Open dorms policy depends upon action by committee

A decision to keep the residence halls open during the Spring recess, April 6-13, lies with the Housing Committee. To date, 17 persons have submitted applications to stay on.

Legislature seeks student representation

Without any emotional outbursts or accusations of block voting, the AS Legislature conducted a productive meeting Tuesday.

The Legislature unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Speaker Bob Hill at the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs that seeks to obtain student representation on faculty committees.

Two bills pertaining to the legislature itself were passed. These measures set up the Activities and Student Affairs and Academic and Cultural Affairs Committees as standing committees of the legislature.

A resolution urging the raising of admission standards for the express purpose of keeping the college from becoming overpopulated was passed by an 8-5 majority.

Attempts would first be made to find off-campus housing. However, if suitable housing is not available, it is the housing office's responsibility to put them somewhere, probably the residence halls, said George Changaris, housing coordinator.

He noted that it is the committee's decision, but "As far as I am concerned, even if only one person wants to stay, facilities should be provided."

The tentative plan would require the use of one hall. Almost all of the remaining students will be required to move from their assigned room to another.

Those students who leave for the holiday will have to move out and store their possessions in some authorized space, said Changaris. No dining hall service will be available.

Since this recess is not covered by the semester contract, four dollars (50 cents per night) must be paid to the College cashier by Friday, March 22.

Students must pay for the entire period.

Keeping the halls open is not, however, simply a matter of students needing the service, said Changaris.

The recesses are periods when the building can be shut down for repairs and staff members take vacations.

Student resident assistants, who would normally vacation during the recess, will have to stay also.

All applications for residence during the recess should be in the housing office by tomorrow.

"God damn it," said Lewis, "I told you I'm not in the business of exposing things. I'm a novelist. I write novels. I don't go around—"

"A-h-h-h!" said Bowen, "What're you gonna expose next?"

This is an excerpt from Dr. Mark Schorer's biography "Sinclair Lewis, An American Life."

Schorer will speak here today on "The Burdens of Biography," for the College Lecture Series at 1 p.m. in the Main Auditorium.

Dr. Felix Bloch, Nobel prize winner in physics, will give his lecture on "Half a Century of Atomic Physics" at 8 p.m. in the Main Auditorium.

Schorer, chairman of the English department at the University of California, Berkeley, has published a number of works and articles including: "The State of Mind," and "William Blake, The Politics of Vision."

Bloch, currently a professor of physics at Stanford, won the Nobel prize in 1952 for his work in physics.

The Swiss-born scientist is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the National Academy of Sciences.

Day, time changes

Credential Fingerprinting will be taken on Friday in AD 162 from 2 to 4 p.m. and not today as previously reported.

"College Contact," a KFOG radio program featuring SF State professors and students, will be heard Sundays at 1 p.m. instead of at noon.

Maybe no vacation

The three-day break from March 27-29 which was announced earlier this semester may not occur if more of the faculty don't register for the Asilomar conference, according to a memo President Paul Dodd sent to the faculty yesterday.

Formerly an annual event, the faculty conference at Asilomar has not been held for the past two years. This year the faculty voted 204 to 150 in favor of holding the conference to discuss their role in the school.

At the time the conference was set up, Dodd said classes would be dismissed, but faculty attendance would be optional.

Only 150 have made reservations at last count.

Dodd said he wanted to keep attendance optional, "But unless there is a substantial increase in the number of those planning to attend, the alternative will be for those not at the conference to hold their classes as usual."

He said he could not "in conscience assume responsibility for cancelling classes during the conference period when only a small percentage of the faculty can participate in the Asilomar sessions."

Faculty time spent in planning and the College's financial commitment makes it unfeasible to call off the conference, he said. (SF State has made accommodations for 200).

Dr. Jordan M. Churchill, co-ordinator for the conference, could give no estimate as to how many faculty members had signed up. "The deadline for registration is March 20," he said. "We can give no concrete figure until then."

The Executive Committee of the Interim Academic Senate urged attendance in the same faculty memo:

"... as a result of the faculty vote the faculty committed us to the action, and it is now incumbent upon us as professional people and as people interested in our own governance to participate in events brought about as a result of our action."

Well, about that $57,000 loss...

Today the Gater presents a summary of the staggering $57,000 deficit incurred by the Commons, from the time the story broke last week through Foundation meetings this week. Members of the Foundation Board of Governors are, clockwise,

Overseas program open now

Monday's Gater may have led some students astray when they read about the overseas study program which Dr. Thomas Lantos will coordinate.

The story gave the impression that the program is open only to language students. Actually it is open to all state college upper division and graduate students who can show proficiency in the language used at the institution which they plan to attend.

Universities in France, Germany and Spain will act as hosts for students who enroll in the program.

