Health center services

Budget cuts hurt students

Health services to students will be drastically altered as a result of legislative surgery on the Health Center budget. Here are the most important changes:-

- Health examinations: Formerly a complete physical exam, consisting of eye, ear, nose, throat, blood, posture, chest X-ray, hearing, urinalysis, feet, etc. Now limited to patients' history, X-ray and obvious physical ailments.

- Follow-up physical checkups for regular students: Limited to prevention of obvious communicable diseases.

- Credential candidates: Former physical exams given by Health Center now eliminated. Credential candidates and student teachers must now get a physical examination form filled out by a private doctor licensed to practice medicine in the state.

- Health counseling: Formerly extensive, now eliminated because of limited staff time.

- Acute emotional problems: The only persons to be considered will be severe problems and the counseling will be "a one shot deal" or will be referred to a private doctor.

- Dental diagnosis and counseling: Formerly dental checkups were given with the entering physical. Dental service of any type has been eliminated.

- Immunization and vaccinations: Formerly including tetanus, influenza, smallpox, Schick tests, and typhoid-paratyphoid; all immunizations have been eliminated except in emergencies.

- Basic preventive medical services and treatment of illness will continue and occupy the largest part of the Health Center's staff time. Last year, 65 per cent of all staff work was involved in this area. The care of students will be on an outpatient basis, as there is no infirmary on campus.

- Emergencies will be limited to persons whose immediate health and well-being will be affected if no treatment is given, e.g., burns, severe bleeding.

Also eliminated due to the staff cut are:

- Physicals of varsity athletes.

- Physicals of women PE majors on an annual basis.

- Examination and classification of students stating fitness to participate in PE

Reg is smooth, quick--not hindered by showers

Approximately 14,000 of the 14,580 expected student enrollment were registered by Friday.

The remaining students either registered Saturday, or will enroll today and tomorrow. The lines aren't as long on these days, but late registrants have to pay an additional $5.

Thursday's wet registration netted 8,020 continuing students, and Friday an estimated 5,000 new and readmitted students lined the walkways in the sunshine. Wednesday's pre-registrants comprised 1,150 of the total.

When it started raining Thursday, students moved into the education and science buildings. This did not slow down the process at all, Dan Long, chairman of the Orientation - Registration Board, said.

Anxious registrants brought their sleeping bags and blankets to camp out both Wednesday and Thursday nights. Thursday's S to Z line, scheduled to start registering at 7:30 a.m., began forming around 10 p.m. Wednesday.

"We saw a lot of baggy eyes, guitars, and a big pile of blankets," one reg worker who arrived at 7 a.m. Thursday, said.

A student in the L to M line (last to register Thursday) said he took the standing and waiting for granted, but disapproved of the registration procedure and suggested incorporating UC Berkeley's system of registering by mail.

"I think the waiting is a waste of time," a student in the B group said who arrived at 7 a.m. "But I'll know when and if I get my classes."

Friday's registration moved smoothly, and by 11 a.m. was a half hour ahead of schedule.

"Considering the procedure, things are moving well and it is less hectic than last year," a reg worker commented.

Jury investigates Cuban travelers

SF State students who recently returned from eight weeks in Cuba said last week they will be indicted by a grand jury as a result of one of their member's testimony before the Senate Judicial Committee.

They do not know when.

"We have broken no laws," said John Milton, one of twelve students on the trip from SF State, "but I don't know about the legal complications."

All of the students are being represented by the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee.

The group from SF State includes: John Milton, Eric Johnson, Luria Castell, Caryl Esteves, Elena Flemming, Joe Rex, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Jenks, Bob Davis, Robert Kaffke, Dick Reiman, and Christian Raisner.

Barry Hoffman of Boston, whose testimony is bringing the indictment, is one of two students who has been critical of Cuba and Castro's regime. The other is Dick Reiman, an SF State graduate.

According to Milton, Hoffmann stated he works for an undisclosed agency of the US government.

Milton quoted Reiman as saying Cuba is swarming with Russians.

Miss Castell said she saw technicians from many countries there, including Canada.

Since returning to the US, five students have been subpoenaed by the House Committee on Un-American Activities, but the indictment will be the first official legal action taken against the SF State students, though "we had State Department pressure from the first," Milton said.

