

Dear Miss Morgan!

I have concluded that Mrs Drew is not satisfactory and that the establishment would do better with someone else.

I have no great complaint to make I simply do not like the woman nor her methods nor her entourage.

Mrs O'Brien was personally spoiled and became a hostess rather than a housekeeper. However Mrs O'Brien had a good organization. Or at least she permitted a good organization.

Mrs Drew is proceeding on her own initiative and sometimes in defiance of instructions to gather a personal following around her and to disturb the organization with which we were satisfied and from which we had no trouble.

As a consequence we are having a good deal of trouble.

I do not say and do not want to say that this or that one of Mrs Drews new organization is responsible for our trouble but I definitely do say that our pleasant conditions of which we complain did not exist before Mrs Drew came and may cease to exist after Mrs. Drew goes. I am ready to try another housekeeper Sincerely W R Hearst.