Applications must be submitted to the Dean of Students office by April 1. Cost for the 11 month program will be $1,020, plus travel and personal expenses.

Board turns to other items

Having temporarily dispensed with the question of what to do with the $57,000 loss in the Commons, the SF State College Foundation Board of Governors turned to other business at their Monday meeting.

The board:

APPROVED a motion by Dr. Curtice Aller calling for monthly meetings of the board, at which time a report by Foundation Director Fred Avilez regarding the operation, will be made. The motion specified that from "time-to-time," the report should include the expected cash flow and projected costs.

Periodic adjustments, if any, should be fully explained to the governors, the motion specified.

APPROVED a motion by Aller to have a survey of where vending machines could be placed on campus should the TUBS be replaced by a student union or be converted to office space. The survey will include an inquiry as to whether buying rather than leasing the machines could be arranged.

A report on the survey will be presented to the board at the June meeting.

APPROVED a motion by Aller specifying that matters involving policy positions on the part of the Foundation to be presented to a legislative committee must come through the board itself.

The motion was made after Avilez told the board that he had answered a request from the Chancellor's office asking for a position on the question of tenure for full time Foundation employees.

Avilez, who told the governors that the tenure plan would cost the Foundation $22,000 per year, said that he replied to the Chancellor's office that "we would not favor a tenure plan."

Aller said that this involved "basic policy" and "should come from the board."

"I'd hate to be identified with this position," Aller said.

Avilez explained that he received the request on the same day it was due back in Sacramento, which is why he did not place the matter before the board.

HEARD a report by Avilez in which he said that students had been hired to "pleasantly maintain" the TUBS from 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. He said the action will "affect" profits, but that it was "worthwhile" and "necessary."

HEARD a report from Avilez in which he said that it costs the Commons five and a half cents for each of the 4,000 cups of coffee sold per day and that therefore the Commons would lose money if the proposal before the board to approve a five cent cost for coffee to the student were passed.

As a result of a lengthy discussion on the coffee question, Aller moved, and the board approved, the setting up of a sub-committee to review the general pricing policy in the Commons.

The board will return to the discussion of the losses in the Commons at a special meeting next Monday.

Transfer to hold noon 'bull-sessions'

The staff of Transfer 15, the college all - student literary magazine, will hold the first of its series of noon poetry readings next Thursday at the Speaker's Platform.

The readings will include take-offs on well known poetry, readings to electronic music and jazz, as well as the poems of staff members.

The noon readings will also clarify new Transfer policies, and Editor - in - Chief Aidan Kelly will allow time for a question and answer period in order to hear gripes, praises and suggestions for this semester's issue.

Editor Kelly hopes that these noon readings will "help to bring Transfer and the campus closer together." He also added that Transfer has too often been considered by the campus an an outlet for the publication of a small select group of creative writing students.

"We hope," he continued,

"that the staff decision not to publish its own material unless submissions are at an extreme low, will help to destroy the myth of Transfer as a clique group."

The Board of Editors of Transfer will stand by their earlier decision not to submit any material for this semester's issue. The Board has also set April 1 as the deadline date for submissions for Transfer 15.

This year Transfer will also offer comments on those submissions which will be rejected for publication. Students are asked to enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with their material.

Prose, poetry, and art work may be handed into the magazine in Hut T-1, the Transfer office in room 1 of the gym, or dropped into the submission box outside of HLL 245b.

Copies of Transfer 14 are still available at the Bookstore, and will also be sold at the noon readings.

Here's the whole Commons story

Following is a summary of how the Commons story has developed:

- Last Friday the Gater revealed that the Commons has lost $57,000 from June 1, 1962 to January 31 of this year.

At the time, Director Fred Avilez said that he had known since mid-November.

AS President Jay Folberg and AS Treasurer Tom Ramsay expressed concern for not having been told about the deficit sooner.

Dr. Curtice Aller and Dr. Harold J. Cornacchia, both Foundation board members, reported that they were unaware of the deficit.

President Paul J. Dodd, Executive Dean Harry Brakebill, and Dean of Students Ferd Reddell were off campus and unavailable for comment.

- On Monday, the Gater reported Commons Manager Erna Lehan's analysis of why the loss occurred.

Mrs. Lehan suggested that perhaps the Commons was billed for too many things this past summer. She listed the expense of feeding 90 members of the Peace Corps rather than the scheduled 200, charging residence hall expenditures to the Commons account, and "all other summer Foundation expenditures," as contributing to the food facilities' financial plight.

Avilez outlined a plan to cut Commons costs by $2,800 per month for the rest of the fiscal year, and thereby attain a net profit of $1,000 per month.

- On Tuesday, the Gater reported the results of the special executive committee meeting of the Foundation held Friday afternoon.

