Dear Miss Morgan:-

There are some old cane seated chairs that are out of doors. Please have them taken in as they will be ruined by the damp weather.

Two. I believe it would be a good scheme to provide lath roofs for the courts during the winter months. This would keep the frost off of the delicate plants and flowers in the court yards and we could consequently use those court yards for a more tropical plant than we could otherwise. The lath tops can be removed ~~after~~ the frost months are over, surely by the first of April. It might even be well to further provide lath coverings over various angles of the buildings such as the places where we now have the Bouganvillas and Banana Palms, etcetera. I do not think these need be particularly ugly even in the winter. They can be painted a decent shade and some, as I say, can be taken down and stored until the next winter.

Three. The inside shades for the windows should be painted the blue that we use for some of the window frames and which you thought would look well. You also spoke of having shades running up and down on little wires to guide them. I think this is a good idea as at the present time they fray out at the edges.

I expect to be back in California in about a month.

Very sincerely,

W. R. Hearst
