

Fresno State Teachers College trained elementary and secondary school teachers, using all the newest and most progressive teaching methods available in 1922, when this picture was taken. The laboratory training school was located on the college campus (the present Fresno City College).