The Loebel Family

"The first priority of our federal government must be to achieve a fuller, richer, more productive national economy to better the lives of all of our citizens.

"Our federal government has come to accept four percent unemployment as being 'full employment'. I can't accept that and neither can those who are out of work or may be soon because of the bankrupt economic policies in Washington.

"The way the government is being run in Washington just cries out for change."

--Jim Loebel
February, 1974

Jobs

More than 2,000 Americans are being thrown out of work every week because of the energy crisis. And all because the Nixon Administration ignored warnings of what was to come and knuckled under to the oil companies.

Since the President said in January that there would be no gasoline rationing in the United States, at least six states and scores of cities and counties have been forced to impose rationing programs.

We need a Congressman from the 13th District who will go to Washington and tell the Administration to pull its head out of the sand and look at what is really happening in our country.

Jim LoebI will make them listen.

Taxes

If we closed all of the loopholes in the federal income tax we would add more than $60 million to the federal treasury every year without having to raise the tax rate. That is double the amount being raised at every level of government all across the nation each year by property taxation.

Senator Lagomarsino has been part of the Reagan team in Sacramento that has produced seven consecutive years of record high budgets and increases in every form of taxation since it has been in office.

Jim LoebI is committed to the overhaul of our tax laws to make them fair--to end the days when a millionaire governor or President can pay less taxes than the average American working family.

"The Administration in Washington has lost touch with the realities of life in America today. Life for most of us here in Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties is far more difficult today than it was when this administration took office. I want to be a Member of Congress because I want to help do something about changing the way our government is running."

--Jim LoebI

Senior Citizens

"I don't think there is anything legal or constitutional about the way we tell people that just because they are 65 years old they can no longer be productive members of our society. I think retirement should be voluntary, not forced, and that a person should be allowed to work and participate in every facet of American life as long as he or she wants to and is able to. What we do to our older citizens is one of our greatest national shames."

--Jim LoebI

The Economy

Milk prices are up. Meat prices keep going up. Inflation is worse than ever and unemployment is mounting. Yet, the Nixon Administration tells us we have never had it so good.

Jim LoebI says, "You can't just proclaim prosperity in the State of the Union Address. You have to do something about it and the first thing we need is for Congress to repeal the authority under which the Administration is controlling wages while allowing prices and profits to climb steadily upward."

Health Care

All of the members of Congress get free health, medical and hospital care. Yet, many of those members have consistently opposed every effort to insure better health care at a lower cost for the rest of our citizens.

Jim LoebI says, "We must make sure that no American family is wiped out financially because serious illness befalls one of its members. In Congress I will be a constant advocate of legislation to insure that no American is deprived of health or life because he or she earns less than another American."

A Leader

A Loyalist

Jim Loebel is a leader. He was first elected to the City Council in Ojai because of his demonstrated ability in leading a citizens' movement to prevent a freeway from tearing up the city. He has served on the Council since 1968 and is now completing his second year of leading the Council as Mayor.

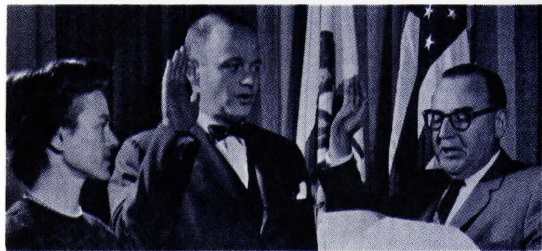

Jim Loebel has been a leader as the Council drafted zoning ordinances that have compressed the city's commercial area-making it stronger and more commercially competitive.

Jim Loebel's creative approach to difficult problems made him not just the leader--but the architect of the plan that has vastly increased the city's park land and upgraded old parks.

Jim Loebel's leadership was recognized early when he was appointed to head the California Department of Professional and Vocational Standards in 1961 after having served as a Deputy Attorney General of California.

Jim Loebel is a lawyer and a Democrat. He is free to go to Washington and look at the facts turned up by the Judiciary Committee regarding corruption at the highest levels of our government and then decide what is best for our nation.

Loyalty is a fine quality in a personal friendship and in a family. But our nation needs more than rigid, party loyalty in Congress at this time. We need leaders who can decide issues on the facts. We need leaders like Jim Loebel.

A younger Loebel served as Deputy California Attorney General and Director of the California Department of Professional and Vocational Standards. He has served as judge pro-tem of the Ventura County Supreme Court since 1972.

John Ehrlichmann was a loyalist. Bob Haldeman was a loyalist. John Mitchell was a loyalist. John Dean was a loyalist. Because these men and others put loyalty to a political party ahead of loyalty to their country and to the Democratic process, we have had to endure the agony and national embarrassment of the Watergate scandal.

Robert Lagomarsino is a loyalist, too. A survey by a state-wide, by-partisan magazine published by leading citizens from both major political parties recently revealed that Lagomarsino is the most rigidly partisan loyalist member of his party in the State Senate. That means he votes down the line with his party's official position more often than any other member of his party in the Senate. And that party is the same as the one for which Ehrlichmann, Haldeman, Mitchell, Dean, and the others did their bidding.

The new Congressman from the 13th District will arrive in Washington just in time to participate in one of the most important and historical debates and decisions in our nation's history. A Republican President is accused of serious breeches of ethics and the law. This is no time for a rigid Republican loyalist to sit in Congress. This is a time that demands an open mind and an even hand.

Political Reform

Jim Loebel believes that we must reform the political process to make it possible for honest people to be honestly elected.

Republican candidate Lagomarsino and 10 other members of his party cast the majority of the votes that defeated a bill to limit campaign spending and require that records of campaign expenditures be kept.
