4. Drs. Steven Pao and Erin Dormedy joined the committee at 2:15 to discuss the current status of their M.S. Program.

Dr. Dormedy briefly informed the committee about the current status of the M.S. program in Food Science and Nutrition department. She addressed the concerns that were raised by the Program Review team and the UGC in 2010. She stated that due to new leadership, a current faculty search, increased release time, new research grant, new research facilities, and streamlined administrative design, faculty in Food Science and Nutrition now are ready to open admission to M.S. program in Food Science and Nutrition.

5. The University Graduate Committee members were convinced that now the Food Science and Nutrition M.S. Program has the resources needed for admitting new students.
