

The departmental honors program provides specialization beyond the normal undergraduate requirements in a major field. To graduate with departmental honors a student must satisfactorily complete 9 units of departmental honors courses and 3 units of general college honors colloquia.

A student desiring to graduate with general college or departmental honors must write a major paper concerned with a topic relevant to one of his honors courses. During his last semester of honors work the student must pass an oral examination on this paper and his honors course work.

The subject matter and course titles of general college honors colloquia and departmental honors courses vary from semester to semester. See the Schedule of Courses for offerings in any particular semester; also see section on Courses of Instruction—Honors Courses.

CALIFORNIA STATE COLLEGES INTERNATIONAL STUDY PROGRAMS

State college students who qualify may participate in international study programs of the California State Colleges. Upper division and graduate students may undertake a full academic year at major institutions of higher learning in Asia, Europe, and Latin America. Academic work successfully completed at the co-operating universities abroad may be applied toward the degree requirements of state colleges with the approval of the students' major advisers and in accordance with college regulations. Detailed information may be obtained at the office of the Dean of Students or by writing to the Office of International Programs, 1600 Holloway Avenue, San Francisco, California 94132.

Fresno State College students under this program register concurrently at Fresno State College and at the host institution abroad, with credit assigned in terms of Fresno courses. Students who find appropriate study opportunities at the host institution but no counterpart course at Fresno State College may use Independent Study (190), and International Study 92, 192, 292.

Graduate Students

A Fresno State College graduate student in the above program may also use graduate Independent Study (290) and International Study 292, Projects in Study Abroad. International Study 292 is available in one- to three-unit registrations to a maximum of 18 units. Each registration requires a prearranged written plan approved by the Fresno State College instructor, department chairman, and Dean of Graduate Studies. Each registration requires one or more papers and a written or oral examination on the student's return, pending which an In Progress ("IP") grade will be recorded.

FOREIGN STUDENTS

Fresno State College regularly enrolls a significant number of students from abroad. A special adviser is provided to assist them in making the most of their study in the United States. Such students should consult the Foreign Student Adviser immediately upon arrival on campus and before proceeding to a departmental adviser. (See Regulations and Procedures—Admissions.)

Students from abroad must have sufficient understanding and proficiency in use of the English language to be successful in their course work at Fresno State College (see English Proficiency Test for Foreign Students). They should have sufficient funds so that they will not need employment during the first year at the college and should plan to stay long enough to take the minimum legal number of courses each semester. Students on "F" type visas must register for 12 units or more each semester.
