Charles I. Wohler filled the position of Personal Records Section Officer. - - He was a humorous and witty man with twinkling eyes; an abbreviated mustache, soft wavy hair and a high forehead. His past experience included many years of employment with government agencies like NRA, FERA, SERA, WPA and now WCCA. Social Data Registration Files, Occupational Records, Daily Population Reports, and Reports of Evacuee Movement to and from the Center were under his jurisdiction.

Arthur H. Peters possessed the title of Administrative Timekeeper - - Records of the earnings of all individuals working in the Center were maintained by this department.

M. E. Johnson was the Cashier - - This made him the one in charge of payrolls and script issuance.

Clarence N. Johnson served as the Postmaster - - He was in charge of the Center Post Office which provided the same services as any Post Office in the City of Fresno. That included money orders, registers, C.O.D., insurance, stamps; even war-bonds and defense stamps.

Frank Goblirsch headed up the Supply Section - - A small bespectacled man with a firm jaw, easily identified because he was seldom seen without a cap. His responsibility was the requisitioning, receiving and inspection of all materials, supplies and equipment and the issuance of them to the operating divisions. He also managed the warehouses for everything except Mess and Lodging.

Milton Maul was employed as Supervisor of Warehouses.

Jack Wilson helped as the Assistant Supervisor of the Warehouses.

Joe Winchester worked for a while in the Mess and Lodging Division but left when he married Nova the teletype operator and they returned to Manzanar where he had worked before he came to Fresno.

W. W. Vaughan served the Center as Interior Security division Chief.- -He was a congenial man with a keen sense of humor and dark appraising eyes. His former experience included a term as Chief of Police in San Antonio, Texas.

Dick Wegener and Edwin Gilstap were policemen for the Interior Security Division.
