureate fee, and a $5 increase in the application fee.

Through efforts in the statewide student leadership, however, the Associated Students have renewed an on-going commitment to higher education. In 1984-85, CSU students will be receiving a $42 decrease in fees.

This year has been extremely busy and has also been personally rewarding to me.

With kindest regards, I am,
Very truly yours,

CHILDREN'S CENTER

Through the efforts of the Associated Students and the Children's Center Director Diane Hendrickson, evening child care hours were established to benefit student-parents that have evening courses. A.S. Council passed a measure allocating $4,500 to the program for Spring Quarter 1984.

The Associated Students also scheduled a Children's Center Day allowing young, growing, learning minds to establish a "role model." During the scheduled day, children of Cal State Bakersfield students, faculty, and staff visited the A.S. Office, had their pictures taken, and pretended to be A.S. executives. A good time was had by all.

THE RUNNER

Putting out weekly issues of the school newspaper on a barebones budget is not an easy task. Despite this, however, The Runner is filled with up-to-date news as well as features and editorials on campus life.

In addition to their journalistic duties, The Runner staff continues to maintain a good relationship with the Associated Students. Both have complemented each other and have added to school spirit.

As a result, the award winning Runner has firmly entrenched itself as a part of Cal State Bakersfield.

This book is sponsored by the Associated Students of Cal State Bakersfield.

A yearbook is a very important part of a college. It is as much an institution as the school newspaper. If such a program is lost, students will be missing something, especially those who are graduating.

With no funding, no advisor, and no staff, Cal State Bakersfield was not going to have a yearbook at the beginning of this year. Fortunately, because of the efforts of the Associated Students, a yearbook staff was organized. Of the few students on staff, however, none were yearbook staffers the previous year. And as for myself, I have never been on any yearbook staff, nor have I ever taken a layout or journalism course. Despite the odds, a yearbook was published.