Advance of Castro rule draws laud

By GEOFFERY LINK

Six SF State students recently returned from a trip to Cuba, despite a State Department ban, last week gave the Gater an account of their impressions.

"They treated us like heroes everywhere we went," said Luria Castell, member of the group.

"The Cubans met our group with fantastic exuberance," John Milton said, adding that he was impressed by the genuine warmth and friendliness of the people. Cuban officials were very warm and accepted us completely."

During the first three weeks the group was given a tour by students, Milton said. "The final five weeks we had absolutely no supervision whatsoever."

There was little difficulty communicating with the Cubans. There was an interpreter with every four or five students," Bob Davis remarked, (Continued on Page 3)

Where the power is...

The new chairman of the Statewide college Board of Trustees made it clear where the power is in the state college system when he accepted the post in July.

Charles Luckman said the Board and Chancellor Dumke have "accepted the legislative mandate" to determine the procedures and policies in all the State Colleges.

"It is my belief that the Trustees do not intend to abdicate any of their responsibility or authority," Luckman said.

Speaking for the Board, Luckman stressed, "We must eliminate the intellectual indecisiveness raised by the question of who is to be responsible for governing the California State Colleges."

"Some of the Presidents," he added "have an abiding conviction that without interference from either the faculties or the Chancellor's office, they could take their college to heretofore unknown heights."

Luckman also chided some of the college faculties for their "inner conviction" that they are capable of controlling the complete destiny of the colleges. . .

The chairman called for a "sharpening of the process of consultation and collaboration." He asked the faculties desiring to have a hand in the establishment of policy to be "willing enough and courageous enough . . . to exert disciplines where needed — no matter where the chips may fall."

"The plain fact is," he said, "we must have disciplined minds to teach the discipline of the mind."

In another facet of educational policy, Luckman told of a lack of monies available to develop the "luxury" of Regional colleges, each autonomous and self-sufficient for the community in which it resides.

"We must instead," he said, "continue and accelerate the policy established by this Board, wherein we accept the obligation to give a fine liberal arts curriculum on every campus and then, on selected campuses, provide the opportunity for controlled specialization."

In order to increase the level of education in the state college system, Luckman said an effort must be made to improve the quality of faculties. This can be done in two ways:

- Give the necessary tools and opportunities to the faculty members desiring self-improvement;

- Select and secure the best talent available in the country to augment the present faculties.

Luckman indicated there would be an intensification of the study into the "all-year program concept." He foresaw the possibility of "many and diverse flights of fancy" concerning such a program.

Incredible vanishing Dodd

President Paul A. Dodd is expected back today from Liberia where he made survey of SF State's school project there during part of the summer. He may wish he had stayed.

For according to the downtown papers, Dodd's reorganization plan is in trouble, and Dodd along with it.

The speculation is that this plan — which would change SF State to a university-type structure with schools and colleges—is too costly and would establish a pattern for the other state colleges to follow. The end result, if they did, would be a 4.6 million bundle for the taxpayers to shoulder, an amount which has Chancellor Glenn Dumke's hat-band earning its keep.

In addition to this broad conjecturing, the papers have quoted "high sources" as saying Dodd is in serious trouble with the Chancellor's office for naming men to positions in the new reorganization structure, without that structure being approved, in a not-too-clever attempt to "force" the Trustees (and Dumke) into okaying the plan.

For a man who billed himself in the Gater registration issue as "a comparative newcomer," this is quite an imbroglio.

The only man who can really end this speculation immediately is Dodd. And this is unlikely. For since he came here, last June, he has remained mum on all major issues; so much so that often any word about the inside workings of the administration from his aides or other faculty members is given with the admonishment, "but don't quote me." Since Dodd is usually "unavailable" for comment the concept gradually becomes clear that Dodd's business is Dodd's business.

However, this conclusion is based on the way Dodd plays the game, not on the way he stated the rules at the outset. When he first took over the SF State presidency last year he sent over this statement in reply to some Gater queries:

"I am not trying for a moment to dodge your questions. They are very well put, and many of them are of basic importance; and my many years in higher education in California has given me some things on which to 'speak out.' This I intend to do as soon as I feel the time is ripe."

