

Cultivating the Learner-Centered Classroom:

A Conversation with Local Authors
about Teaching and Learning
in the 21st Century

DATE:

Thursday, March 13th, 2008

TIME:

6:30pm-8:00pm

LOCATION:

Library | University Prep School
550 Temple Ave
Camarillo, CA 93010

SPEAKERS:

Kaia Tollefson

Assistant Professor of Education
CSU Channel Islands

Monica Osborn

Teacher, Teacher Educator, Child Advocate, Literacy Coach
University Prep School

You are invited to attend an event celebrating the release of Cultivating the Learner-Centered Classroom, a book written by two of our local educators. The authors, Kaia Tollefson of CSUCI and Monica Osborn of University Prep School in Camarillo, both experts in how students and teachers learn best, will outline the themes and insights contained in their book and answer questions from attendees. The event is ideal for K-12 educators, preservice teachers, parents, administrators, and students (bring your kids!) who are interested in promoting learning environments where teachers and students are both growing. Attendees will be able to order the book at the event and refreshments will be served.

Contact:

Eric Toshalis

Assistant Professor of Secondary Education
California State University, Channel Islands
One University Drive • Camarillo, CA 93012
(o) 805.437.3304
(f) 805.437.3302
eric.toshalis@csuci.edu