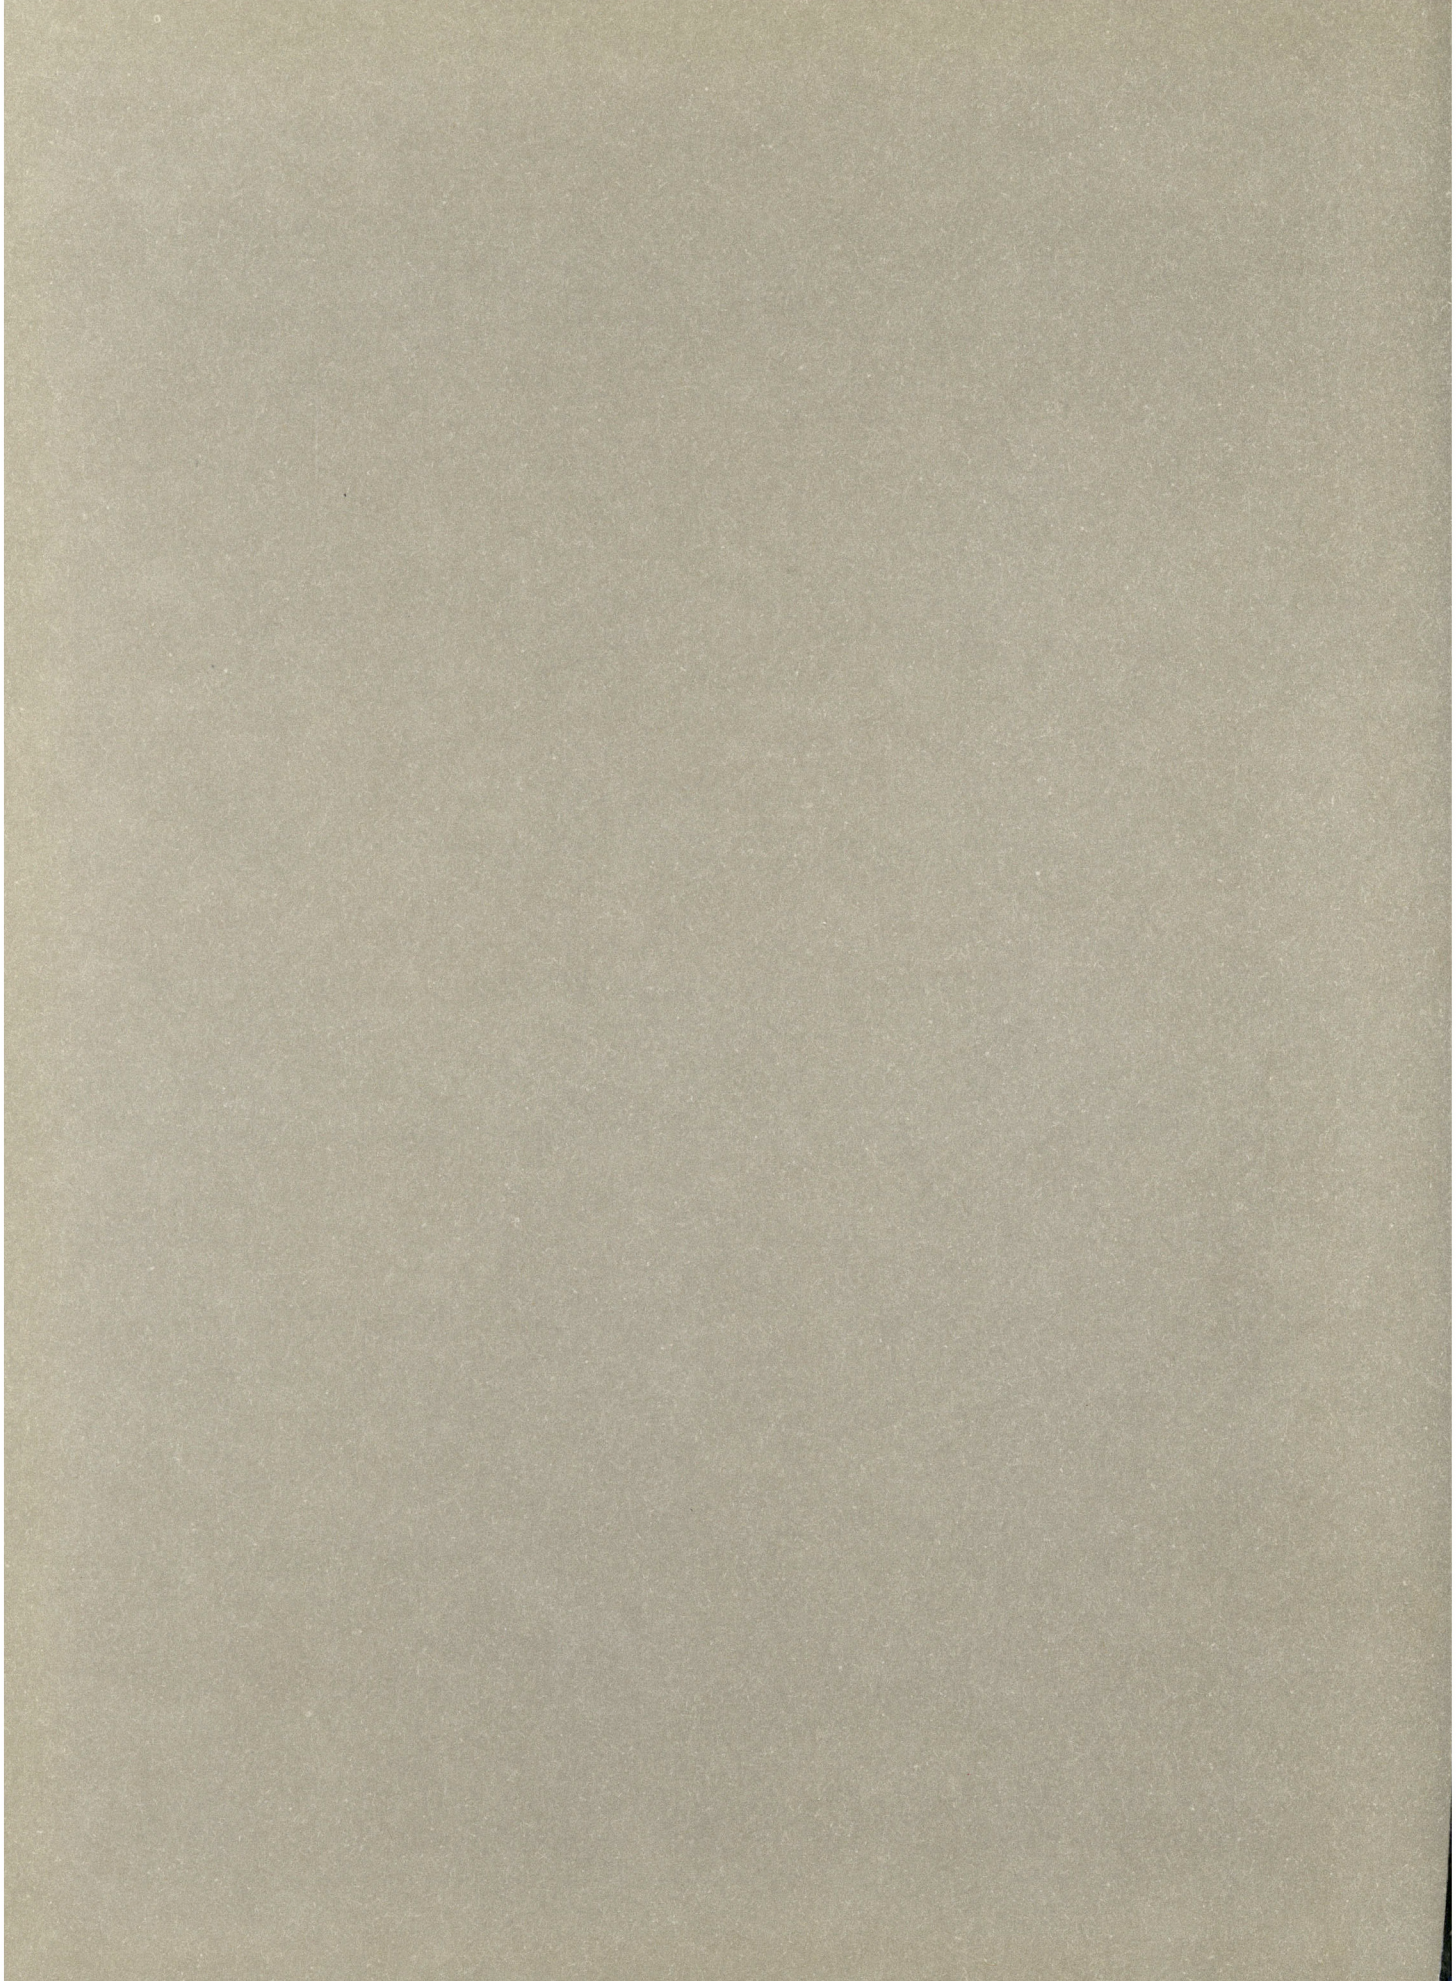

As for the future of the yearbook, I encourage students to become involved. If Cal State Bakersfield is to continue to have a yearbook, it will have to be students that make it happen.