Since the reorganization plan is something which affects all students, all of the faculty and may affect all of higher education in California, we hope that now, at long last, the time is ripe.

Students still face indictment

to leave from Toronto at Christmas, he said, but the Canadian government revoked the landing permit of the Cuban plane scheduled to fly them to Cuba.

Their next efforts were thwarted when some of the student leaders were subpoenaed by HUAC.

Final plans were made in May when Levi Laub of the Permanent Student Committee for Travel to Cuba announced the trip at a Student Peace Union meeting here.

The trip cost $100 per student to cover the cost of transportation to and from New York. The remaining tab was picked up by the Federation of University Students in Cuba which is "not a government agency," Milton emphasized.

In June the group left New York in two planes—one to London, the other to Amsterdam. They met in Paris and went to Prague where they departed for Cuba.

"We met general harassment (by State Department officials) at every point," Milton said, "such as intimidations (of penalties of a $5000 fine and five years in jail) and red-baiting."

The group was scheduled to return from Cuba July 30, but could not leave until August 26.

"Every plane we were supposed to be on failed to take off," Milton said.

Landing permits for all flights to non-socialist countries were revoked, and an August 23 flight to Jamaica which, according to Milton, had previously been okayed, was grounded.

Miss Castell said they heard a radio broadcast from Florida in which the US government requested steamships and airlines not to carry them.

The harassment harmed some students, she added. Several lost jobs, several were too late to register for school, and five were evicted from their homes.

When the group landed at New York's Idlewild Airport, it was again met by State Department officials who first tried to take away their passports, Milton said.

They refused to relinquish their passports, and the officials then attempted to stamp them invalid, he continued. The students again refused, and they were held for three hours before being released.

"It was a total victory for us when the State Department had to back down," Milton declared.

The SF State students foresee no problems with registering. Milton, who is working on his master's degree in world literature on a Marvine Scholarship, said he had been assured of enrolling.

"Since they were not representing the school, no official action will be taken against them," Glenn P. Smith, assistant to the president, said, reaffirming a statement he made while the group was still in Cuba.

Bob Davis, an SF State graduate, said they had two main purposes for making the trip: "To protest the travel ban and to see Cuba for ourselves."

and 15 or 20 of our group spoke fluent Spanish."

The students said they were impressed most with the way the Cuban people worked together since the revolution.

Miss Castell, who had visited Cuba two and a half years ago, said that "now their goals are more defined, they are more organized, and the revolutionary fervor is mellowing toward working together."

"This is the most optimistic thing I've ever seen," Davis said. "Here's a whole nation of people working, not just for themselves, but all mankind. The enthusiasm, intelligence, and energy exerted by the people is nothing short of miraculous."

FLEMING DAVIS

"The Cuban people have a genuine concern for peace," and want peace with Americans," Elena Fleming said. And they desire to re-establish relations and trade. They make a clear distinction between the people of the US and the 'Yankee imperialist government' which they feel is not respecting their sovereignty."

"The main energies of the country are humanist," Eric Johnson said. "The major leaders, especially Castro, are more concerned with the needs of the people than Marxist-Leninism."

Milton said there are many material shortages. But before the revolution, these deficiencies weren't considered as such because then the people had virtually nothing.

Now, he said, they are given two pairs of shoes a year when before they went barefoot. And everyone under 18 gets a quart of milk a day.

They also receive three-quarters of a pound of meat a week, Johnson said.

Miss Castell attributed the shortages to American trade restrictions.

The group was also impressed with the Cuban schools and education.

"There are schools all over the country," Davis observed. "The students are very interested in what is going on in the world, especially in our country. It shows there is a hope and a real future for mankind."

"The level of education is now below that of the US," Milton said, "but people who never would have gotten to the first grade now have an opportunity to get a university education."

The illiteracy rate, which was very high, is now zero, he continued, because one year all the students volunteered to go around the country to teach the people how to read and write. These students have now been given scholarships.

"Cuba has a problem of quality and quantity (of schools), and for awhile it'll be quantity," Miss Castell said.

Regarding the artist in a socialist society, Johnson said that the Cuban "attitude concerning art is almost contemptuous of the role Khrushchev is taking."