Brakebill told the board members that he had been aware of the deficit since "early February." He extended his apologies to the board and said no deceit was meant, but rather he was waiting for further specific information as to where the losses were realized.

Brakebill outlined a plan by which the Commons could save $38,000 by the end of the year. In substance, his plan called for cutting labor and raw food costs.

Folberg told the board he was "deeply discouraged" by the way the situation was handled.

Tom Ramsay made an unsuccessful motion to fire Mrs. Lehan.

The meeting went into executive session later.

- Yesterday, the Gater reported Dr. Curtice Aller's successful effort at the Monday board meeting to block a motion by Ramsay to go into executive session to discuss "personalities." Aller reasoned that the governors should concentrate on issues rather than personalities.

Dodd made a brief appearance at the meeting and said that his office would take full responsibility for Brakebill's decision to delay telling the governors of the deficit.

Chiang vs. Mao? Tung says 'wouldn't involve the US'

By JIM MILDON

"Right now there is perfect Communist control in China, and Mao will hold power for another 30 or 35 years unless Chiang is allowed to counter-attack on the mainland," an expert on China stated Tuesday.

Deception and bungling by this Communist leadership has brought upon China the greatest famine in the history of the world, according to Dr. S. T. Tung.

"China's agricultural program is based on a poorly worked plan, has been hastily performed, and has been carried out with slave labor," Dr. S. T. Tung told nearly 100 students.

Discussing other problems, Dr. Tung stated:

• The US should give Nationalist China, now based on Formosa, arms and supplies to use in an invasion to wrest control back from the Communists.

"This wouldn't involve the United States in a war," Tung said. "After all, this is China's internal problem started a long time ago. An invasion now would only be a counter-attack of the original war. And the Chinese mainland peoples would welcome it; they're fed up with the Communists."

• The current ideological Sino-Soviet split is due to Khrushchev's dislike for Mao Tse-tung.

Tung added that Mao dislikes Khrushchev, also.

"Mao is a Stalinist. His re-

SCTA to discuss curriculum plan

The proposed new five-year curriculum for elementary education students will be discussed by a student panel at a student California Teachers Association meeting, today at 12:15 p.m. in ED 141.

Also under discussion will be the whole question of methods courses under the new program; if there are to be method courses, what kind and how many. Suggestions will be sent to the Curriculum Planning Committee.

gime loves Stalin and Lenin, almost worships them like gods. Khrushchev embarrassed the Chinese when he denounced Stalin. I have a hunch there is a Mao conspiracy to overthrow Khrushchev as Soviet leader, though there is no exact way to prove this."

Tung, a short, slight man who wears thick glasses, spoke earnestly in somewhat broken English. He has written 12 books in his native language, Chinese, one of which was translated to English and published in 1961.

Titled "The Secret Diary of Red China," the Wall Street Journal called Tung's book the "Chinese Uncle Tom's Cabin." He has also written dozens of articles on China.

Tung, who founded the Chinese Agrarian Party in 1943, stated that he was at first on the side of the Communists and didn't become disenchanted until after they took power.

"They were very clever in those days," Tung said. "In 1946 there wasn't even any Communist literature the party was based upon. They only pleaded with the people to back them to overthrow the Nationalists and establish a democratic state."

The so-called "Army of the People" sounded wonderful to the peasants, Tung said.

Tung stated he saw the true face of the Communists late in 1949 when he was arrested on the basis of some notes he had made for some pro-American editorials.

Tung's speech was sponsored by the Forensics Club and the Young Americans for Freedom, a political club now forming on campus.

Gators drop second game to USF, 5-3

SF State had its four game win streak snapped Tuesday when the University of San Francisco defeated the Gators 5-3 on the USF diamond.

The loss was the second handed the Gators by the Dons this season and reduced SF State's non-league record to a still respectable 7-4.

Mike Barnhart emerged as the winning pitcher, although SF State did get to him for all its runs and seven hits. Jim Tonascia hurled the last three innings and retired nine Gators in a row to preserve the win.

Absorbing the pitching loss was John Walker, who was touched off for four runs and six hits in three frames on the mound. Veteran lefthander Dave Gehre chucked the last five innings holding the Dons to one run and giving up only three base hits.

The batting slump which has plagued the Gators since the 16-8 romp over Santa Clara continued with only freshman third baseman Bud Harrelson, with two singles, able to collect more than one hit.

Ken Barbieri, Jerry Gosland, and Terry Christman all went hitless and Bob Baird and Wayne Service did not help their averages with only one hit in four at-bats apiece.

Rich Jefferies collected the only Gator extra base hit of the contest, a double.

SF State will be in action again Saturday against the University of California on the Bears' field.