He related a Cuban joke about Khrushchev's image in the year 2500, at which time the Russian leader is all but forgotten except as "an art critic of the period of Mao."

"In five years Cuba will be an artist's paradise," Miss Caryl Esteves predicted. "They are expending tremendous energy and talent to develop a dance that will be recognized as Cuban. Painting and sculpture tends to lean toward more abstract forms."

ESTEVES JOHNSON

Cuban housing is improving, Milton said. He saw a dozen housing projects of 20,000 units with quality similar to Westlake; each unit had standard fixtures except for refrigerators.

In one home Milton visited, he saw "13 people and a couple of chickens living in a three bedroom house."

"But before, the 13 had lived with two others (who were killed in the revolution) in a one-room stick house with a dirt floor."

The students found that standard housing costs throughout Cuba were 10 per cent of the income.

"I was also impressed with the depths to which the government understood racial issues," Johnson said, citing an example of a theater in Santa Clara, previously notorious for strict segregated seating, which the government destroyed as a symbol of the end of racial discrimination.

"Every vestige of racial discrimination has been wiped out," Milton said. "Even the feeling of racial prejudice is minor because of the feeling that the people are running the show — not businessmen, the US, or bureaucrats."

The group is now clearing with the State Department and raising money for Cuban students to come to the US, Milton said.

They are also coordinating with the Committee to Uphold the Right to Travel, sponsored in part by two SF State professors: Dr. Jerrold Werthimer (journalism) and Dr. Urban Whitaker (international relations).

Campus kickoff

500 frosh attend

The three-day special orientation program, Campus Kickoff, was a great educational experience, both for the nearly 500 freshmen who attended and for the SF State students who arranged the program, according to organization chairman, Mrs. Joan Benton. The freshmen stayed in the residence halls from September 5 to September 7, at a cost of $6 per day.

"No student was allowed to keep at home because we wanted them to feel themselves a part of San Francisco State College life," said Mrs. Benton.

The new students were shown around the campus and were able to talk to "veteran" students about campus life. Program advising was available and faculty members gave seminars on registration and general student life.

A program highlight was the President's Banquet on Thursday, September 5. AS resident Tom Ramsay reviewed student activities and Dr. Stanley Paulson, vice-president in charge of academic affairs, greeted the students in place of President Paul Dodd.

A lesson in "hard work and responsibility" was the reward for the 49 "veteran" students who acted as counselors and staff members, according to Mrs. Benton.

Planning the program, she added, was like running a small college. The staff had to provide room and board, arrange entertainment and plan a curriculum of speakers and conferences.

The Kickoff program is unique among colleges, Mrs. Benton observed, because it is almost entirely run by students. She, as a graduate student, was elected chairman by the Orientation and Registration Board last October.

Student Activities Counselor Florence Schwartz lent her assistance and guidance to the project.

Rowen's coaches are all ex-Gators

SF State's football coaching staff has a decidedly familiar look to it as far as Gator grid fans are concerned, for Vic Rowen has built the staff entirely out of former SF State stars.

Assisting Rowen on a full-time basis are Bob Rodrigo, Jim Sochor and Allen Abraham. Graduate student assistant coaches are Bob Baird, Don Briemle, Stan Crouch and Neil Laughlin.

Rodrigo, once a Gator fullback, now handles the offensive backfield coaching, and is in charge of scouting SF State opponents.

Defensive backfield coach this season is Sochor, quarterback of the Gator championship teams of 1958-59. Sochor moved up to his current post after coaching the Gator JV team for three seasons.

Allen Abraham is the newest member of the coaching staff, taking over as JV and freshman coach after serving as a graduate assistant last season. Abraham earned Little All-American honors as a linebacker in the 1960-61 seasons.

Bob Baird was an All-FWC defensive back for two seasons at SF State. He was also shortstop on the last three championship Gator baseball teams.

Don Briemle also ended his Gator career last season as a second team All-FWC linebacker. Briemle was also a fullback during his playing days at SF State.

Stan Crouch is the third of the graduate assistants who played on last year's Gator champions. A defensive end, Crouch will assist Rowen with the offensive linemen.

New Yorkers breathless over exciting Yankee win

By JIM BECKER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This town has been gripped with pennant fever.

After a wait of nearly 12 months, the New York Yankees are about to clinch the American League pennant. You can almost feel the excitement in the air as the Yankees drive on the flag to end the long drought for the big town.

To sample some of this fever of excitement, an AP reporter interviewed a number of people standing in the long line waiting to get into the Radio City Music Hall.

"The magic number is four," the reporter said, to a lady with sore feet from New Jersey. "What do you think of that?"

"If you think I'm going to wait four hours to see Doris Day they're crazy," she said.

The reporter spotted a neatly dressed father in line, holding a baby in his arms and another by the hand.

"The Yankees are about to clinch the American League pennant," the reporter said. "Are you excited about it?"

"You mean we don't always win?" the man asked.

"Says who?" asked the man. The reporter moved along the line to a young man with a sports section under his arm.

"Are you excited about the end of the season?" the reporter asked.

"The end? It's just starting. The Giants play the Colts next Sunday in the opener. I hope Unitas is hurt. If he's out the Giants will murder the Colts," he said.

ONCE MORE UNTO THE BREACH, DEAR FRIENDS

Today I begin my tenth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper. Ten years is a long time; it is, in fact, what some scholarly people like to call a decade—from the Latin word deccum, meaning the floor of a ship. It is, to my mind, remarkable that the Romans had such a word as deccum when you consider that ships did not exist until 1620 when John Alden invented the Mayflower. Alden, a prodigiously ingenious man, also invented the ear lobe and Pocahontas.

Ships were a very popular mode of travel—especially over water—until 1912 when the Swede, Ivar Krueger, invented the iceberg. Krueger also invented the match, which is a good thing, because without the match, how would you light your Marlboro Cigarettes? I cannot overstress the importance of lighting your Marlboro Cigarettes, for Marlboro Cigarettes, unlighted, provide, at best, only limited smoking pleasure.

I mention Marlboros because this column is an advertisement, brought to you through the school year by the makers of Marlboros. Marlboros come in soft pack or Flip-Top box. The makers of Marlboros come in dark suits with thin lapels—except on weekends when they come in yoke-neck jerseys and white duck trousers. White ducks come in flocks. They are primarily fresh water dwellers, although they have been successfully raised in salt water too. Another salt water denizen I'm sure you will find enjoyable is plankton—a mess of tiny organisms like diatoms and algae and like that which float sluggishly near the surface of the sea. It is ironic that these creatures, microscopic in size, should supply the principal source of food for the earth's largest animal, the whale. Whales, I must say, are not at all pleased with this arrangement, because it takes the average whale, eating steadily, 48 hours to gather a day's meal. This leaves them almost no time for water sports or reading Melville. It is a lucky thing for all of us that whales are unaware they are mammals, not fish, and could, if they tried, live just as well on land as in water. I mean, you add ten or twelve million whales to our Sunday traffic and you would have congestion that makes the mind boggle.

But I digress. Today, I was saying, I begin my tenth year of writing this column for Marlboro Cigarettes in your campus newspaper. I will, in each column, say a few kind words about Marlboros—just as you will, once you try that fine tobacco flavor, that pristine white filter, that supple soft pack, that infrangible Flip-Top box. These references to Marlboro will be brief and unobtrusive, for I do not believe in the hard sell. What I favor is the soft sell—you might even call it the limp or spongy sell. I hasten to state that the makers of Marlboro in ten full years have not once complained about my desultory sales approach. Neither have they paid me.

But that is of small consequence. Aside from fleeting mentions of Marlboro, this column has another, and more urgent, mission: to cast the hot white light of free inquiry upon the vexing questions that trouble college America—questions like "Should the Student Council have the power to levy tariffs?" and "Are roommates sanitary?" and "Should housemothers be compelled to retire upon reaching the age of 26?"

Perhaps, reasoning together, we can find the answers. Perhaps not. But if we fail, let it never be said that it was for want of trying.

I thank you.

© 1963 Max Shulman

The makers of Marlboro are happy to bring you another year of Max Shulman's unpredictable and uncensored column—and also happy to bring you fine filtered Marlboros, available in pack or box, wherever cigarettes are sold in all 50 states.
